HOUSING

IMPROVES

21 Apartments, 10 Trailers Ready For Veterans

Prospects for more adequate housing for college students with families are brighter for the fall term, it has been announced, with the remodeling of the Barracks into twenty-one modern apartments nearing completion and with the recent installation on the campus near the Manual Arts building of ten trailer houses acquired by the city of River Falls.

Completion of the remodeling of the old Barracks, just south of the Manual Arts building is promised within two or three weeks, and the twenty-one new apartments available for veterans housing created thereby will comprise three two-room apartments, with the rest being of one room. Twelve of the one room apartments will be thirteen by twenty in size, and six others will be thirteen by twenty-two feet. Each of these one-room apartments will contain a built-in table, cabinets, and kitchen plumbing. A clothes closet and a small bathroom with a shower, complete the lay-out of these apartments.

The three two-room apartments, it is said, comprise a ten by thirteen bedroom, a thirteen by twenty foot combination room, in addition to the clothes closet and bath.

The work of remodeling the barracks has included adequate lighting, both artificial and natural and the sound proofing of all walls.

In addition, the college office announces arrangements have been made for the apartments to be rented partly furnished if desired, this furniture to include an electric refrigerator, hot plate, and possibly some chairs and a studio couch. Heat for the apartments, it is said, will be furnished by the college heating plant, and electricity, heat, and water are all included in the rental charge.

Laundry arrangements are provided for by fully-equipped laundry room installed in the building.

The ten trailer houses placed on the campus for the use of veterans families were secured by the city of River Falls from the federal government and are designed only as temporary relief of the housing shortage. Present plans call for the early erection of a utility house nearby to be used by occupants of these units.

MELETEAN

OUT TUESDAY

The 1946 Meletean, dedicated to the men of the college who lost their lives in the service of their country, will be available for distribution tomorrow afternoon and Wednesday in South Hall, Miss Maud Latta, faculty sponsor, has announced.

War Records are included, as far as information was available, of the more than 1150 faculty, alumni, and former students who served in the armed forces, with portraits and accounts of all the forty-five gold star men. In addition, there is a tribute to President Ames for his work at the college, an illustrated account of the activities of the school during the year, and portraits of all the students.

The committee of faculty and students working on the project experienced difficulties due to the shortages of materials, and paper; and were hampered by the printers strike in Minneapolis during May. The delay in the publication was therefore necessary.

GRADS PLACED

Eleven 1946 graduates of the college have been placed in teaching positions for next fall, Mr. Russell Johnston, director of teacher training and head of the teacher placement service, announced recently. These appointments are in addition to the twenty announced previously.

The graduates and their positions follow:

Louelyn Reiss, social science, to Rice Lake; Marian Jacobson, second grade, to Ellsworth; Lois Bernd, English, to Hillsboro; Barbara Harris, English and Latin, to Ellsworth; Shirley Wiff, English, to Wonewoc; Mrs. Mary Paulson Francis, English, to Colfax; Louise Melbye, English, to Barron; Leona Wohlk, intermediate, to Chetek; and Anna Mae Hoseid, kindergarten, to Rice Lake, all in Wisconsin. Two out of state positions were filled: Virginia Smith, intermediate, to Ontario, California; and Shirley Schillberg, art, to Clifton, Arizona.

WORKSHOP

TO STUDY

REVISIONS

Guest Professors Lecture On Language Arts Curriculum

Workshop in Language Arts under the direction of Mr. Francis P. Chisholm and Miss Gladys M. Zak, a new class presented for the first time during the present summer session and designed to help in-service teachers with their problems, is working in cooperation with the Wisconsin Curriculum Development program and is being coordinated with a similar workshop at the University of Wisconsin. From June 27 to July 3, Mr. Ralph E. Jolliffe, superintendent of schools at New Richmond, Wisconsin, has been acting as consulting instructor in education with the class.

