Falcon Cagers Make NAIA Tourney

The University of Minnesota Theatre Touring Company, under the program of concert and lecture service, will present Eugene O'Neill's play "Ah, Wilderness!" on Thursday, March 19, at North Hall

Minnesota Players Will Present O'Neill's 'Ah, Wilderness'

"Ah, Wilderness," a comedy by Eugene O'Neill, will be presented at RFSC on Thursday, March 19, by the University of Minnesota players.

The story, nostalgic as a look into an old picture album, is a touching and hilarious picture of American family life in the first decade of the century. The crisis involves a young boy, Richard, in the throes of both starry-eyed love and the rebellion of adolescence. The play is said to be partly an autobiography of O'Neill himself and it tends to depart far from the theatre and show the intimacies of an average home in an average community.

The University Acting Company is made up of outstanding young actors including Chris Ringham, Lois Clark, John Astin, Bill McKereghan, Del Brudelle, John Blue, Jean McMillan, Joe Lobaito and Tad Ware. Direction is by Richard D. Spear of the Theatre staff and the settings are designed by J. Morton Walker, the theatre's technical director.

Students and faculty will be admitted on their activity tickets; others may attend for the price of one dollar.

This play is not recommended for children below high school age.

MELETEAN TO RESUME SALES ON WEDNESDAY

Meletean sales will begin again in the first floor corridor of South Hall on Wednesday, March 11.

The Meletean's business manager, Juliann Ryan, has announced that orders will be taken for one hundred yearbooks. Two hundred were sold in the Meletean subscription drive in January.

The price of the 1953 Meletean is $3.50, of which $2.00 may be paid down, with the other $1.50 to be paid when the book is received.

River Falls, Hudson Grads Organize Alumni Groups

This month saw the formation of two new alumni chapters of Wisconsin State College at River Falls.

A local chapter in River Falls was formed February 27 when more than 75 former students and graduates of the college met in South Hall and elected officers for the coming year.

Dopkins, Helmer Reached Quarter Finals in Tourney

Heather Dopkins and Margaret Helmer reached the quarter-finals in one of the major debate tournaments of the nation this past week-end by winning seven out of eight preliminary debates and gaining 93 points.

They were entered in the Women's Division of the 22nd Annual Northwest Tournament at Macalester College. In the quarter finals they were defeated, in a 2-1 decision, by Augustana College, Rock Island, Illinois. Augustana lost in the semi-finals to Eau Claire, winner of the women's division of the tournament.

Entered in the Men's Division at St. Thomas College were Royal Fraedrich and Bill Schoenwetter, and Richard Granum and Halbert Belt. The former defeated South Dakota State and Bethel College, accumulating 83 points. The latter defeated Hamline University and St. Mary's College for a total of 78 points. The Men's Division was won by (Continued on page 4)

CWA Participates In State Convention

Eight students and two faculty members represented River Falls State College at the Women's Student Government Convention held at Wisconsin State College in Oshkosh, Saturday, March 7.

Margery Deans, Rita Ruemele, Carol Anderson, Audrey Parsnick, Betty Anderson, Carolyn Styer, Marilyn Haglund, and Ann Turner attended the convention from River Falls. The students were accompanied by Dr. Dorothy Lipp and Miss Nancy Knaak.

All nine Wisconsin State Colleges were represented at the convention.

The River Falls group presented "They Went To College" in four skits.

Three schools presented discussion groups. Oshkosh gave "Campus Social Problems". "Dormitory Living" was discussed by LaCrosse. Platteville discussed "Women's Activities on the Campus."

Dr. Lipp served as moderator in a panel discussion on "Women in Modern Society."

Representatives from River Falls also planned and printed the programs for the convention.

Six Graduate At End of Term

Six seniors will graduate from River Falls State College at the end of the Winter term tomorrow, the registrar's office has announced. The six will receive their degrees at the commencement exercises on May 31.

Graduating students include: Charles W. Braun, B.S. in Agricultural Education; Thomas J. Ingham, B.S. in secondary education; John W. Mills, B.S. in secondary education; Paul Wil-link, B.S. in secondary education; Carol J. Doffing, B.A. in liberal arts; and J. David Johnson, B.S. in liberal arts. Carol Brooks will receive her diploma for the two-year rural education course.

