WISCONSIN STATE COLLEGE VOLUME XLIII NUMBER 28

These educators comprise the research staff of Wisconsin's new Coordinating Committee for Higher Education. They are Donald Hill, Clifford Liddle, Dr. Eugene Kleinpell, president of River Falls State College, and Dr. Ira Baldwin, vice-president of the University of Wisconsin.

Research Group Does Basic Studies To Plan State's Education Program

It is easier for the youth in southwestern Wisconsin to get an education than it is for their less fortunate fellow citizens born in other parts of the state, according to a study completed by the research staff of the Coordinating Committee for Higher Education.

By 1975, the staff reports, Wisconsin's population will have increased by nearly 17 percent, but the number of college age youth will have increased from 50 to 63 percent, perhaps reaching as high or higher than a total of 350,000.

The research staff is headed by Dr. E. H. Kleinpell, River Falls president, and Dr. Ira Baldwin, vice-president of the University of Wisconsin.

The group is making studies to enable the Coordinating Committee to plan realistically for the growth of higher education in Wisconsin.

In addition to its population study, the research staff has completed surveys on "Economic and Educational Relationships Between Wisconsin and the United States," "Educational Factors Affecting Higher Education," "Who Goes to College," and "Higher Education Enrollments in Wisconsin—1930 to 1970."

AWS Names Officers

Officers for AWS were elected Thursday, May 2. They are president, Phyllis Benjamin; vice president, Carol Naiberg; secretary, Patty Ross; publicity chairman, Dianne Shay.

Miss Benjamin, Miss Ross, and Miss Shay have served on the 1956-1957 AWS Executive Board.

Of the total number of women enrolled, 63 per cent voted in the election.

Madison Group Plans R F Alumni Chapter

Initial planning is underway for a Madison Chapter of the River Falls Alumni Association.

At a meeting of a dozen alumni at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Weirouch (Betty Boardman) plans were made for a picnic this spring and a dinner in the fall.

A pot-luck picnic has been scheduled for 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon, June 8, at Vilas Park. Alumni in the Madison area are invited to attend.

MEN MUST RESERVE ROOMS NOW FOR FALL

So that enough rooms are available for new students next fall, it will be necessary that all men who plan to return make arrangements with their housemothers before May 10.

No verbal commitments should be made. A student renting a room for next year must sign a rental agreement and make a deposit if he wishes to have the housemother hold space for him.

Any cancellation must be made not later than August 24. The fact that there will be at least 100 additional students on the campus next year makes this procedure imperative. A list of available rooms will be posted May 10.

DOUBLE OBSERVANCE IN GARDNER FAMILY

There will be a double celebration in the Gardner family of Fall River when commencement week rolls around.

Lloyd Gardner Laura Gardner
For Laura Gardner it will mean graduation. For her father, Lloyd Gardner, it will mean a reunion with classmates. Mr. Gardner will return to the college for the 40th anniversary observance with the class of 1917.

Vets Planning Children's Day

On May 11, the college plays host to an expected 110 children living in the neighboring counties for the celebration of the 3rd Annual Children's Day, sponsored by the Veteran's Club. These children, age seven to fourteen, are asked to attend by the Children's Worker from nearby counties with preference going to those who would most enjoy such a day.

With the money raised from this year's Vet's Variety Show, the chairman of the Social Committee John Randall announced the activities for Children's Day. Students from the Child Development classes will guide and participate in these activities. These activities include: Registration, a tour of the campus, split into age groups for; swimming, volley ball, tennis, dinner sponsored by cafeteria manager Russell Fleisehauer, with labor by veterans and soft drinks provided by the Seven-up and Coca Cola Companies.

In the afternoon there will be a treasure hunt, directed by the NCPIC (non-commissioned officer in charge) Roger Gerrits, movies, and horse back riding for two age groups, for those that wish a co-pilot, and those that are able to do their own navigating. In case of a rainy day the schedule includes indoor sports and more movies. Transportation is provided by the Vet's Club if it is needed.

A total 120 children attended the first Children's Day in 1955 and 110 in 1956. A review of the correspondence received by the Vet's Club shows glowing reports of satisfaction from the fun day. However, the best laid plans of mice and veterans sometimes backfire, or may fire back as the case indicated in one thank you letter from Polk County dated May 16, 1955.