There have been small workshops at the College before, but the present class is the first one ever to work directly with the State Curriculum program. It is hoped that through this workshop the College can be made the consulting center in curriculum development in this region.

A number of speakers have been on the campus during the past two weeks to serve as guest professors in the class, with the first one being Mr. Gordon Boardman, curriculum editor of the State Department of Public Instruction, followed by Mr. Arnold Turner, of the Junior Red Cross.

This week, Mr. Ralph E. Jolliffe, New Richmond schools superintendent, is lecturing each day on "Administration Problems of the Language Arts Program."

Message From The President

It is a pleasure to assume the presidency of the River Falls State Teachers College. For many decades it has had an enviable record in the field of teacher education. It is my hope to continue the fine traditions of the institution and the policies so ably administered by President Ames.

This is an era of growth and reform in collegiate education. The possibilities of expansion and the opportunities for service are limitless. It is my hope that the college may take an active part in meeting the needs of the times. To this end I solicit the support and council of the student body and the faculty.

MUSIC DUO, LECTURES ON AGENDA

Mexico and Europe's Future To be Discussed, Music and Movies Scheduled

Two lectures, movies, and a pianist - baritone duo are scheduled to round out the series of assembly programs being presented during the Summer Session, it has been announced. The March of Time movies, "Portugal" and "India" are scheduled for tomorrow.

An afternoon lecture by Professor John Wolf of the history department at the University of Minnesota has been tentatively set for July 12. His topic will be "Whither Europe?"

"The Real Mexico" is the title of a lecture to be given by Miss Cleo Dawson, a native of the Rio Grande valley, which will be presented with movies the evening of July 16 at eight o'clock. Miss Dawson is well known as the author of the book, "She Came to the Valley."

Musical entertainment with Edward Stack, baritone, and Einar Krantz, pianist, in recital, is planned for Thursday morning, July 18, at ten o'clock. Mr. Stack has sung with Chicago Civic Opera Company a number of times.

Four programs of varied interest have already been presented at assemblies during the session.

TO SHOW

'AG' PLOTS

Plans have been completed for a field day to be held at the Teachers College farm on Monday, July 8. Farmers, vocational agricultural teachers, and county agents of this area will meet to inspect and discuss experimental plots containing the outstanding new varieties of field crops that have recently been developed by agricultural experiment stations of Wisconsin, Minnesota, North Dakota, South Dakota, Iowa, Michigan, and Canada.

This season marks the beginning of a testing program started by the Department of Agriculture of the River Falls State Teachers College to determine yielding ability and general adaptability of new varieties of oats, barley, corn, and legumes under conditions in the northwestern part of the state.

The Agronomy Department of the University of Wisconsin is cooperating by supplying seed of all varieties, many of which have not been released by the various experiment stations except for experimental purposes. Mr. Melvin Wall of the department of agriculture is in charge of the experimental program.

Demonstration plots of potatoes and soybeans adjoining the college experimental plots have been established by Pierce County Agricultural Agent H. G. Seyforth and St. Croix County Agent Omar Peck.

There are four purposes of this project. The first is to secure samples of each variety for class work. The second is to get relative yields of each variety in this section of the state. The final main purpose is to find if any diseases are prevalent in this section of the state, but which do not show up at the state experiment stations. It is hoped that farmers will profit, further, through observation of this work.

AFT. PICNIC

ENDS YEAR

Annual Outing Will Feature Student Softball

Final event of the Summer Session social activities calendar will be an all-school picnic to be held in Glen Park the afternoon of Thursday, July 11, with the feature attraction being a softball game between two teams composed of college students, the social committee has announced.

Tentative plans have been made to reserve the Park swimming pool for an hour before supper for the exclusive use of college students.

Members of the committee further affirm that the most important part of the picnic, the food, has been planned for.

Composing the student-faculty committee arranging for the occasion are Coach George Schlagenhaut, Miss Mary Louise Braustad, Mr. O. W. Sjowall, and Miss Nathalie Delander, of the faculty, and Miss Elaine Stucky, Miss Frances Berger, Mr. Kenneth Poppy, and Mr. Terry Doonan, students.

