Democrats Name Darr As Education Specialist

Dr. Richard K. Darr has been appointed an Education Specialist by the Democratic National Committee, along with nine other professors from Southern Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, Chicago, and Roosevelt Universities.

Education Specialists conduct schools for instructors in precinct work. The territory of the ten Education Specialists extends from the Atlantic, north of the Ohio River, to Montana.

RF Debators Take Part in Fargo Meet

Five students represented Wisconsin State College at River Falls at the Joint Province Convention of Pi Kappa Delta held at Concordia College in Moorhead, Minnesota, on March 25 and 26.

The men's debate team of Arlo Miller and John Rice rated "excellent" in debating the question, "Resolved: That Congress should have the power to reverse decisions of the Supreme Court."

Wenner

Carol Wenner Wins Title In 'Cover Girl' Contest

Carol Wenner, sophomore from Rice Lake, is the winner of the River Falls Campus Cover Girl contest. She was one of the five finalists entered in the contest which was decided by an all-school election last Wednesday.

Taking an English major with phy-ed minor, Carol is a member of NCTE and has been active in WRA.

Miss Wenner's picture will now be submitted to the Minneapolis Sunday Tribune, which is sponsoring the contest, to vie for its Campus Cover Girl title. Her picture will appear in the Tribune's Picture magazine on April 24, along with the entrants submitted by other co-educational colleges in this area.

Lt. Gov. Rolvaag To Speak Tonight

Lt. Governor Karl Rolvaag of Minnesota will give an address in the Little Theater tonight at 8 p.m. Rolvaag is the Executive Director of the "Humphrey for President" organization.

A World War II veteran, he ran for Congress in 1952, but was defeated by Walter Judd. He was elected Lieutenant Governor in 1954, and has held this position ever since. He is married and has two children.

Miller and Rice defeated Gustavus Adolphus, Concordia, Westmar, and Northern State Teacher's College, and lost to Morningside and South Dakota State.

The women's debate group won from Gustavus Adolphus and Black Hills State College. They lost to St. Olaf, Oshkosh, Huron, and South Dakota State College.

Anita Munson received a "good" rating in the women's discussion.

In men's discussion of "What should be the role of the federal government on regulating labor unions?" Arlo Miller received an "excellent" rating.

John Rice received a "good" rating in extemporaneous speaking and Judy Harmon received a "good" rating in women's oratory.

Annual Fine Arts Event To Feature John Ciardi

John Ciardi, poetry editor of the Saturday Review and professor of English at Rutgers University, is scheduled to visit campus on May 11 in conjunction with the Fine Arts Festival. He has published five volumes of his own poetry and a translation of Dante's Inferno.

As teacher, editor, translator, and critic — as well as practicing poet — he has worked energetically in the cause of modern poetry. He seeks a middle ground, in his theory of poetry, between what he calls "baroque poetry" ("that sort of writing addresses itself inward to other writing, rather than outward to the lives of men") and mere "poesy" — the trite, the sentimental, the commonplace.

Ciardi has regularly contributed poetry to Nation. His long-awaited translation of Dante's Inferno was published in 1954. His translation was rhymed, but did not follow Dante's terza rima scheme. Rather, Ciardi aimed to reproduce "the common speech of the original." He has recorded on LP records his reading of some cantos from his translation.

He will give an informal discussion in the Little Theatre at 4 p.m. on May 11 and a public lecture at 8 p.m. in North Hall Auditorium.

The Editor Speaks . . .

Howard R. Bowen, president of Grinnell College in Iowa, recently suggested that state-supported institutions should raise student fees to a point where they would be more nearly "in line" with the tuition assessed by the non tax-supported college.

Grinnell is a private college with an enrollment of approximately 1000 students and an endowment of more than $6,000,000.

President Bowen's argument is that by attracting only well-to-do students, the private colleges have no alternative but to become "snob" institutions. He said parents of many students in the state-supported colleges can afford to pay higher fees and shouldn't be given a "free ride".

