Vacation Plans Are Being Made

By Members of the Faculty As Another School Year Draws to a Close.

However, whether to go east, west, north, or south is a question yet to be decided by many instructors who have an extra six weeks during summer school.

Dr. and Mrs. Justin Williams and family will spend the summer in Washington, D. C. where Dr. Williams will study library congress.

Dr. J. Henry Owens will be a traveler abroad this summer. He will go directly to England. From England Dr. Owens will sail to Bergen, Norway, and Oslo, Norway. Before returning to America, he will see Stockholm, Sweden, and parts of Germany and France.

Miss Mabel Bridges, who will be here for the summer session, is planning to motor through Kansas and Nebraska and into the Ozark mountains during her vacation. Miss Bridges intends to drive far enough into the Ozark district to see the true primitive life.

Miss Natalie Delander has "visions of Alaska" after summer school.

Mr. J. P. Jacobson will attend the Geneva Conference during the week of June 9. This is a regional conference of the Young Men's Christian Association. Mr. Jacobson has been invited to be the official photographer at this conference. After summer school he and his family plan to go camping one week.

Miss Alberta Greene, who will leave as soon as the summer session ends, will motor to the Southeast

Hamlet Lived Only to Die Again

" - - - and the gloomy halls of Elsinore castle were filled with terrifying wise cracks and puns, bringing down the awful wrath of Wm. Shakespeare's immortal ghost to wreck vengeance on the determined wrong-doers." Such might read a chronicler's account of the goin'-on in the college auditorium last Wednesday evening from 8:03 to 11, when some of the more fancy-free faculty members, assisted by a few local business men, presented their version of the bard of Stratford's most famous melodrama, "Hamlet '38."

The conventions of "good theatre" were flung madly about by these brave actors. The costumes resembled nothing so much as the get-ups worn by a troupe of colored minstrel show entertainers, while dialogue and other continuity reeked of Main Street and Tenth Avenue with a dash of Ringling Brothers thrown in.

Politics was enlisted to furnish comedy and satire, and it certainly did the job well! If Roosevelt were ever to find out what was said of his administration during the course of the evening, it would require at least three fishing trips to think up enough dirt to fling in return.

Dramatic genius, hitherto never in evidence, was uncovered in certain of the profs. Our beloved prexy shone brilliantly in the small, but extremely hilarious scene in which he appeared. John May, major domo of the agriculture department, was truly captivating as the queen, Hamlet's mother. Of course, J. H. Owens and Emmett Lowery, in the roles of Hamlet and Ophelia, the two star-crossed (or cross-eyed) lovers, were magnificent. The latter's surprising terpsichorean prowess was nothing if not

Dancing to the Music of

Carl Miller's orchestra will be the entertainment at an all-school party to be held in the North Hall gym Saturday evening, May 21, beginning at 8:30 o'clock. Since this is the final all-school party to be held this year, a special invitation is extended to all members of the college faculty and the student body. There will be no admission charge to this party.

Masquers Will Hold Their

Annual Banquet and Election of Officers Thursday evening, May 19, at 6:00 o'clock at Mrs. Lucy Wasson's lodge in Glen Park. After dinner the members will be entertained by a series of short, short plays, similar to the Vignettes in American Magazine. Student members will play roles in all of these little skits. Following the program and the election of next year's officers, there will be a period of social dancing of an informal nature.

Mary Andersen is in charge of the banquet committee, with Vern Dahl and Bette Campbell assisting her. The short plays are under the supervision of one of the members of each cast. Four of these plays will be presented.

This will conclude the year's program for the Masquers. This year they presented a three-act play, "A Bill of Divorcement," by Clemence Dane, early in January, and a group of one-act plays directed by undergraduate members, which was given in March, besides planning and presenting an assembly program, and putting on a skit for the Homecoming mass meeting last fall.

New Officers of the Junior

Hi-Y of the training school were elected at the regular meeting held last Thursday, May 12.