ART SHOW

ON TODAY

An exhibition of twenty-one reproductions of American watercolors, oils and gouaches will be displayed in the Art Room in South Hall for two weeks beginning today, July 1, Miss Howard reports.

Very familiar paintings by Adolph Dehn, Grant Wood, Thomas Benton, Leon Kroll and others are included. Biographical data on the artist will be attached to each print.

The exhibit was loaned by the Associated American Artists with agreement that two of these prints will be purchased by the Art Department.

All students are invited to see the exhibit, and to vote for their choices of paintings to be kept, Miss Howard said.

Ave Atque Vale

Upon my retirement from the River Falls Teachers College, I wish to express my appreciation of the splendid support and cooperation on the part of students of the College throughout the years of my service. More than this, I wish to say that my association with the students has been a source of deep pleasure and one that has yielded many lasting friendships.

This is in no sense a farewell as I expect to continue my interest in the College and the thousands of students who have been graduated from it during my period of service. I count upon the same spirit of loyalty in the future as has characterized the past. This spirit will be instrumental in building a greater and stronger River Falls State Teachers College.

J. H. Ames

"The three B's, Brains, Books, and Bricks, are needed to make a good college," said Dr. Eugene H. Kleinpell, who has assumed the duties of president of River Falls State Teachers College today, in humorously explaining his theory of education.

Dr. Kleinpell, who came here from the presidency of the State Teachers College in Valley City, North Dakota, while feeling that he is too new here really to have many definite plans worked out, said that he already has several projects that he hopes to carry out for the benefit of the school.

Dr. Eugene H. Kleinpell

One of the problems confronting him is that of proper student housing. The size of the enrollment next year will have to depend on the number of rooms that can be found for students next fall, he said, and he hopes to conduct a campaign with the aid of some community organization, in addition to the college groups. Another problem he will work on is that of getting more buildings on the campus. The state legislature has appropriated some money and it is hoped, he said, that more will be forthcoming. Tentative plans are for a building to house the science department.

Dr. Kleinpell received his B.A. degree from the University of Iowa his hometown having been Monona, Iowa, his master's degree from the University of Chicago, and his Ph. D. degree, in history, from Ohio State University.

Beginning his teaching at Kemper Military Academy in Boonville, Missouri, where he was assistant football coach and teacher of English and economics, he has since been a member of the faculties of Northwest Missouri State Teachers College, Northern Montana Teachers College, and Morningside College, in Iowa, before taking up his duties with the Valley City Teachers College. Dr. Kleinpell has also, during the summer of 1941, acted as consultant in the general education workshop at the University of Chicago.

Dr. and Mrs. Kleinpell arrived in River Falls last Thursday evening, June 27. Dr. Kleinpell said their first impressions of both the city and the college are very favorable.

Student Voice Appears Newly

Streamlined For Summer Session

With the present special Summer Session issue, the editors initiate the STUDENT VOICE in its new format designed for greater readability and more extended news coverage of college activities.

Feeling that the retrenchment necessitated by the war can now be relaxed, the Administration has authorized numerous changes in order to keep abreast of the post-war requirements. Those who have been familiar with the "war baby" STUDENT VOICE will tell at a glance that some of the changes include, besides the doubling of paper size, a new nameplate and new style of type faces in the headlines. Further, we have made a most outstanding change on the editorial or feature, page. It is designed in the new four-column style for more rapid reading and greater appeal.

The present staff hopes it is continuing the high standards of writing style and high ideals of preceding years. The STUDENT VOICE is issued mainly to show trends in student thought, to print what we know to be facts, and to serve as an aid to successful student government. Seldom can a semi-monthly college newspaper print news, for the spoken word travels much faster than our presses. Our aim can remain in that respect only to present a chronicle of student activities, with an especial emphasis on future events.