It seems to us that the gentleman has missed the entire point of the state-supported institution. The "public" college was not founded as a "charity" for those who could not afford any other sort of institution. It was established because the public generally wanted education on a broader basis than was being provided or could be provided by the private institution. It was a natural outgrowth of the establishment of free public secondary schools and was for much the same purpose — to assure that education would be available to any young person who could serve himself and his fellow man better by attending college.

The publicly-supported college was established because society felt it benefited by having an increasingly higher percentage of its youth as college graduates. "Ability to pay" was not considered to be a factor.

As it has worked out, tax money spent for higher education is one of the few instances in which public funds are actually "invested," since the return from higher incomes resulting from the educational opportunities afforded actually replaces the original tax outlay.

This, however, is beside the point. The argument for low fees at the state-supported college must continue to be one of "equal opportunity". The young person, regardless of economic status, should have the privilege of continuing his education. He must have it, not only for his own advancement, but because society needs a full development of all its potential "brain power." To deny this to some, merely on an economic basis, can do nothing but weaken our society at a time when we must do everything possible to strengthen it.

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

"TERM GRADES MUST BE OUT — SOME OF MY STUDENTS AREN'T SPEAKING TO ME TODAY."

Letters to the Editor...

Dear Fellow Young Dems,

I would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the members of the Young Democrats who attended the state Convention in Racine for their outstanding conduct and interest at the convention.

River Falls had one of the few delegations that had their entire group on the floor throughout the major portion of the convention. Special thanks goes to Bill Meulemans and Jim Lukasiwicz, our floor leader and floor whip, for an excellent job of seating the delegates and keeping the delegates organized.

I would also like to congratulate Bob Agranoff for a tremendous task well done. Bob showed his ability to preside over the convention as permanent convention chairman many times. He was able to display fairness and patience at all times.

Once again I would like to compliment the delegates for their behavior at the convention and also while traveling to and from Racine. I received many compliments from the guests and other delegates who attended. This was very helpful in adding to the prestige of the already recognized River Falls unit throughout the state, along with being recognized as the "Most Outstanding College Organization" in the state of Wisconsin.

Thank you for your cooperation and interest.

With highest regards,
Lawrence Ganslueker
Chairman, Young Dems

Kettlekamp to Teach Summer Field Zoology

Dr. B. H. Kettlekamp, head of the department of biology, will teach a course in Field Zoology this summer at the Trees for Tomorrow camp at Eagle River, Wis.

Muriel Humphrey Assists Husband On Campaign Tour

Muriel Humphrey, the first presidential candidate's wife to actually campaign for her husband, spoke in Senator Humphrey's behalf at 3 p.m. last Wednesday in North Hall Auditorium.

Besides being active in Senator Humphrey's campaign, she is a devoted mother to four children. She said "I know that this is a trying time for the senator and there is important legislation up for him in the senate, so I decided to help him out." She added, "I have a hard time comfortably telling people to vote for Humphrey. It's hard to evaluate your husband. But I find in listening to him I am as uplifted and inspired as anyone else. I feel his ideals should be working in government now."

Following her speech there was a coffee hour in Mrs. Humphrey's honor in the Student Center, after which she left for Milwaukee to meet other campaign engagements.

Professors Support Hubert H. Humphrey

Seven professors at the college have made statements in support of Sen. Hubert Humphrey in a flier distributed by the Students-for-Humphrey club on campus.

The instructors were Dr. Walker Wyman, history; James Crane, art; Dr. Francis Chisholm, English; Dr. Clarence Stolla, sociology; Dr. Edward Peterson, history; Dr. Richard Darr economics; and Dr. William Abbott, music.

Several other professors indicated their preference for Sen. Humphrey but did not present a written statement. They were Dr. Robert Bailey, sociology; Dr. Blanche Davis, speech; Peter Muto, chemistry; and Dr. Robert Berg, political science.

The professors were speaking as individuals and not for the college, which takes no stand on candidates. The statements were distributed on campus last week.

Dr. Wendlandt

Graduate Receives Grants For Chemistry Research

"Things have been going quite well for me since I graduated from River Falls College in 1950," says Dr. Wesley W. Wendlandt. And indeed they have, for since that time, Dr. Wendlandt has received grants for his studies and research totaling more than $148,000.