Combined Concert Planned by Band, Choir for May 15

The College's music department is currently preparing something new in the line of spring concerts—a combined musical program by the band and choir.

Wednesday evening, May 15, is the date set for this new musical venture. It will feature the 55-piece concert band under the direction of B. J. Rozehnal and the 40-voice choir directed by C. B. King, performing music similar to that presented on the two groups' recent spring tour, which was the first combined trip in the school's history.

Each organization will present a share of the program, then the groups will combine to present music from The Student Prince and a patriotic song, The Nation's Creed for the finale.

A program will appear in next week's Voice.

Three Teachers Observe Completion of 25 Years at College

by Mark Wyman

Commencement, 1957, will not only be a memory-filled day for those graduating from River Falls, but it will undoubtedly be a time of recollection for three faculty members. For it was twenty-five years ago last Fall that B. J. Rozehnal, Miss Vera Moss, and Dr. Walker D. Wyman began their teaching duties at what was then River Falls State Teachers College.

Twenty-five years' time has seen changes in the individual duties of the three. Miss Moss, who started out as a supervising teacher in the Campus School Junior High and an instructor in beginning College English, is now teaching advanced English courses. Dr. Wyman began his R.F.S.C. career teaching several history classes and a class in freshman English. In 1942 he became head of the Social Science Department. Beginning as director of the until 1947, when he gave up most band and orchestra, instructor in all instrumental music, and supervisor of music in the Campus School, Mr. Rozehnal held positions in the Music Department of his former duties to become Dean of Men. He was absent from the staff for three years' service in World War II. Today he continues his work in music as director of the college band.

B. J. ROZEHNAL

WALKER D. WYMAN

Each of the three had brief teaching experiences before coming to the college, and they all admit that they had originally planned to stay just "one or two years" here. Dr. Wyman taught high school one year before returning to college at the University of Iowa and then coming to River Falls.

Miss Moss had spent a year on the staff at Western State College of Michigan just prior to another year of schooling at the University of Michigan and her arrival at R.F.S.C. Mr. Rozehnal's pre-River Falls teaching was done at the Medina County Schools in Ohio, and the York Community High School at Elmhurst, Ill. While at Elmhurst he taught several classes at Elmhurst College. His college education was obtained at Northwestern University.

And why did they extend their one-or two-year stay to a twenty-five year one? The three all agree that the friendliness of the faculty, students, and townspeople, along with the informality of a small college, helped keep them here.

The Editor Speaks

We have to make a break-through to a radically higher and broader conception of what is needed and what can be done. Our educational effort today, what we think we can afford, what we think we can do, how we feel entitled to treat our schools and our teachers—all of that—is still in approximately the same position as was the military effort of this country before Pearl Harbor.—Walter Lippman.

"When they're ready for college, will college be ready for them?"

This heading, above the pictures of grade school girls and boys will be seen frequently along with similar messages this year because of a joint effort of the Council for Financial Aid to Education and The Advertising Council, Inc.

Why has The Advertising Council, which donates its services to campaigns informing U.S. citizens how they can help with important national problems turned to higher education as its project this year?

IN THE WORDS of the Council, "At least $500 millions in additional funds must be forthcoming both from private benefactors and legislative appropriations if the . . . colleges and universities are to have the resources to provide our youngest generation the education that is its birthright.

"If such support does not come — and come quickly, our whole country will suffer."

THE CAMPAIGN IS designed to aid both the private and the tax-supported colleges and universities for the Council recognizes that in America the individual is the nation's most precious resource and that this resource is developed principally through higher education.

State colleges are finding themselves in the same situation as private institutions. It cannot be assumed that tax-supported colleges can continue their present level of service without private sources. Many competent authorities contend that the increased enrollment load must be borne primarily by the public institution. It is doubtful if tax funds will be great enough to meet the challenge.

Enrollment at River Falls will have doubled by 1970 even if only the same percentage of young people continue to seek a college education. This percentage has been climbing steadily.

This will mean that increased classroom space, additional space for student services, and more faculty members will be absolutely essential.