Members of the staff join in thanking our contributors for their helpfulness and in hoping that the Summer Session Issue meets with your approval.

The Tragic Tale (Joke) Of The Extremely Shaggy Dog

Well, it seems that once upon a time (my dear old grandmother - the one with two heads - she always said two heads were better than one - always used to say that one should start off a story with "once upon a time"), well, once upon a time, it seems, there was a man who lived in Scranton, Pa., who had a very shaggy dog. This dog was very shaggy. In fact this shaggy dog was so darn shaggy that this man (we will henceforth, for clarity, call him Mr. A.) was of the opinion that this shaggy dog was the shaggiest shaggy dog that there probably was.

In fact Mr. A. believed so much that his shaggy dog was the shaggiest possible shaggy dog that he put an advertisement in the Scranton (in Pa., you recall) TIMES to the effect that he would challenge all comers to compare their shaggy dogs with his shaggy dog, the owner of the winner to win the title of Owner of the World's Most Shaggy Dog, and a further prize of 10 Wheaties box tops. (And everybody knows how valuable they are.)

Now there was a man in New York who had a very shaggy shaggy dog, and this man (for the sake of clarity, we will henceforth call this second man Mr. B.) was of the heretical opinion that HIS shaggy dog was the shaggiest shaggy dog of all shaggy dogs in the world. So he brought his shaggy dog to Scranton and the two men (Mr. A. and Mr. B., you recall, I trust) compared their shaggy dogs. And Mr. A's shaggy shaggy dog was the shaggiest! Wasn't that nice?

That set up Mr. A (who owned the shaggy dog, you recall) something tremendous, and he was proud no end. (That reminds me: once upon a time there was a little ole worm who got his tail snipped off in a lawn mower; which made him sorry no end.) So Mr. A. put an advertisement in the London (that's in England) TIMES repeating his challenge to compare shaggy dogs with all comers.

Matriarchal

Many veterans on the campus have been heard to remark that the girls are running the school. Their complaint is that all the responsible positions in school, such as that of class presidencies, editor of the VOICE, editor of the Meletean, and others, are all held by girls. And a look at the facts will show that they are right.

But there is another side to the story. About four years ago the enrollment ratio of boys to girls effected an unbelievable change. Before that time there had always been more boys than girls on the campus, but then, all of a sudden, the majority of the boys went into service, leaving the girls to carry on.

At first, carrying on the activities and traditions seemed an impossibility to the girls. What about the Prom, the Homecoming, and all the school parties? Could they possibly be held without any male students around? It looked as if the social life would just have to come to a standstill until the boys came back.

But then, through the work and influence of different students and the encouragement of the faculty, the girls did manage to work up enthusiasm and to keep the social life going. By substituting a miniature Homecoming for the regular one, a formal Reception for a Prom, Carnivals and other affairs for regular dances, school life and activity continued at a fairly high level. The girls also took over the tasks of putting out the VOICE and the Meletean, of keeping as many clubs and organizations active as possible, and of trying in general to make college life interesting and worthwhile.

Now the ratio of boys to girls is getting back to normal, and it is only right that the boys should have their share in the management of the campus activities. In fact, most of the girls are anxious to give up their positions; they enjoyed taking over while the boys were gone but now that the boys are back, it's different. When new elections are held, and new appointments are made, the boys undoubtedly will be given responsible positions. They should, however, realize that the girls have done an outstanding job these past three or four years in keeping the campus life going. It will be much easier for the entire student body to go on now with their clubs and activities than it would have been if the girls had dropped all attempts to keep the organizations and traditions going.

When he really thinks it over, the veteran should thank the girls for what they have been able to do instead of criticising them for their activities.