Dr. Wendlandt is now a chemistry professor at the Texas Technological College at Lubbock, Texas.

His most recent grant has been in the amount of $20,000 from the Robert A. Welch Foundation of Houston, for research in inorganic chemistry.

His two-year project is specifically concerned with the effect of heat on a class of compounds known as the aquo-ammine chromium III complexes.

When a reaction called thermal rearrangement takes place in a certain compound, Dr. Wendlandt will study the energy evolved or absorbed and try to determine how rapidly this happens at certain temperatures and why.

Besides the Welch grant, Dr. Wendlandt has received the following: from the U.S. Air Force, Office of Research and Development, $29,000; U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, $15,400; National Science Foundation, $78,000; Research Corporation, $5,000; and American Academy of Arts and Sciences, $1,000.

"Naturally, all of these projects have resulted in a large number of publications, about 80 to be exact, during the last five years", said Dr. Wendlandt in a recent letter.

Besides these research papers, he has published two laboratory textbooks, he has contributed articles to two handbooks of chemistry, and has written five short articles for an encyclopedia on science and technology, which will be published in the near future.

A native of LaCrosse, he took a position at Texas Tech in 1954 as assistant professor of chemistry. He received a bachelor of science degree in chemistry from River Falls, a M.S. degree in inorganic chemistry and a Ph. D. degree in analytical and inorganic chemistry from the State University of Iowa.

Dr. Wendlandt was a resident research associate for the Argonne National Laboratory. He is the director of National Cooperative Undergraduate research project and an abstractor for chemical abstracts.

Student Teacher Total Reaches 54

Fifty-four persons are presently engaged in putting theory into practice in the Campus School Laboratory. This is the greatest number of student teachers ever to work in the Campus School during a regular term, according to a recent release from Dr. Rowland Klink, Campus School Director.

Dr. Klink attributes much of the increase to "real opportunities in education, particularly elementary education." He said that "a greater sense of professionalization and a recognition of the importance of more knowledge has stimulated a number of students to return to complete their degree after having taught on a two or three-year license."

Noteworthy, too, is the number of men who are preparing to teach in elementary schools, the release said. There are 15 men working in the Campus School this quarter.

A two-week art workshop for teachers sponsored by the Wisconsin State Colleges will be held during the late summer in the wilderness area of the Chequamegon National Forest.

The workshop is scheduled from Aug. 14 to 27 at the State College system's Pigeon Lake Camp, which is located some five miles west of Drummond in the southern part of Bayfield County. Previously, the annual summer workshops were held at Ellison Bay.

Two single credit courses will be offered — a design workshop in which the student utilizes a variety of contemporary and traditional art materials and processes and works out individual problems in design; and a course exploring drawing and painting media with a natural emphasis upon landscape.

Credits — and a student may earn two during the session — are accepted by all of the nine Wisconsin State Colleges and arrangements may be worked out, on an individual basis, for their transfer to other institutions.

Professor Henry Runke of the art department at Wisconsin State College, Stevens point, will again serve as director of the summer art workshop. Information and application forms may be secured from him. Also serving on the instructional staff will be Professor Winifred Loomis, of the art department at Stout State College in Menomonie.

Total cost of the two-week workshop is $80. This includes the standard $10 per credit hour extension fee; a $25 per week charge for board and room; and a $10 charge for book rental, social activities and field trips.

Pigeon Lake Camp is within easy driving distance of the docks at Ashland and Superior, as well as numerous state parks, copper and iron mines and other spots of artistic value, and field trips are planned to many of these attractions.

ALBERT CONTRIBUTES ARTICLE ON PHYSICS TO 'TAYLOR MANUAL'

Prof. Earl Albert, chairman of the department of physics, is a contributor to The Taylor Manual, a 550-page book of advanced undergraduate laboratory experiments in physics. The book has just been released by Addison-Wesley Publishing Co., Inc. Prof. Albert's contributions were to the section on electronics.

Sponsored by the American Association of Physics Teachers, the volume was published as a memorial to the late Lloyd William Taylor, a member of the faculty at Oberlin College.