Play Mississippi Team In Opening Tilt Today

River Falls Falcons were Kansas City bound this week-end to play in the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics Tournament. Starting with a "Kickoff Banquet" last night and the "Parade of Champions" today, the tournament will wind up with the final play-off Saturday night.

Choir Preparing For Annual Tour

Fifty-two River Falls students will be packing their bags Sunday morning for the annual three-day choir tour, to be held this year on March 15, 16, 17.

The a cappella choir, under the direction of Chauncey B. King, will sing Sunday afternoon at the Lutheran church in Pigeon Falls, and Sunday evening at the Methodist church in Black River Falls. Monday's stops for the choir will include Cumberland and on Tuesday the group will sing at Wausau. They will return home Tuesday night, March 17. The choir will travel in two Greyhound buses.

The Falcons meet the favorite, Mississippi Southern College, at 3:30 this afternoon.

The Falcons got the opportunity to represent Wisconsin by defeating Carroll College at Waukesha 88-87 last Thursday night.

Entered in the N.A.I.A. tournament are 32 teams. First round playoffs will be held Monday and Tuesday, eight games being played each day. The 16 winning teams will play against one another in 8 games on Wednesday. Winner's of Wednesday's games will be matched in four games Thursday and the four winners of Thursday's games will play one another Friday. Winners of the final game Saturday night will be the tournament champion.

Coaches Phil Belfiori and Bill Solley accompanied the team to Kansas City. Basketball squad members making the trip are Bob Williams, "Zeke" Wells, John Gehn, Roger Kuss, Joe Burgoyne, "Cabby" Wild, Jim Saxton, Jim Belisle, Stan Lehman, and Don Flick.

Margaret Remund as Gretel and Mary Jane Haessley as Hansel will play the title roles in the A. C. E. operetta, "Hansel and Gretel", on March 21.

A.C.E.I. to Dramatize Grimms' Famous Fairy Tale March 21

Mary Jane Haessly and Margaret Remund will play the title roles in "Hansel and Gretel" to be presented Saturday morning, March 21, at 10 o'clock in North Hall Auditorium.

Directed by Mrs. Richard Cooklock, the play is being given by the Association for Childhood Education International as a production for children.

The play was adapted from the well-known opera of Engelbert Humperdinck by Berta El-smith. Humperdinck wrote the opera for his sister, Adelheid Wette, who had written a little play, based on the Grimm brothers old nursery tale, for her own children to act. The opera was presented by the Metropolitan Opera Company for the first time under the direction of the composer.

Other members of the cast include: Gen Olson, the mother; Marty Martinson, the father; and Kathy Miller, the witch.

Music accompaniment during the performance will be by Joan Hanson, organist.

Fee Raise Unfair

In a recent article of the Student Voice a raise in the Student Activity fees was discussed. This matter should be thought about very seriously.

I can personally understand how it might be necessary for the extra $1.50. We get so much for our money now that I can see where ends might not meet.

However, I do not think the other $1.00 a term should be required to buy a Meletean. Also why should a student who is in college for one term or two help pay for another's yearbook?

Granted the Meletean may be in hard financial straits. Even so I feel that no student should be required to buy one. For my money that just "ain't fair".

A questioning student.

'Griper' Gripes at Gripe

I understand the mighty "fine imposer," probably imposter is quite a man. He is, without a doubt a great complainer about the parking on South Hall Drive.

He complains that there is too much illegal parking done on this drive. Well why doesn't he think of a constructive answer to this situation. Anybody can gripe!

A person has no other alternative than to park there. Where else can a person park and even be near the campus?

After this I would appreciate it if people would cut their just plain, "gripping" and back them up with remedies for the situations.

A fellow "griper".

Justa Minute

There's always been a close tie between various branches of the arts—music, literature, painting, the dance, etc. We never realized before, though, quite how close is the relation of painting and music. However, the person who painted the signs on crates bearing paintings for the Gimbel Art Exhibit carefully labeled each one "Handel with care".

If You Get Sick, Remember: We're on the Honor System!

Have you been sick lately, or did you just sleep in this morning when you missed that 8:00? Maybe you didn't hear about it, but things have changed around here.

Do you remember when it was possible to go to the health cottage and get an excuse for absence? Well, that system has undergone what we might call a "revised revision!" If you miss a class now, don't bother to go knocking at the health cottage door because they can't help you. No excuses will be given out.

An excuse as we know it is a written slip of paper, made out by someone "competent", that will give reasons for the student's absence and will make it possible for the student to make up any work missed.