Finally, on July 13th (and make a note of that date, because it is very, very important for our story), a man came from Sao Paulo (that's in Brazil, where they speak Portuguese, unless they're tourists, and then they don't speak Portuguese, unless they happen to know Portuguese, which very few people do. Except Portuguese people, that is, and Brazilians) to compare his shaggy dog with Mr. A's shaggy dog. He said, and I quote, from the Portuguese, "O meu cao e mais shaggy que o do senhor," unquote.

Now this angered Mr. A. no end. So he went to get his shaggy dog who lived in a little box in the front parlor. "Here Shaggy," (that was the shaggy dog's name) he called. "Come here, Shaggy!" But his shaggy dog did not answer!

Oh! Unhappy day!
Mr. A. searched all thru the front parlor and under the sofa and in the hall closet and just everywhere!! And the shaggy dog wasn't to be found. "Here, Shaggy, Shaggy!" called Mr. A. with anguish and fear mingled in his breaking voice. And he looked in all the rooms in the house and under all the beds, but no Shaggy!

Mr. A. was frantic! And Mr. H., from Brazil, was triumphant. "Ha!" said Mr. H. (in Portuguese), "I win by default! Default is that you can't find your shaggy shaggy dog."

Mr. A. groaned. Mr. A. wailed. And he called his shaggy dog. Suddenly! he heard a noise in the upstairs hall closet. He raced up the stairs, and fearfully looked at the closet door. He was afraid to open it. Simply terrible noises were coming from the hall closet. They sounded like nothing in this world. Finally, however, he gathered his forces together and slowly opened the door a crack and looked in.

AND WHAT DO YOU THINK MET HIS EYES?

That's right, the Shaggy Dog.

STUDENT POLL

Considerable discussion has been stirred up in the last few months in regard to the Student Senate's method of perpetuating itself. Their method is this: the members compile a list of about ten or twelve names from which the student body elects seven members for the coming year. This method is apparently contrary to the constitution of the Student Senate, which was drawn up in 1937. The constitution states in Article II, Section I, "Seven members shall be nominated and elected by the student body at large." The members have been elected by the student body, but "nominated" by the Student Senate. Either the Senate should change their procedure or the constitution should be changed to fit the current procedure.

One other criticism is that the names of the members who will be back the following year are all put up for nomination. Some people feel that this is unfair, while others are in favor of it.

Another criticism is that members have not kept abreast of the times and haven't followed their purpose, which is "to promote the best interests of the college and to develop a spirit of co-operation and fellowship throughout the school."

A poll has been conducted during the past week for the purpose of getting the opinions of different members of the campus on this problem. The results are below.

A member of the Student Senate of the past year has this to say: "I believe that the most effective method of electing student senators would be to have a senate appointed committee (chosen from the student body) nominate the candidates for the Senate election. This would bring the election closer to the student body and yet eliminate the possibilities of selected group control by a few of the more aggressive members of the student body, which might readily result if nominations were made directly from the assembly floor. I would like to emphasize this latter point especially. One can say that it is the student's own fault if they don't nominate their candidate when they have the opportunity, yet there will always be those who will hesitate to state their opinions and will find themselves dominated by those whose only asset, perhaps, is their aggressiveness."

A student says: "A democratic method of choosing senate members seems to me would be to have nominations from the floor in the assembly one week and hold the election from these nominations the following week. To prepare students for this and to get them to use good judgement, a list of characteristics essential for a good senate member could be posted on the bulletin boards. This would give students a chance to think over the possible candidates, and it would eliminate snap nominations that might not be the persons sane choice.

"I do think that the names of the senators who are coming back should automatically go up for re-election. Because of the complexity of the student senate work, I feel there should be some members carried over from the previous year to help get started."

A veteran says: "It seems to me that members of the Student Senate should be nominated by a nominating committee made up of students from the entire college which would be picked by the officers of the Student Senate. This committee should have the privilege of nominating anyone they feel is qualified. If they feel that members of the incumbent senate should go up for re-election, they could put up their names. If they wanted all new candidates, it would be their privilege to put up an entire new list of candidates."