Marshall Olson was elected to succeed Glen Anderson as president for next year. Marshall Olson has served as vice-president this year. He will graduate from the eighth grade this spring.

Other officers elected were Lloyd Sherman, vice president; Norman Johnson, secretary; John Anderson, treasurer; and Bob Knapp, program chairman.

The new officers will be installed at a special meeting to be held very soon. The committee working on this consists of Glen Anderson, Bud Edkins, and Gene Bjerstedt.

YMCA Cabinet Members Will hold their spring retreat at Big Lake, near Wanderoos, from Friday afternoon, May 20, to Sunday, May 22. Members of both old and new cabinets will participate.

The purpose of the retreat is to make plans for the Y activities for the coming year. Robert Johnson, regional YMCA secretary from Milwaukee, will be present to assist in directing the activities.

Attains High Scholastic Rank

Russell Gettinger

Setting a Record as the Only Senior to Attain berth on the honor roll for each of eleven consecutive terms, Russell Gettinger, mathematics and science student from New Auburn, Wisconsin, has attained an enviable scholastic rank.

He has also achieved the special honor rating of making straight A's in all of his subjects for the fourth time since he has been in college. During this last term he carried 16 credit hours and received an "A" in all of them for a total of 48 honor points.

This achievement has been a continuation from high school. Graduating from New Auburn high school in 1934, he was valedictorian of the senior class.

Gettinger has not only confined his efforts to scholastic achievements, for at the present time he plays right field for the college varsity baseball squad.

He is the son of T. R. Gettinger of New Auburn, Wisconsin. He plans to teach science and mathematics after his graduation in June.

Conditions and Incompletes

The latest date for the removal of Conditions and Incompletes is Friday, May 20. Students having Conditions and Incompletes are urged to make definite arrangements with the faculty for the removal of same.

After May 20 all grade deficiencies not taken care of will automatically become failures.

College Men Turn "Bottoms Up"

What is so rare as a day in June? Well, maybe it was that day in May when we were treated, without cost, to one of the most astounding exhibitions of styles in men's socks this region has ever known.

It didn't really start with that purpose in mind. Just what did prompt the idea is not really known. Some say it was a Girl Scout ordinance. Others claimed that due to recent excess precipitation, high water was approaching this vicinity. Many held that the principle advantage was merely that of ventilation. This latter view has been backed by the most concrete evidence, for the very next day, which was windy enough to afford ample ventilation without going to extremes, saw a reversion of styles to normal conditions.

It was a good idea while it lasted though, for we certainly were treated to some rare views. "Two rolls, buddy," was the magic phrase which brought into view the well-turned, shapely ankles garbed in stripes, plaids, checks, bright hues, and pastel shades. Some of our college swains flatly refused to conform to the style — stating that it was a radical fad. It is believed by many who really profess to know that these same non-conformists were either afflicted with darned heels or were still bedecked in hangover woelens not yet discarded in favor of spring weather. Whatever it was, the more daring immediately began to put on airs before the conservative group, and dubbed them as "sissies."

There is, though, a bad side to everything, and in this instance it was this: the change from long woolen winter underwear to shorts is extreme enough in itself, but when one adds to that two rolls on the bottom of one's pants legs — well, the boys just couldn't take it, it seems. Some of them caught their death of foolishness and have been running around with the sniffles for a week. In the future the fellows should try to make their fads conform to the season, or else stick to indoor sports.

Farm Topics Are the Chief Source of recent discussions, the extensive use of the periodical library and the steady hammer of typewriters far, far into the night.

Why do the instructors assign term papers? One oft heard reason is the value of such a detailed account as a summary of the course. Another explanation is the excuse that universities require much of that type of work. Are those sufficient reasons for the campaign of term paper assignments launched every spring term?

At any rate, there seems to be a multitude of students writing term papers just now. One student reports five such assignments due this term. The main argument against term topics is their failure to accomplish their purpose. Instead of training students to think, they force him to copy the thoughts of others.