We are now on the honor system. That is, if we have been sick or for some other legitimate reason are forced to miss a class, the thing to do is to go directly to the instructor and give him the facts. He is the one who will decide whether or not the excuse for absence is valid. He then may or may not, whichever he prefers, make provision for work missed to be made-up for credit.

Only 38 in Every 200 Start To College; 4 Do Grad Work

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is an excerpt from a column written regularly by Dr. Jim Dan Hill, president of Superior State College. It is reprinted here because of its timeliness at the beginning of another quarter and because it contains information of interest to the person about to graduate from college.)

IT'S BEEN HAPPENING for thirty years. Nevertheless, each generation of parents continue the United States, begin getting the query: "Can a high school graduate enter college at the beginning of the second semester?"

The answer at this college, and from nine out of ten of all other colleges and universities, is identical: "Yes, your son or daughter may enter just as conveniently at the middle of the academic year, as did the students who enrolled in September."

THE SEPTEMBER school opening habit is so built up from kindergarten through the grades and high school that many parents instinctively reject the idea of a student entering college at any time other than early autumn.

Many of them are also surprised by the information that most colleges hand out diplomas, with slightly less fanfare perhaps, at the end of January, just as they do in June. Many mid-year graduates are students who began their freshman year in late January or early February, instead of in September.

Normally, employment opportunities for mid-year graduates seem to be just as good as for those who leave college in June. The same is true for those who graduate at the end of the summer session. This year the mid-year graduating class seems to be more in demand for jobs, if possible, than were last June's grads.

SINCE COLLEGE is the topic of conversation, this is as good a time as any to dispose of an oft repeated error. "Too many people go to college; so many are getting degrees that a college diploma doesn't mean anything, any more." These irresponsible and uninformed assumptions are repeated, often by people who should know better, just often enough that sometimes they pass for the truth.

The lamentable fact is that for the growing complexities of modern living, not enough young Americans are graduating from high school (or its equivalent), not to mention going to college. The figures will surprise you.

LET US ASSUME that about 1936, the approximate date when last June's college graduates were in the first grade, you happened to park in the vicinity of a public school building in southern Illinois, located only a few miles from the United States' center of population.

Let it be further assumed that this particular public school was the exact average for the United States as a whole as of that day, and that the pupils therein represented the statistical average for pupils their age throughout the United States.

Ignoring the other grades, assume further there were exactly two hundred first grade pupils of the same age playing on the shady side of the building. All are to live past the age of 22. The question to be answered is: What is the educational record of those two hundred pupils as of June commencement 16 years later, i.e., June, 1952.

Believe it or not, 40 of them ended their educational experience before completing the eighth grade. By the end of the tenth grade, an additional 40 were no longer in school.

Thus, exactly 80 of the original 200 had dropped by the wayside, insofar as education is concerned, before reaching the junior year in high school. One reason for this high rate is that most young people reach the tenth grade in their 16th year. In many states of the Union, there is no compulsory school law beyond that age.

By the time these first graders of 1936 had adjusted their caps and gowns to receive their high school diplomas, 1948, only 110 of the original 200 remained.

A COLLEGE, or university, did not receive all of the 110. Many did not want to go further; some of them did not take the right courses in high school for college admission; some made such poor grades in high school that they were not encouraged to continue their education; some were eager to go, but breadwinning responsibilities had fallen upon them at an early age; some thought the nearest good college too far from home.

Nevertheless, 38 of the 110 high school graduates did take one or more courses beyond the high school level. This counts all of those who went to junior colleges, county normals, accredited night schools for college work, or any institution offering courses bearing post-high school credit.

Of these 38 who carried their studies beyond a high school diploma, only 22 completed the first two years, or its equivalent, of college or university work. Of these, 19 received a college degree.

OF THE NINETEEN who receive a four-year, college diploma, only four will pursue advanced studies to an additional degree

The Editor Speaks

Shall We Be the UWRF?

When the members of the junior class now at River Falls step up to receive their college degrees in June, 1954, they may very well see the words "University of Wisconsin" on them, although they will have spent four years at what we now call Wisconsin State College at River Falls.

But we might call it the University of Wisconsin at River Falls if a bill suggested by Governor Kohler and introduced in the state legislature last month is passed. The bill would merge the nine State Colleges, Stout Institute, and the Wisconsin Institute of Technology with the University of Wisconsin under a single board of regents.