A faculty member says: "Members of the Student Senate really should know their constitution before they start functioning. The Senate of last year had a difficult job before them. During the year, many former students returned to the campus. The Senate didn't seem to sense the importance of the situation - that of the boys coming back and wanting to find the campus functioning the way it was when they left."

"On the other hand, one needs to recognize the difficulties the Student Senate faced in general student enthusiasm. In the preceding years they had to work with a small group of students who didn't seem to show enough interest in the social life of the school to keep all the activities going. As a result there was a general slackness and let-down in the social life.

United Nations Series

Issues Volume On Belgium

"Belgium", the newest volume of the United Nations Series published by the University of California Press, upholds the fine traditions of scholarship and readability set by previous volumes of the series, and offers an interesting account for the general reader of the history and civilization of this comparatively little-known country whose impact upon Western Civilization in the past, has been great, and whose influence in the One World of the future promises to be of equal importance.

The United Nations Series, as described by Mr. Robert J. Kerner, general editor, "is dedicated to the task of mutual understanding among the Allies and to the achievement of successful cooperation . . . in the coming peace." The present volume, edited by Jan-Albert Goris, and written by him and 27 other Belgian, American, and Dutch writers and scholars, has as its endeavor the furthering of understanding among the United Nations in order that they may "march triumphantly through total victory to lasting peace."

A country which took such an active part in Resistance Work during the World War II German Occupation and of whose people General Reeder, the president of the German Military Administration complained, "The Belgians refuse to submit to discipline and always try to evade the law. In Germany everybody submits to discipline, even when the people do not like it," must have a long tradition of free thought and democratic principles, deeply entrenched in the national consciousness. "Belgium", by tracing the historical genesis of Belgian civilization and thought, explains more adequately than any other book readily available to the general reader, the strong historical basis for present-day Belgian democracy.

The book is not, however, simply an historical analysis; the influence of education, art, and literature, both in the French and the Flemish languages, is treated so as to show the trends in Belgian thought.

Perhaps of special interest to the veteran who lived and fought in that part of the European Theatre during the war, will be the chapters on the architecture of the country (chapter 19) and on Belgium under the Occupation (chapter 29). In the former are described the many fine architectural beauties which were to be found in towns throughout the path of the American army: Arlon, Mous, Liege, Halle, etc., as well as Ghent, Brussels, and Antwerp.

In the latter chapter is traced the rise and growth of the resistance movement. While a comprehensive and "over-all picture" of unorganized Belgian resistance is given in the chapter, it is to be noted, in this connection, that information presented concerning organized groups such as the Armee Blanche, etc., receives but scant recognition. Perhaps at the time the book was composed and printed, not so much was known about the great work of these daring groups which facilitated so much the intelligence work of the Allied armies, both before and after the Invasion.

To Dr. Kleinpell

The STUDENT VOICE staff wishes to join the faculty and student body of the River Falls State Teachers College in extending a warm welcome to Dr. Eugene H. Kleinpell as he takes up his new duties as President of the College, and to pledge him its sincere cooperation.

Mr. LaFollette lost out in the Wisconsin primaries. The Republicans seem to feel that the new man should start at the bottom and work up.

Justice Jackson reviles Justice Black publicly and Justice Black says the feeling is mutual. It used to be only the Congress which provided the nation with entertainment, but the Court seems to think it knows a good thing when it sees it, what with the top salaries as announced by the treasury going to Hollywood's entertainment people.

"There should be no need to change the constitution to right this situation, as I see it. The provisions for nomination and election are flexible enough so that some satisfactory method should be easily found. But some change in procedure needs to be made.

RELIGIOUS CLUBS MEET

Student church organizations of the college are meeting for social purposes this summer, with picnics, swims, and softball games being predominant activities planned by all.

The organizations started off with an interdenominational picnic held in the park the first Sunday of summer school. Students from all churches met in the park for supper and enjoyed a social time together.