Everyone is familiar with the process of writing the term paper. As soon as the subject is determined, either by dictation or choice, the student gleans through the card catalogue and reader's guide to find suitable references. These are to be arranged in a list known as a bibliography. In the proper procedure the next step is to read these articles and take notes, carefully recording the page and name of the person making the statement. To the majority of students such employment of one's time seems quite useless; he simply transfers immediately to the paper what will eventually be turned in as the finished product. And so countless students can be seen copying, copying, copying, copying - - all for the cause of term papers. How much better it would be if instructors would use a little more thought by assigning topics that cannot be plagiarized but which must be the result of research interpreted by the individual student. It's true that college students should have principle enough about them to refrain from such practices, but instructors can help by removing the temptation.

Faculty Vacation Plans

Continued from first page where she will visit the Smoky Mountains and other points of interest. The latter part of the summer she will spend at her cabin on Big Spider Lake in northern Wisconsin.

Dr. Walker D. Wyman will be here for the summer session, after which he will complete and accomplish some writing that he wishes to do, but he doesn't say he will not take some evenings off to go fishing.

Miss Irma Hathorn has definite plans to travel this summer, but has indefinite plans as to the direction of her travels. She will leave after the second week of summer school and return early in the fall.

Mr. E. A. Whitenack, who will also be here for summer school, plans to do a little traveling, but not extensively. He hopes to spend some time with his son in Milwaukee.

Mr. James Malott has on his program for the summer a short trip to Madison during the week intervening graduation and the summer school and during summer session to attend the Visual Education Conference in Chicago. After his school duties are completed in July, Mr. and Mrs. Malott will travel in the East.

Mr. and Mrs. Glen Junkman and family have plans of camping this summer after the summer school session.

This June Mr. and Mrs. Marvin D. Geere and daughter will attend the commencement exercises at Baker University in Baltimore, Kansas, where Mr. Geere was at one time dean of men. After traveling in the South the Geere family will tour east to Chautauqua Lake, New York, and other places in New York state.

Miss Lucille Haddow, although not having very specific vacation plans after the summer session, will be spending some time at her cottage by Lake St. Croix.

Miss Nelle Schlosser is anticipating a very delightful vacation during the last six weeks of the summer. She will meet her sister and brother in New York, from where they will tour to Canada visiting Montreal and Quebec. Their travels will take them from Canada down to Maine and along the eastern coast. They plan to visit the historic places of interest along the coastline and around Boston, and will continue their tour through New York State, Pennsylvania, and Washington, D. C.

Miss M. L. Branstad has plans of journeying to North Carolina after the summer session is over.

Faculty Sketch

Mary Louise Branstad

Borrowing from Time magazine, it was "the white spot on the map" that proved the stopping-off station in the flight of the stork for Miss Mary Louise Branstad, athletic mentor of the fair sex in this institution.

To assist Current History backsliders who have not perused the worthy news journal faithfully, to assist those who have not heeded Dr. Williams' exhortations - to assist those in placing the rather vague geographical entity involved, it was in Omaha, Nebraska, that Miss Branstad was born. "That happened," she says, "far enough back for me to have now attained my majority." A Norwegian father, a Yankee mother, and two older brothers formed sufficient incentive for little Mary to exploit her inherent athletic abilities, abilities that are today her means of sustenance.

What with attending Lincoln school for her elementary training and vicarious experience, running away from home periodically, and fighting with the more minute elements of the city's urchin population for her actual experience, Mary Louise was well qualified to meet the new problems invoked in attending South high school.

Athletics naturally made the headlines in her high school diary. She played tennis and baseball and swam a good deal, and was variously occupied with sports throughout her four years at South. She had many music lessons, she says, but "somehow I didn't get any practice," so the whole thing sort of fell through.

A physical education major and an English minor at the University of Nebraska netted her an A.B. in 1925 after four years of more or less concentrated effort. Class teams in tennis, hockey, swimming, baseball, basketball, and all the other sports for women helped to build her into the athlete she is today. She did her life-saving work as a sophomore and secured her school letter the same year.

