Yearbook Co-Editors Report Work Progressing Smoothly

"Student and faculty cooperation has been good and production of the 1961 Meletean has been moving smoothly," report co-editors Anne Adams and Carol Truttschel. The final deadline for all pictures and copy has been set for March 15 and final distribution is planned for the latter part of May.

Freshmen, sophomore, and junior individual pictures have been sent to the Mandel Engraving Company in Milwaukee and the names and hometowns of these students will be sent this week to the Dairyland Press in New Richmond to be printed.

Organization pictures will be completed at the end of this week and information about each club is now being written. The football section is nearly completed, and work has begun on the Homecoming section.

A cover design done by Barbara Nelson, junior from New Richmond, has been submitted to the S. K. Smith Company in Chicago, and cover colors have been selected. The co-editors of the book were chosen last spring.

Miss Adams, Sheboygan, is an English major with minors in French and sociology. She has served as assistant editor of the Meletean, French Club president, Wesley historian, band secretary, editorial page editor of the Student Voice, A.W.S. Board member, Personnel Committee member, and junior class secretary. Additional activities have included N.C.T.E., Sigma Chi Sigma, Falconettes, and Who's Who.

Miss Truttschel, English major with minors in journalism and political science, has participated in N.C.T.E., Wesley, Prologue, and has been secretary of the Young Republicans, assistant editor of the Meletean, and Student Voice front page editor. From Plymouth, she is secretary of the senior class and her name was recently chosen to appear in Who's Who.

Bid Opening in January For Laboratory School

Bids for the construction of a new campus laboratory school at Wisconsin State College at River Falls will be opened Jan. 17 in Madison.

Actual construction is expected to start early in the spring and the staff hopes to occupy the new building in September, 1962, according to Dr. Gordon Stone, dean of the School of Education.

The new building will be located at the south end of Fourth Street, and will have a capacity of 250 students. It will include children from nursery school and kindergarten through the eighth grade, with space available for a ninth grade if a three-year junior high program is conducted.

The present campus school in the east wing of North Hall has an enrollment of 215 and has no provisions for a ninth grade.

"An attraction of elementary education students" is the way Dr. Stone described the proposed building which, he said, "is overdue."

Besides classrooms and office space, the building will include a library, homemaking room, music room, cafeteria, gymnasium and a suite of classrooms, offices and testing rooms for the psychology department.

Construction costs for the million-dollar project are estimated at more than $700,000 with the balance used for equipment, acquisition of land, architects' fees, and a contingent fund.

When the campus school moves, there will be room for additional science laboratories and classrooms in North Hall. The old North Hall gymnasium will be converted into pit-type science demonstration laboratories and lecture rooms.

In other construction news, drawings are being made for a new wing on Hathorn Hall, which will include a minimum of 60 rooms. The wing will be located on the west side of the building and will be financed through a federal loan.

Y-Dems' 'Crystal Capers' Becomes Carnival Theme

"Crystal Capers," submitted by Young Democrats, is the winning slogan of the 1961 Winter Carnival Slogan Contest. All of the Winter Carnival activities will center around this slogan as it becomes the theme for the four days of festivities. The winning slogan was picked by Mr. Harless, Miss Bowman, and Pat Lind.

"Watch 'em Grow" as registration for the Winter Carnival Beard Growing Contest begins Wednesday and Thursday of this week from 10 a. m. to 2 p. m. in the Student Center. Social clubs may enter contestants in either one or all three categories—long-

The Editor Speaks...

Dear Santa:

I have been a very good boy and have done everything teacher told me to do (with the exception of following her suggested outside reading) and have never been late for class (except during the "Raunchy Staunchy" trip and deer season) and have never sassed teacher (only that one time she scolded me for putting that spindle on her chair.)