The recommended measure also includes a chancellor to act as chief administrator to the single board, a president for each unit who would be responsible to the chancellor and the board of regents; identical degrees for graduates of each school; retention of tenure for instructors; and equality for the 12 institutions in their relationship with the chancellor and the board of regents.

Just where does this leave us, the students most affected by the measure? It is somewhat hard to tell just where, but the bill, if passed, might do several things to our benefit or harm.

We would be graduates of the University of Wisconsin. The prestige of a degree from a great university is doubtless greater than the prestige of a degree from a small state college, no matter how much better the state college education might have been. And we would have that prestige without ever setting foot on the Madison campus.

If more students come to the state colleges who might have gone to the University because of the prestige angle, the state colleges would undoubtedly grow in size, and the Madison campus would probably be used more for graduate work. This would place more college students nearer their homes and mean a cheaper education for them; for as living costs are now, it costs less to graduate from RFSC than from the University.

Would transferring to the U at Madison be easier? Not as things stand now, for the faculties at each college would still regulate the requirements for the degree at their school. The acceptance of credits from another school within the system would still be up to the faculty at the school to which the student was transferring.

What about fees? Could not the legislature be within rights to raise fees at the State Colleges to the amount University of Wisconsin students now pay? After all, if all the schools were just parts of the University, the fees at all should be identical.

Would River Falls be taking orders from a board of regents too far removed from it to see its personal problems? Perhaps not, if an amendment which has been suggested for the bill is passed with it. It provides for representatives on the board from each congressional district in which a unit of the university is located. River Falls might keep a regent from this city on the board.

Will campuses such as River Falls and Eau Claire be dominated by the Madison campus? Maybe not, for the president of each unit such as River Falls will be on equal level with the president at Madison, and will be responsible to the board of regents and the chancellor. But who would be chancellor?

Will this integration simplify the legislature's job of appropriating money for the colleges? Yes, because they will only have to act on one budget submitted by one board of regents. And educational needs throughout the state will be determined by one board, not four as is done now.

Six of the nine State College faculties, including River Falls, have voted against the integration bill. Perhaps some of these six would accept it if the geographic representation amendment and one providing a single salary schedule for the whole University system were included.

But after all, the students at the colleges are affected most by the bill. What will it do for your education? Read about it; investigate; decide! Then let your state assemblyman and senator know what you think. You are the guinea pig in this matter, but you have a voice. Use it pro, use it con. But use it!

in the fields of medicine, law, teaching, theology, industrial research, etc. This is based upon records of previous classes.

You may look about you and insist these figures are not applicable to your community, or to your city. If this be true, congratulate yourself. You live in an above average community for the United States as a whole. Some other area in America is just as far below this norm as your home town is above it.

If you search further as to why your home area is so far above average, you are likely to find a major reason is because there is a good, accredited college within twenty-five miles of your front porch.

Falcons, 103; Stout, 74; Rog Kuss, 57

Roger Kuss marked his last college game on the River Falls floor with a sensational record-breaking 57 points as the Falcons defeated Stout in their last home game, 102-74, on February 28.

Kuss' scoring in the Stout game gave him a total of 698 points in 18 games this season. In the game with Stout he made 21 field goals out of 23 attempts and 15 free throws out of 16 attempts.

The Falcons started out fast, making their first seven shots on fast breaks and dead-eye shooting.

In the next period, the pace slackened up a bit for the Falcons. In the meantime, Stout began to hit and gained on River Falls. Kieffer and Stewart paced the Bluedevils. The lead was too much for Stout to catch and their drive fell off. Kuss continued to sink basket after basket and also contributed five free throws. As the half ended, River Falls still led by a wide margin, 53-36.

Kuss and company roared off once again in the third period.

In the last period the reserves came in after about a minute of play. They played for about half the quarter. John Mills playing his last home game sank three buckets to lead the reserves in scoring. Back came the regulars and they fed Kuss so he could break his own record. Shortly after he did so, Rog left the game on fouls. As he left the court he received a tremendous ovation from the fans.

High point man, of course, was Kuss with 57, followed by Wells and Williams who had 10 apiece for the Falcons. Bill Kieffer had 25 for Stout and Stewart had 20.

Falls Edges Carroll 88-87 To Gain Berth at Kansas City

River Falls was victorious in a nip and tuck battle for the N. A. I. A. play-off with Carroll College Thursday night. Sparking the Falcons was Roger Kuss, center, with 32 points.