THE COLLEGE IS determined not to sacrifice those characteristics which have marked it in the past — the fact that it takes a personal interest in every student, offers opportunities for individual attention, possesses a superior faculty, and is student-centered.

If the college is to continue to meet the needs of Wisconsin's youth, it must receive support from its alumni, friends, the parents of students, and from the students and faculty as well.

CRITICS CORNER —

by Henri Elzinga
 "Take us the foxes, the little foxes, that spoil the vines; for our vines have tender grapes." Aristotle long ago mentioned "unity" as one of the factors of drama; Stanislavsky spoke of the "unbroken line"; may I here make note of their importance again.

The little foxes who appeared on the stage of the Little Theatre April 30 seemed to lack a unifying factor. The main fox (Carol Naiberg as Regina) warmed to her role slowly but from the latter part of the second act began to play her part more dynamically and more believably and with greater variety of mood in concentration. By the third act she became the true dominating force of both plot and stage action. Though not developing stage reaction to its fullest, Miss Naiberg gave one of the most mature character creations seen on the River Falls stage.

The bachelor fox (Gregory Griffin as Ben) with his suave, gentlemanly manner seemed very much at home in the attractive Southern setting. He, at times, brought to light the depths this character should have. He and the two "colored" grapes (Helen Glesnes and Alan Krause), who also appeared in the vineyard, seemed to belong there.

The least clever fox (Alex Romanowski as Oscar) gave a portrayal that lacked smoothness and clarity. Although a surface intensity was evident, an underplaying of the outwardly excitable attitude would have given the character more maturity.

Jim Potton (as Leo) nicely portrayed the dense but "worldly minded" youth. It was interesting to compare his performance in a more demanding role with Mr. Potton's part in another play, "The Male Animal." He did sufficiently well in a role of greater depth.

Taking what is perhaps the most demanding role in the play, Laura Gardner (as Birdie) proved herself an actress by, at times, capturing the real spirit of this character. In places she lacked the pure timidity and simplicity the role demanded. Miss Gardner, in creating the role of Birdie, gave the feeling that she was straining for the effects she was creating.

The northern fox, (Griff Howell as William Marshall) was adequate in his part.

Grim Explains Differences In American and Red Views

The basic difference between Communism and Democracy is that the Communist lays out a "do it in this manner" program, while the democratic process "pre-supposes the intelligence of human beings."

This was the comparison made by George Grim, noted mid-west newscaster and analyst in his talk before an all-school convocation in North Hall Auditorium last Wednesday.

Drawing from his experiences gained in a 5,000 mile trip inside Soviet Russia, Mr. Grim gave the viewpoints and basic philosophy of the "man on the street" rather than Russian leaders.

According to Mr. Grim, rather than the classless society Russia boasts about there are three classes and the "masses." The top three are the (non-elected) politicians, the managerial class, and the propagandists. Below are the masses who are indoctrinated with the slogan, "All for the good of group progress." Mr. Grim pointed out the standard of living in Russia is low compared to ours. It is not uncommon for three families to live in a two room apartment. Although food is plentiful there is little chance for variety. However, it is true that the urban worker is better off than ever before, Mr. Grim said.

Although the average person has no choice with respect to education, the kind of work he does, or even the place he lives, although he is denied religious training because churches are limited to services only on Sundays, still "Tanya and Ivan are kept reasonably contented with the theme played constantly by every medium of communication, 'All going forward to a brighter day,'" Mr. Grim said.

NEWS FOR VETERANS

by Doug Krug
 The purpose of columns under this title is to inform veterans of benefits to which they are entitled and to express news and views of veteran students activities. The need for such a column was realized with increasing veteran interest in student affairs. Approximately one-fourth of the student population are veterans. Frequency of the column will depend on news and space available.

A visit to the County Veterans Service officer, William E. McEwen, revealed some information of which many vets may not be aware. There are several pamphlets in the office, one of which is entitled Synopsis of Benefits Available to Veterans and Their Dependents and was published April 22, 1957.