After graduation from Nebraska she secured a position teaching physical education in the high school at Calumet, Michigan, where the long winters suited her Norwegian blood - for a time. To River Falls she came in 1929 after three years in Michigan. In the summer of 1932 she interrupted her River Falls life to attend Iowa University for a post-graduate course.

Spring fever evidently strikes the faculty as well as the student body, for Miss Branstad says, "For about three weeks now I have had no hobbies." Badminton was her favorite before the present languid spell. Near Christmas time she makes Christmas cards from her own block prints. She reads Time for pleasure! A music lover but no performer, she sings only in private. Modern jazz is O. K. with her as far as dancing goes, but to listen to - - um, um!

A staunch "see-America-first" fan, she has travelled throughout the East, has been to the Smoky Mountains in the South, and to the mountains in the West.

She likes all foods, but thinks turnips are the lowest form of nutriment on earth. She doesn't care for desserts, but, like all good Norwegians, she must have her afternoon coffee.

If you want to see this interesting person noted for her bulletin-board notices, look in her office next to the girls' gym, or look out on the tennis courts, or find her driving around in a blue 1936 V-8 coupe.

Rhapsodies

IN BLACK AND WHITE

The marching band has turned in its last performance for this school year. And after looking at the uniforms since they were rained on up at Lexington Park the other day, perhaps it is a good thing!

Speaking of Lexington Park and the band performance there, did you ever see a band of ninety pieces that had to have two directors? The combined college and high school band was seated in such a way that "the right hand could not see what the left hand was doing," and the band players on the extreme ends could not see the director at all. To overcome the difficulty two directors synchronized their motions, and the band got along swimmingly - with part of it a couple beats ahead of the rest of it.

By the time this appears in print the concert band will have made its "spring concert tour," this time going to Stout Institute. We often wish that River Falls could do what other colleges do and take its concert band and A Cappella choir on tour - a really extended one - once. After all, we have the material, but although they are musical organizations, they evidently lack the "dough, re me."

Negro spirituals will be the order of the day tomorrow morning when the A Cappella Chorus presents the assembly program we have been waiting for. It is to be a concert made up entirely of spiritual songs sung by the chorus, and by several soloists and vocal ensembles. It all sounds pretty good, and so we are waiting more or less patiently for tomorrow to come along.

Published every Wednesday of the school year by the students of the River Falls State Teachers College.

Accepted as second-class matter at the post office at River Falls, Wisconsin, under the act of Congress, March 3, 1889.

Blank Pitched Both Games of the Double Header With Mankato Teachers College, Winning the First Game 4 to 3, and tying the second 7-7. This game was called at 6 o'clock.

"Rog" Moore's double in the ninth inning of the first game drove in two runs to win the contest. Don Johnson and Russell Gettinger batted out two hits apiece.

In the first half of the third inning the Falcons took the lead by scoring two runs, but Mankato came back in their half of the period and pounded out three runs to put the Peds out in front by one run. The Falcons scored twice in the last inning to clinch the game.

Blank was credited with nine strikeouts while he gave only seven hits. Pinckney, on the mound for the Indians, gave eight hits and had four strikeouts to his credit.

Donald Stiehm, a graduate of '31, is leaving the position held at Catwaba to accept a position at Spring Green.

FALCON baseballers have piled up quite a record for themselves so far this year. In seven starts the boys have yet to taste defeat. Their record is marred only by a tie in the second game of a double header at Mankato last Thursday. The second game was called because of darkness when the count was all knotted up.

AND did you know that Nook Blank has pulled a Lou Gehrig stunt by being an Iron Man and pitching both games of that aforementioned double-header. Last time we can recall that being done was on a Sunday afternoon in Minneapolis when Ray Starr pitched both games of a double header allowing a total of seven hits and won both games.

LONG as we haven't much to say, now would be a good time to give the reason for the absence of box scores in the baseball game write-ups. Last week we tried to make out the score book that was kept on the game and gave it up when we could find no Philadelphia lawyer to decipher it for us. With a little cooperation from the scorer and fewer systems used in one game we will try to give you this dope next week.