The primary function of the book is to help teachers in planning advanced undergraduate laboratory courses. The experiments were prepared by specialists in each area of physics. Included are new experiments as well as many that are well-known. The principal criterion for the inclusion of an experiment was its suitability for an advanced undergraduate course, according to the editor, Thomas B. Brown of George Washington University.

RF Coffee Consumption Below National Average

by Neil H. Tollander

It is with deep regret that after complete investigation I have found that the students of River Falls State College are below the national average in coffee consumption.

If we were to keep up with the national average we should be drinking 36,400 gallons of coffee each school year, excluding weekends, instead of the 9,000 gallons that are now being consumed. If we consider that half the coffee consumed is in other places than the cafeteria, the student body still has a deficit of 18,000 gallons each school year.

For college students who intend to join the nation's labor force, this is a serious charge. How are we as future college graduates going to explain our incapacity to consume even the average amount of coffee? It would seem that our education is in some way lacking when we have been taught so many things about our society and not yet attained the basic skill of coffee drinking. This is especially true in our society where the "coffee break" has become more institutionalized than the "Saturday night bath".

If we hope to become a part of the nation's labor force we must acquire this basic skill or forever be branded as odd balls, or even worse than that, "individualists". Think how a problem like this could affect the Wisconsin State College at River Falls if it became a school known for training individualists!!

One can only imagine how large this problem could become if this practice continues. What if the facts were known by the American public? Still worse, what if the countries in South America were to find out? Think of the demonstrations which might have taken place while the President of the United States was down there trying to improve relations with these countries if they had known that some of the American people were not using their share of their most important export!

If this would happen there would no doubt be investigations to find out why we as students at River Falls State College are not drinking our share of coffee. How could we answer the charges except to admit our guilt? No doubt we would be accused of not carrying on the American traditions if we were found guilty of engaging in this subversive activity of opposing the "coffee break".

Students, faculty members, and the administration must do something soon to correct this problem before people outside of the college learn the facts.

I suggest that as a start to solving the problem, all students and faculty members should be told the problem and the consequences which may follow if the problem isn't solved in the near future. Each person must be reminded that it is only by drinking together that the problem can be solved.

Possible solutions would include scholarships for those who consume the most coffee, coffee carnivals, coffee drinking marathons, longer breaks between classes, and weekly coffee drinking contests with compulsory attendance.

I have now outlined the problem, the possible consequences, and given you a hint of some possible solutions; it is now the duty of each and every one of us to take positive action to eliminate this problem as quickly as possible.

Remember, one of America's oldest traditions is at stake. So don't let sleepless nights, upset stomachs, or ulcers keep you from preserving this most noble of all American traditions, the "coffee break".

Book Store Has Talking Magazine

Last spring when the 1959 MELETEAN came out with a record in the back cover, it seemed like an entirely new innovation in the concept of magazine publications. Available at the college book store now, however, is another such magazine, and this one literally talks!

"Echo", advertised as a magazine you play on your own phonograph, combines printed pages and records, and has a hole in the middle of the whole thing so it can easily be placed on a regular record player.

Magazines of this type are rapidly appearing all over the world. Sight and sound magazines in other countries include the French "Sonorama", the Italian "Musichiere", and three such Japanese publications.

The European magazines stress news, while the American "Echo" will primarily concentrate on entertainment. In the current issue are an interview with Mary Martin, a song by the Trapp Family Singers, a monologue by comic Shelley Berman, an interview with and a song by the Kingston trio, and an excerpt from the late Mayor of New York Fiorello H. LaGuardia's reading of the comics during a newspaper strike.

At present, the magazine is a quarterly publication, and sells for $1.50 per issue.

RIVER FALLS

Student Tells of European Sights

by Harry P. Higgins, Jr.

Gary Pederson, sophomore from New Richmond, likes to travel. Every week he travels over 500 miles commuting to River Falls from New Richmond, and to his night janitor job at Minnesota Mining's Research Laboratory just outside of St. Paul.

Gary, or "Pot", as he is affectionately called by his friends, has been on the move most of his life. "I took my first trip when I was ten years old when my parents took me on a two week vacation to Winnipeg, Canada," he says. The summer after that he visited the Black Hills and saw the largest buffalo herd in the United States.