A telephone call to Ft. Snelling verified the existence of a counseling service for vets of this region. Veterans with disability can be counseled at Ft. Snelling and veterans under Public Law 550 are counseled at the University of Minnesota. Some veterans at the college have had this counseling. The counseling is designed to aid students in their choice of a career by offering aptitude, intelligence, and psychological tests with an evaluation by a psychologist. There is no cost to veterans and the complete series of tests and the evaluation takes less than two days. Anyone interested in this service is advised to write to: Counseling Service, Ft. Snelling, Bldg. 25, St. Paul 11, Minnesota.

A veteran who is disabled to the extent of unemployment may have his social security benefits frozen. He must make application for this before July 1, 1957.

The Vets Club will be selling T-shirts on the campus May 6, 7, 13 and 14. The proceeds will help support Children's Day. Veterans might find it very rewarding to check in on the youngsters on their day.

Trackmen Win Second Meet

A pair of Falcon double-winners led their team to its second consecutive triangular track meet victory at St. Thomas College in St. Paul last Tuesday afternoon.

Frank Sprenger won the 100 and 220 and Phil Kuss triumphed in the 440 and 880 as River Falls racked up 69¼ points compared to 49¼ for St. Thomas and 26½ for Gustavus Adolphus. Sprenger, a freshman, continued to improve his times, running the 100 in 10.6 and the 220 in 22.9. Kuss' times were 53.4 and 2:05.4.

Other Falcon winners were Vern Parker in the mile, Dan Teezen in the two mile and the mile relay team of Kuss, Parker, Sprenger and Neil Nordquist. Vern McKinney took a strong second for River Falls in the broad jump with a respectable 20'5½" leap.

FALCON GOLF TEAM WINS FIRST MATCH

The River Falls golf team won its first match of the season by defeating the Stout Squad Tuesday at the Menomonie Country a total of 8½ points while the Club. The Falcon five picked up Menomonie golfers finished with 6½ points.

Bill Halverson of River Falls fired a one under par 72 to gain medalist honors for the event. Halverson won three points as his opponent, Jake Frank, finished with an 89.

Jim Hallen also gained three points for the RF cause as he stroked out a 78 in out-shooting Bob Eggelson of Stout who shot a 91.

The rest of the results: Dick Lowery S (83) over Don Siebold RF (88), 2½-½; Tom Lau RF (92) over Don Anderson S (99), 2-1; and Lloyd Wiberg S (93) over Bob Hawley RF (119), 3-0.

FALCON FANFARE

by Rog Gundlach

Counted on by baseball coach Bill Solley for regular outfield duty this season, is centerfield Rog Roffler, a senior from Alma majoring in higher elementary with a minor in guidance. While the other two garden positions have not been permanently filled, Roffler has the middle-field job nailed down with his effective stickwork and experience.

Rog's season was cut very short last spring when he suffered a broken ankle in the first season doubleheader against Mankato. Until that time he had connected safely in five of seven appearances at the plate for a whopping .714 average.

ROFFLER

His other diamond experience came while playing service ball from 1951-54 with an Air Force squad in the 12th Air Force French Conference. Before entering the service, Roffler attended Winona State in 1949 - 50 and Buffalo City Normal school in 1950-51.

A graduate of Alma high school in 1949, he lettered in both baseball and basketball all four years.

At River Falls, Rog participates in the activities of the Vets Club and ACEI, besides baseball. He has already accepted a teaching position at Jamesville where he will have charge of the seventh grade and coach junior high basketball next year.

Baseball, Track Teams Have Busy Week Ahead

Two triangular meets and a pair of double-headers are set this week for the Falcon track and baseball teams.

Tomorrow evening the track and field men travel to Mankato for a triangular meet with the powerful Mankato and St. Cloud thinclads. Then on Saturday Coach Fran Polsfoot and his team will head for Winona for a triangular with the host school and the Stevens Point State tracksters.

In a highlight of the annual rec-day on campus, the baseball team will take on Macalester College of St. Paul in a pair of games on Ramer Field Wednesday afternoon, beginning at 1 p.m. On Saturday the diamondmen face a tough La Crosse nine in a double-header at the down-river city.

RF Dumps Stout

Dick Fischer and Louie Johnson pitched three- and four-hit ball respectively as the Falcon diamondmen presented Coach Bill Solley with a doubleheader victory for a birthday present, downing Stout to the counts of 5-1 and 3-0 last Tuesday.