The deciding factor was the excellent free throw shooting. The Falcons hit 34 out of 39. Had the free throws been 100 per cent, they would have made one more point.

RF Bows to EC; Second in League

River Falls State College lost its final conference game of the season Tuesday night when the Eau Claire Bluegolds took the Falcons 91-86.

The Falcons' loss threw them into a tie with Superior for second place in the conference, each having a record of 8-4.

Roger Kuss, River Falls center, scored 49 points against Eau Claire Tuesday night before he fouled out in the beginning of the final quarter. The Falcons trailed three points at the end of the first quarter but held their own in the second quarter with a half-time score of 41-44. In the third quarter, sparked by Kuss, River Falls put on a tremendous rally, ending the quarter on the long end of a 73-64 score. Kuss made 19 points during the quarter. Early in the fourth quarter Kuss left the game with five fouls called on him. Eau Claire outscored the Falcons by 14 points in the final quarter, ending the game 91-86.

With less than two minutes to play, Williams hit for two charity tosses. Wells followed with two more and Belisle clinched the game with four straight. It was 88-87 for the Falcons.

Although the Falcons had a four point lead with eight seconds remaining in the game, the River Falls team gave away three points to avoid allowing their opponent the possibility of making four. Carroll was awarded two free throws. Making the first one, they missed the second to go for a tip in. To avoid fouling and permitting two more free throws, the falcon team remained rooted to the floor until the ball was safely through the hoop. Awarded the ball, the Falcons held it out of bounds until the final horn.

River Falls represented the State Colleges and Carroll the independent colleges. As a result, the Falcons go to Kansas City for the N.A.I.A. Tournament.

FOUNDATION WANTS FOOTBALL SCOREBOARD

A football scoreboard for Ramer Field has become the current project of the RFSC student foundation committee. The scoreboard will cost about $1400, and cooperation in raising the money has been promised by River Falls high school, which also uses Ramer Field.

Campus organizations have been given pledge cards and are asked to turn them in to the dean, s of- fice by April 1.

CHISHOLM, ENGLER ON ENGLISH PROGRAM

Dr. Francis P. Chisholm and Dr. Walter J. Engler of the college English department will participate in the annual Conference on Composition and Communications at the Hotel Sherman in Chicago this weekend, March 13 and 14.

Dr. Chisholm will speak at a workshop, "Use of Community Resources in Teaching Freshman English." Dr. Engler will participate in another workshop, "Clinical Aids to Freshman English." The conference is sponsored by the National Council of Teachers of English.

COLLEGE FOLK SINGERS ON KAAA MARCH 11TH

A program of folk songs of America will be heard over radio station KAAA in Red Wing next Wednesday afternoon, March 11, from 1:30 to 2 o'clock when members of the "Folk Singers" of Wisconsin State College at River Falls will broadcast.

The "Folk Singers" are a group of twelve voices from the college choir who specialize in American ballads and folk songs. Included in Wednesday's program will be Negro spirituals and folk songs from Missouri and Pennsylvania. This will be one in a series of weekly broadcasts from the college.

the University of Kansas. From Minnesota, Wisconsin, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Illinois, Nebraska, Kansas, and Texas, there were 96 teams present at the tournament. Of these 62 were men's teams, 34 women's teams.

Miss Marion Hawkins acted as judge in the preliminary men's debates at St. Thomas, in the quarter-finals of the women's division at Hamline and Saturday afternoon judged in Minnesota High School Debate finals at St. Louis Park.

Dr. Gilbert Smith judged women's debate at Macalester College. The debate topic was "Resolved: That the Congress of the United States enact a compulsory fair employment practice law."

River Falls debaters will participate in the annual Sigma Delta Rho tournament on Friday

DORM SCENE OF MIXER PARTY FEBRUARY 27

On Friday evening, February 27, a "mixer party" was held in the girls' dorm. Those attending testified to having "more fun than we've had in a coon's age!"

The recreation, among which were relays, mental games, a "mask of months" charade, and square dancing, was planned by Mr. Solley's Recreational Leadership class. Other parts of the recreation, serving as "mixers", were multiplication dances, a bean quiz, and balloon dances.

and Saturday of this week. The tournament will be held at the University of Wisconsin at Madison.

RFSC debaters will enter the debate, discussion, and oratory events. Names of River Falls students who will attend the tournament have not yet been announced.