When "Pot" was sixteen, he decided he wanted to see sunny California. "I caught the bus in New Richmond," he said, "and three days later I was in Los Angeles." While in California, Gary saw the premiere of "This is Cinerama", and also visited the world famous San Diego Zoo. He liked California so much he has decided to move out there when he has graduated.

The Isle of Capri

When he was nineteen, Gary saw the long arm of Uncle Sam beckoning, and joined the army for two years. After spending five months at Fort Chaffee, Arkansas, he shipped out for La Rochelle, France. "I found quite a bit of anti-Americanism in France; in the city where I was stationed, half of the people were sworn communists," he said.

While he was in Europe, "Pot" continued his travels. "On my first two week pass, I took a trip through the lower half of the continent with two of my buddies. Our first stop was Ennsbruck, Austria. From there we went on to see the City of Canals, Venice, Italy.

One of the high spots of his stay in Venice was eating at Harry's Bar, one of the most exclusive restaurants in the city. At Harry's, he sat next to the table occupied by Nobel Prize winner Ernest Hemingway.

From Venice he next visited Rome. "The one thing I remember most about Rome was the beautiful Trevi Fountain, which was made famous in the movie, "Three Coins in the Fountain", he said.

"The most beautiful place I've ever been" is the way Gary describes the Isle of Capri. "I saw the summer home Julius Ceasar, and also stage and screen star Gracie Field's mansion," Pederson said.

Headhunters

Gary's face breaks out into a broad grin when Denmark is mentioned — or better yet Copenhagen. "Copenhagen is the greatest city I've ever seen. The people are exceptionally clean, the women are beautiful, and all the people I met were extremely friendly and outgoing," he stated.

In Copenhagen, he visited the famous Tivola Park. "There are twenty-three restaurants within the park, and the Copenhagen Symphony Orchestra gives concerts there twice a week during the summertime," he said.

Another subject which warms the heart of the red headed scholar-janitor is golfing. "While I was stationed at Fort Chaffee, I played quite a bit of golf with Mason Rudolph, who last year was voted rookie of the year by the Professional Golfer's Association," Gary said.

"When I was in Europe, I played on the Post golf team, and was lucky enough to play golf in almost every major city on the continent," he added. Just before leaving for the United States, Gary competed in the European Service Championships held at Tripoli, Libya, in North Africa. "It was hotter than blazes and I didn't score too well, but I did receive some consolation — I scored my first hole-in-one," he said.

Pederson said he noticed quite a transition between Europe and Africa. "Tripoli is a very rough city; they forbid taking pictures of their women. The week before we arrived an American got his head cut off for trying to do it, so we left our cameras at home," he smiled.

Looking Ahead

Aside from golfing, "Pot" confines his hobbies to water skiing, hunting, fishing, and baseball. The red head is known in New Richmond as one of the town's foremost boosters of the Milwaukee Braves. In fact, he was so heartbroken after the Braves lost the pennant to the Dodgers in the playoffs last fall that he refused to read a sports page for the next two weeks.

When asked what he likes best about attending River Falls, Gary replied that his main reason for going to school here is the close teacher-student relationship.

Gary's future plans are to attend River Falls for another year and then transfer to the University of Minnesota. He is majoring in economics and minor-ing in psychology, and would like to go into sales work when he graduates.

Falcon Fanfares

Marvin Gorres

Marvin Gorres, one of the men about campus who deserves a Falcon Fanfare this week, is the Wisconsin State College Conference wrestling champ in the 130 pound class.

"Marv," as he is often called, hails from Amery, Wisconsin, and is a freshman at Wisconsin State College of River Falls. He has his sights set on a non-teaching agriculture major, and has not as yet decided upon a minor.

Becoming a state champ did not surprise anyone who knew of Marv's athletic prowess in high school, for it was there that he became engrossed in the sport, and in his senior year ranked as one of the top wrestlers in the state in his weight division. Although wrestling is his favorite sport, Marv is quite adept in the field of track, for he was a member of the track team for two years in high school.

Having compiled a record of twelve wins, three losses, and one tie, Marv believes that his victory over McPherson of LaCrosse for the state championship was one of his better matches. Being congratulated by the coach after winning the championship was a high spot in his wrestling career.