Fischer fanned nine, not allowing a single walk in the opener and sparkled at the plate with two hits in three trips—one of them being a triple. George Holland also collected two for three, including a double.

The win boosted Fischer's season record to 2-0.

Johnson held the hosts in complete submission in twirling his 3-0 shutout and boosting his mark to 2-0. Jim Turnquist relieved in the seventh and fanned two more enemy batsmen.

Al Suezaki led the hitters with a pair of base knocks in three tries, while Holland and Howie Madsen each pounded out doubles.

Falcons Drop Two Games To Eau Claire 10-7, 10-2

by Ed Schlumpf

The Eau Claire Bugolds copped both ends of a doubleheader, Saturday at Ramer Field, winning the first game 10-7 and taking the second 10-2.

The First Game

The Bugolds wasted no time in the first contest as they shelled RF starter Dick Fischer from the mound in the first inning with a five-hit attack that netted five runs. Jim Turnquist came in to put out the fire and went the rest of the way yielding seven hits while striking out six and walking three.

Lyle Foch led the Eau Claire assault with three hits in four trips including a two-run double in the sixth. George Holland and Al Suezaki both went three for four to lead the River Falls hitters. Turnquist and Rog Roffler both connected, booming triples for the Falcons.

The Second Game

Two former Eau Claire Braves paved the way as the Bugolds took the second game 10-2 with the help of seven River Falls errors. Dan Jordan, on the hill for the winners, kept the Falcons in check scattering seven hits while fanning seven and issuing three free passes to first. Frank Benvides, formerly with the Braves, and Jim Bollinger, always a thorn in the Falcons' side each collected two of Eau Claire's 10 hits off starter and loser Louie Johnson. John was the victim of shoddy help afield as River Falls committed seven costly errors. Holland again paced the RF attack with two hits in three trips to the plate.

Miss Moss added that one of the things she liked best was the freedom to experiment in teaching that River Falls offers. Mr. Rozehnal's main reason was that he "... saw an opportunity to build up this area in music."

Changes Noted

Quite naturally, twenty-five years have produced a great change in the physical plant here. When the three began their duties in 1932, River Falls had an enrollment of between 400 and 500 students. Also, there were few buildings. Dr. Wyman recalls his first look at the campus: "When we first came into River Falls in the Spring of 1932, Commencement was being held. The college seemed very small—there were only two classroom buildings. But we thought it was beautiful." Mr. Rozehnal added that "We have seen a great deal of growth in the number of buildings, but it has not kept up with student population."

In their opinions of significant changes in the student body, the three differ somewhat. Mr. Rozehnal said that today "... students are much more casual, and feel freer to express themselves. Cafeteriology is a very important thing in the lives of students now. It didn't exist when I came." However, he said that "Our students reflect the times very typically." Miss Moss, though, felt that, on the whole, students "... Are the same over the years."

Girls in Bermudas

When first asked, Dr. Wyman replied that "girls wearing bermudas ..." is the most significant change, along with the fact that "... girls smoke publicly now, instead of sneaking out behind the fence rows." In a more serious vein, he added, "In the Depression, students believed strongly in causes, such as economic reforms, municipal ownership of utilities, and so forth. Today they don't seem to."

So, when graduates are receiving their diplomas this June, three members of the faculty will be recalling similar scenes over the past quarter of a century.

humanitarian attitude did not shine through this dying man.

Sonja Rasmussen (as Alexandra) also developed slowly her role, but at various times showed interesting signs of characterization.

The visual conflict between characters was blocked out on the stage effectively and pictured the opposing forces of the play nicely. The undercurrents of conflict did not come through clearly, though.

BLOOD BANK TO BE HERE MONDAY, MAY 27

These may be secured from FTA members in the cafeteria at 12 noon and 5 p.m., during the week of May 13-17. CHILDREN'S—con't from pp. 1

"On the way home the drivers enjoyed the chatter of what the children liked best, and before leaving the cars each child asked if they could go next year if there were another day. One complaint of the girls was that there were too many guns, for they had received guns in the Treasure Hunt, but otherwise all was praise."

This year the Vet's Club has asked for the children's names, ages, and sex so that the "Hunt" might yield more fascinating and appropriate "treasure."