The Wesley League of the Methodist church is the only group that is holding regular Sunday evening meetings. Members have had several picnic suppers and are planning for other outside activities when the weather permits it.

The Congregational group does not hold regular meetings, but members have plans in the offing for picnics and swims. The college boys of the church played the married men in a softball game. Another game is to be played some Sunday afternoon soon.

The Lutheran group has not met as yet, but plans for a picnic have been discussed.

NEW BOOKS TO LIBRARY

Numerous new books have been received in the library, Miss Amy Fuller and Miss Mary Bradley, members of the summer library staff, announce.

Among those of perhaps greatest interest are: "The Four Cornerstones of Peace," by Vera Dean; "The American Language," by H. L. Mencken; "The Lost Woods," by Edwin Teale; "Anatomy of Racial Intolerance," by George Bernard Huszar; "Complete Poems and Selected Letters," by John Keats; "Burma Surgeon Returns," by Gordon Stiffer Seagrave; "Good Bye, Son, and Other Stories," by Janet Lewis; and "The Fields," by Conrad Richter.

Of special interest to veterans will be "Up Front," by Bill Mauldin; and "The New Veteran," by Charles Guy Bolte.

RECEIVES DEGREE

Dean Charles Stratton of the college faculty, was honored by the presentation of an honorary Doctor of Education degree at the graduation exercises of the Michigan State Normal College, Ypsilanti, in recognition of distinguished service since his graduation in 1914.

STUDENTS TOTAL 251

With 251 students enrolled in the 1946 summer term, the River Falls student body is now larger than it was during either session last summer, and moreover there is a near balance of 123 men to 128 women students, according to the president's office.

164 students are working for degrees in various departments, it was said. The Agriculture Department shows the largest increase over last summer, with fifty enrolled; and the rural department has decreased to twenty-nine. The shift in character of the student body is due to the enrollment of ninety-eight veterans, twenty-four of whom are new students this term.

Home towns of the students are generally located in the surrounding counties, with sixty-three from Pierce, forty-nine from St. Croix, thirty-six from Polk and twenty-six from Barron County. There are twelve students from Minnesota; North Dakota and Wyoming have one representative each.

VET DANCE HELD

One of the social highlights of the summer was the tennis court dance sponsored by the Student Veteran's Organization on Thursday evening of June 27. Dave Kenwood's orchestra of Hudson, Wisconsin, furnished the latest in popular music for dancing.

Any money left over after expenses will be used by the Veterans' Organization this fall.

Softball Teams Play In Tourney

44 College Men Organize
4 Teams; 2 From City

Six softball teams composed of four college teams and two teams from townspeople of River Falls have organized a softball league schedule during the present College Summer Session and are currently engaged in playing off a series of double tournament games on the three college diamonds. VETERANS ORGANIZE

The newly - formed "Student Veterans' Association of River Falls", which has a present membership of fifty-six actives, held its first meeting under the new constitution on June 13, in order to complete organization, to carry on new business, and to plan for fall activities.

The objectives of the new organization, as listed in the official constitution, are to strengthen comradeship, to perpetuate the memory of those who died, and to assist their widows and orphans, to foster patriotism, to cooperate with the existing organizations on the campus in academic and social activities, and to foster publicity for R.F.S.T.C. The official motto is "We aim for better citizenship".

The constitution further provides that the organization shall not be used for partisan purposes either in discussions during meetings or in official transactions, except in regard to legislation for veteran's welfare.

The group has already sponsored a successful dance, in the way of social activities, and plans to sponsor the installation of a 'coke' machine in South Hall. There are further plans, it is said, for establishing a scholarship fund, a student relief fund, and to promote a drive for more housing facilities for veteran students.

The officers of the organization are Terry Doonan, president; Wilma DeMaster, secretary; "Bud" Bovin, treasurer; Marvin Sather and Virginia Smith, liaison officers. Harry Frojker and Hartman Soli are included in the board of directors. Mr. Theodore Setterquist is faculty advisor.