Next year Marv plans on being part of an even stronger team than the present.

Dave Garlie

Our neighboring state of Minnesota lost an excellent wrestler when David Garlie decided to attend River Falls. Garlie, who is another state champion, has been competing in wrestling meets ever since he was a freshman in high school. While attending high school, Dave also played football, baseball, and participated in track.

Dave, a native of Northfield, posted a record of twelve wins, three losses, and two ties in his first year of wrestling in college competition. The five foot eleven inch Garlie says that defeating his opponent from the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee to become state champ in the 157 pound class was the crowning point of the season for him.

Since Dave is enrolled in pre-veterinary medicine, he will have to transfer to another school to complete his major, and has decided on the University of Minnesota. Until that time, he plans to defend his present title.

Next year Dave feels that River Falls will have the team to beat in the conference, but will face stronger non-conference competition.

I-M NOTICE

Interested persons may sign up in North Hall Basement for intramural tennis, golf, or swimming. Teams wishing to participate in volleyball and softball leagues this spring may turn in team lists to the coach's office this week. More details will be published later.

Fran Polsfoot's All-Stars Face Texas Cow Girls Here April 7

Meet The Coach

by Ed E. Schlumpf

In the spring of 1957, the late Phil Belfiori, Athletic Director of the college, announced that plans were being laid for the addition of interscholastic wrestling to the college athletic program.

The following fall Ben Bergsrud greeted a handful of inexperienced lads in sweatsuits and wrestling had officially started as a recognized sport at River Falls.

Two weeks ago, less than three years after its earliest conception, River Falls wrestling reached its highest peak as the Falcons smashed their way to the Wisconsin State College Conference title at Stevens Point.

The man directly responsible for this sudden surge to stardom is a hustling ball of fire named Byron James—the coach of the Falcon grapplers.

James made his first effort at college coaching a success by using the same tactics that helped him compile a 31-6 record in five years of high-school coaching in Iowa, Colorado, and Wyoming—namely, plenty of hard work with emphasis on fundamentals and conditioning.

James never wrestled in high school yet competed for three years on the Iowa State teams of 1946-49 that lost on dual meet during that period.

His coach, Dave McCuskey, is one of the outstanding wrestling authorities in the nation and James credits him with teaching him most of what he knows about wrestling. McCuskey was the 1956 Olympic Wrestling Team Coach for the United States. His college teams have finished lower than 4th in the national NCAA Wrestling Tournaments only twice since 1945. When James graduated in 1949, McCuskey had coached 30 national champions and has had at least one per year under his guidance ever since.

The Falcons finished with a 10-2-1 record in dual meets this year in addition to winning the conference title. James called it, "My most gratifying year of coaching primarily because of the fast development of the boys. When the season started I doubted whether we could win a match but the tremendous desire and will-to-work shown by every member of the squad was really inspiring." And we might add that his "dedicated individuals" were probably motivated by James' admission that "I've never cut a man from my team in six years of coaching."

After eating, sleeping, and breathing wrestling from November until March, James should be entitled to a rest. But unfortunately, such is not the case.

Last week came the news that James had been selected as one of the judges for the U. S. Olympic Wrestling Team tryout finals to be held in Ames, Iowa April 27-30. And at the conference meeting held in Madison two weeks ago, it was unanimously voted to hold next year's conference meet at River Falls.

So James, who has three sons and four daughters to keep him busy during off school hours, will be plenty busy this spring. He's also assistant track coach and that takes plenty of hard work too. Still he's busy drawing up plans for next year's program, talking to promising high school wrestlers, and reffing area meets. As defending champions, the Falcons can't afford to slow down now. With James at the helm you can bet they won't.

SPORTS WRA

by Ginny Rogers

The Hot Shots continued on in their bid for the WRA basketball championship. Monday evening they came out on top to make their record four wins and one loss. The Dribble Drips were close throughout the game but couldn't seem to get enough power to pull ahead. The Hot Shots won with a score of 47 to 38. Top scoring Hot Shot was Nancy Fox with 24 points. Rosemary Stesniak had 12 points and Barb Blaisdell had 11. Barb Meyer put in 16 points for the Dribble Drips and Toots Hunter and Carolyn Brown both had 10.