COACH Crawford of the Stout Blue Devils recently handed in his resignation. Crawford has had a heart breaking task at the Industrial School, and we hope that both Mr. Crawford and Stout will profit by the change. Crawford was a teammate of Red Grange at Illinois, and had lots of success before coming to Stout. He won one conference game in three years. That was the basketball team's surprise victory over La-Crosse last winter.

OUR dim glimmers were fortunate enough to be turned on the Minneapolis-St. Paul baseball game last Friday during River Falls Day at Lexington Park. The stop made by H. Taylor of Pflegers wide throw in the second inning reminds us of the way the boys used to make those flying tackles last fall. Oh me! Would that we could see that last football season played over, but what's the use. It's Spring!

NOT that we're breaking any promises to the music department, but we must throw a handful of orchids to the college band and also to the high school band which so royally entertained the assembled multitude at that Twin City ball game. A nice bouquet of gardenias to Harriet Campbell for her gracious portrayal of queen for a day. Looks like Harriet will have to make a life's work of this sort of thing.

SUCH rumblings from the editor after that last paragraph—so if this column is not completed in this issue you can blame it on the lack of sports dope, the junior formal, and spring fever. Just as a parting burst, it looks as if a diamond studded ball club can go to town after all. Proof-look at the record of the Boston Red Sox in the American League.

Drawings Have Been Made for the

First Round Tennis Matches in the Women's Singles Tournament.

F. Schmitt plays Josephine Ryan, L. Branstad meets B. Hilyar, G. Peterson plays E. Manske and P. Hawn meets L. Jorgenson. The Manske-Peterson match will be a close one because both play about the same brand of tennis. The other matches are likely to have some surprise winners as it is hard to predict the likely victors.

Baseball, now that old man weather has quit spilling over, is getting the major share of attention. Stella Tobiassen is sports manager. She intends to have definite teams selected during this week for the tournament to be run the next two weeks.

On Saturday, May 21, the women athletes of this school have been invited to Eau Claire to an all-spring sports meet. The exact program for the day is uncertain, but at any rate, the River Falls delegation hopes to do to Eau Claire what they did to us here on January 21. At that time they defeated River Falls decisively in basketball and volleyball and bore away the silver cup award.

At the annual election of officers, held at the last meeting, LaVernia Jorgenson was elected president, LaVerne Jensen, vice president, Gwen Noyes, secretary and Bernice Deiss, treasurer. Bernice Lovell was elected point secretary and Doris Lindh hockey head.

Kittenball Teams of Gille, Torgerson and Mills won first round games, and the game between Christianson and Niccum was postponed because of a 7 to 7 tie, a dispute, and darkness.

Torgerson's sluggers romped over Brandt's team 22 to 6. Henke, on the mound for the winners, allowed only six hits. Nickerson, hurling for the losers, gave only seven hits, but numerous walks and errors contributed to their downfall.

Crowley's team lost to Gille's 9 to 0 in a rather one-sided game.

The closest game of the series was featured by a four-run rally in the last inning by Mills' team as they triumphed over Dubbe's outfit 9 to 8.

The winners of last week's games will play this week to determine who will participate in the championship game.

Hamlet '38

Continued from first page amazing, while "Hank" Owens "rasled" with a dexterity that would put Man Mountain Dean himself to shame, if not permanent injury. Also deserving of gold cups were the performances of Carleton (Adolf) Ames as the black-hearted "kink" and head galut around Denmark's better circles; J. I. Malott and Glen Junkman, who proved that they could lead double roles with the greatest of versatility; B. J. Rozehnal, who, as la-petite demoiselle waiting on the queen, could add grace to any gracious lady's boudoir (yeah, and he's a good poisoner too); the famous Segerstrom family of actors, who did everything from play golf to sell papers and shine shoes on the stage; Attoiney Behlmer Carisch, who was so tough he wore sheet metal inside his derby to keep the hair on his head from puncturing the material; and countless others, too numerous (or sensitive) to mention.