Games for tonight have the Hot Shots facing their top opponents, the Odd Balls, at 6 p.m. At 7:30 p.m. the Supersonic Six will face the Globetrippers.

WRA swimming is finished for the year and the North Hall pool will be open for women on Thursday evenings.

The world famous Texas Cow Girls are coming to River Falls on April 7 to take on Fran Polsfoot's All-Stars in St. Bridget's gym. The team, made up of some of the nation's top female talent, is in its tenth season.

The Texas Cow Girls are known coast to coast for their basketball ability and comedy antics and have played small town teams and big name teams alike. In 1958 they played against Abe Saperstein's Harlem Globe Trotters. The Texas Cow Girls have appeared in many of the nation's top arenas, such as San Francisco's Cow Palace and Madison Square Garden.

The original team came out of El Paso, Texas, and was made up of all Texas talent. Since the team started their nation-wide tours they have assembled some of the nation's top feminine talent.

The Texas Cow Girls are known for their colorful western type dress, both on and off the court. They appear on the floor attired in western boleros, ten gallon hats, holsters and six shooters. They innovate a lot of comedy into their basketball show, such as roping a bashful opponent with a lariat, shooting the referee, and blindfold shooting.

The Texas Cow Girls play an average of 150 games per season and travel over 40,000 miles per season in the United States, Canada, and Mexico. Against male opposition they have managed to win 70% of their games. Their season usually starts in October and continues through April.

Members of the Texas Cow Girl team include Joan Rupp, Judy Price, Linda Yearby, Virginia Hill, Mary Elverson, Harlean Hudson, and Sue Patterson.

Members of Fran Polsfoot's All-Stars are Ben Bergsrud, Ed Cina, Dave Herum, Jerry Carter, Jack Omer, Jim Hallen and Polsfoot.

Lauber Omitted From All-Loop Selections At Conference Meeting

by Warren Rogers

Wisconsin State College Conference basketball champions, the University of Wisconsin at Milwaukee, placed two men on this year's all conference basketball squad. Repeating from last year's select team was Jerry Grochowski; the other Cardinal honored was Dave Vincent.

Seniors selected were Gar Ammerman from LaCrosse (a repeater from last year), Tom Davis of Platteville, and Jim Patriotto of Superior, Ron Dibellius, from Oshkosh (conference scoring champ), Al Urness of Eau Claire, Grochowski, and Vincent are Juniors.

Three sophomores were also chosen: J. P. Fisher, White-water; Fred Segglink, Stout; and Henry Sampson, Stevens Point.

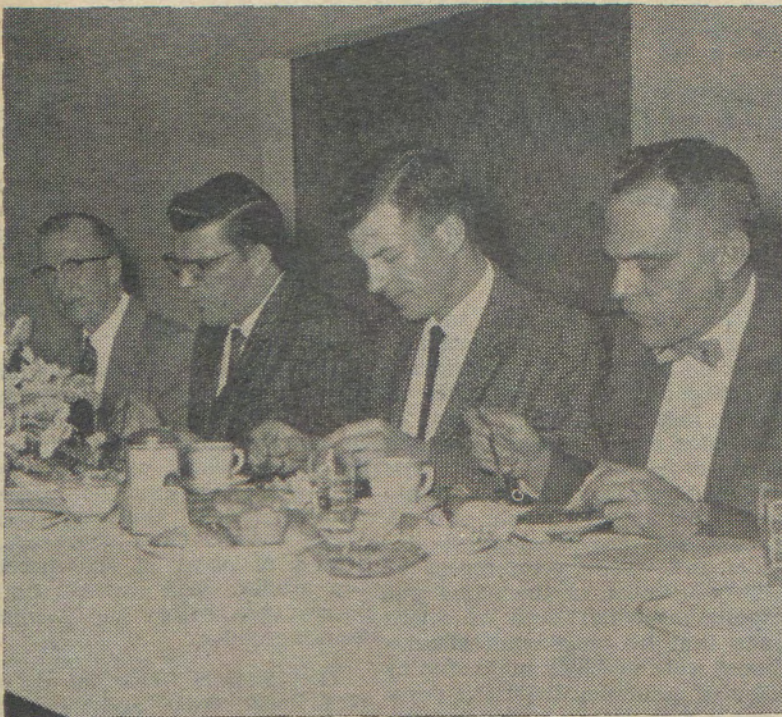

Our own Falcons were the only team not placing a man on the select squad. Strikingly missing from the squad is Mick Lauber, a first string guard and forward for River Falls for four consecutive years. As a freshman starter he hit for a 15.7 per game average and at a 42 per cent clip from the field. Lauber continued his fine caliber of ball as a sophomore with a 14.7 average.

Playing only a half a season as a junior he dropped to a 8.1 average and then jumped back into form this year finishing with a 15 points per game average. He closed out his basketball career totaling 1037 points, all-conference at least in the eyes of River Falls basketball followers.

'Most Outstanding' Rating Goes to Local Dem Group

The River Falls Young Democrats club was chosen the "Most Outstanding College Organization" in Wisconsin at the State Convention of Young Democrats in Racine March 18 to 20.

The group was chosen on the basis of the number of activities sponsored, the nature and asset value of the activities, membership, and their overall contribution to the Democratic Party. The award was presented to chairman Larry Gansluckner by state Democratic Party Chairman, Patrick Lucey, at the Saturday banquet.

Wauwautosa-West Allis received an award for being the most outstanding non-college organization.

Four members of the River

Falls club were elected to positions on the state Executive Board for the coming year. Larry Gansluckner, senior from Plum City, was elected on a unanimous ballot as executive vice-president. In addition, he will have charge of printing the state Y-Dem Newsletter. Carl Duch, senior from Sarona, was re-elected for a second term as treasurer. He also received a unanimous ballot.

At a caucus of the northern congressional districts, Lyle Hofacker, senior from Elmwood, was elected to the Executive Board as the northern liaison officer. Ron LaGrander, junior from Chili, was chosen to serve as the 9th Congressional District chairman for the coming year.

Bloodmobile to Visit River Falls April 6

The Red Cross Bloodmobile will visit the Congregational church of River Falls on Wednesday, April 6, from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m. The River Falls chairman urges students and faculty members of the college.

Mr. Page's first aid class will have charge of campus solicitation.

Anyone between the ages of 18 and 60 may donate blood, providing they are in good health. Blood donors must never have suffered from malaria, jaundice, diabetes, or bleeding ulcers, and must weigh at least 110 pounds.

Unmarried students under 21 must have a consent slip signed by a parent or guardian. These slips should be sent or taken home promptly for signature. They must be in the donor's possession when he reports to the blood center.

Donors may eat a normal diet prior to giving blood.

During the past year, 606 pints of blood were supplied without charge to residents of Pierce County by the St. Paul Blood Center. Without this service, each pint of blood would have cost the patient $25 to $35.

There is an increasing demand for whole blood for use in cases of surgery, accident, and certain medical diseases. Therefore, it is urgent that each county increase the number of pints of blood donated each year in order that the demand for whole blood can be met.

ROBERT F. KENNEDY CITES CORRUPTION OF LABOR LEADERS

"There is no greater need today than responsible men and women directing their careers toward public service as the first and most rewarding work to be accomplished," said Robert F. Kennedy, former Chief Counsel of the U. S. Senate Rackets Committee, in a speech in the Little Theater last Wednesday evening.

"In the past decade rot has been eating away our nation's moral fiber. The Senate Rackets Committee exposed gangsterism and corruption in some of our strongest and most influential unions and corporations," Kennedy continued. "But that is not all. Physical vigor and toughness that welded our people into a great nation proud to stand up for justice in international affairs become less apparent," he said.

Kennedy cited several cases of labor leader corruption, especially in Jimmy Hoffa's Teamster Union. He did make it clear that though the Teamster top leadership was "rotten" with corruption, most rank and file labor union men were good, honest men. He also pointed out a certain amount of management corruption — making deals with crooked labor leaders to help that management drive some legitimate competitor out of business.