I have done my best to study hard and get good marks (even in the face of administrative counsel and guidance) and have never cribbed once in a test (outside of Man and PU and Biology Lab where I felt my ribs once to ascertain the exact number) and although I have never made the honor roll (last spring quarter I would have been up there but a couple of D's that came as a result of a little dispute over whether frogs are moluska and Margaret Meade wrote "A Dissertation on Roast Pig") but nevertheless I have been outstanding in advanced composition (as you can plainly see from this letter) and more than once, Dr. Kleinpell looked at my social record and patted me on the head with a smile (although Mr. K., an ardent golfer, often had a club in his hand.)

Anyway, like I said, I been plenty good, considering everything and please bring me lots of candy and nuts and a new dictionary for Christmas. And if I catch you kissing mommy again this year I'm going to paste you one.

Happy New Year,
Huey Scrob
Ag Senior

Dear Mr. Claus,

You realize, of course, that I don't believe in you—logic has proved you fictitious and besides, my Ph. D. degree forbids the acceptance of your doctrine. But, being a very curious sort of person, I am conducting a minor research experiment to prove scientifically your non-existence.

I am therefore sending this letter to the North Pole, requesting the chairmanship of my department, a raise, automatic unlimited tenure, and guidance in grading. If my requests are forthcoming on Christmas Day, I shall have lost my case and be forced to acknowledge your existence. If you do not receive these gifts, I shall have proved my point and I will immediately begin preaching heresy directed at your person in all my classes. (By the way, if you can't provide all of these things, I'll just take the raise.)

Yours with Dignity,
Hiram McG. Sledgehammer

LITTLE MAN ON CAMPUS

Letters to the Editor . . .

Readers Voice Comments On Commuters, Falcon

An open letter in answer to criticism of the bronze Falcon project: Last week Miss Marge Wallen, chairman of the Student Foundation Committee, wrote to me asking that I make a statement for publication on the Falcon project. I suggested the sculptor Rood to Dr. Kleinpell and am very pleased with the model. I am delighted with the Foundation Committee for taking on such a bold, ambitious and farsighted project.

There are, as I understand it, several objections raised against the project. They are:

1. "The work is of questionable merit."
2. The first criticism implies a second, a questioning of the competency of the artist.
3. "The work is an inadequate symbol of the school."
4. "It is outrageously over-priced."
5. "It is of doubtful value to the school to spend money on such things."

I can't possibly answer the first objection in a sentence or two. The question of merit implies an understanding of an appropriate standard of judgement for sculpture. I can't assume that the critics have had sufficient background and experience in looking at sculpture to know meritorious from inept work, or for that matter have ever seen a work in direct metal before. The work is well conceived, well related to the place it will occupy and is an honest and powerful use of the material. This is what it should be.

The sculpture John Rood has been awarded many honors and rates high in any way we have of judging members of his profession. He is a professor of art at one of the great universities, has had many works commissioned, has had a book and a film made on his work, has had dozens of shows and has held high offices in professional organizations. I do know something of what it means to be an artist. It means eating, sleeping, talking, and looking at art ten or twelve hours a day. It means spending countless hours at his work. This is true of any profession and John Rood is a professional. He has been at this business since before I was born, and was known as a sculptor in several countries before some of his River Falls critics entered kindergarten.

I wonder why a silly little cartoon of "Freddy Falcon" has never been criticized as being an inadequate symbol of the school while a serious and significant work has. The proposed sculpture is dynamic, modern, as suggestive of jet forms as of a bird. The curling (Continued on Page Four)

by D. Dvorak, Commuter
Let us examine the characteristics of commuters listed in Miss Flueger's article printed in last week's Student Voice.

1) "There are three types of people—male, female, and commuter. The third class of people, commuters, can be found languishing over a coffee cup in the Student Center or buried in a book at a library table." If these people are actually buried in books, may I suggest a mass resurrection? May I also remind you that others spend hours in the cafeteria and library? These are not exclusive domains of commuters. Perhaps commuters and others whose "day is highlighted by meetings—at a library table" should learn when to adjourn to the Center, leaving the library to those who want to study.

2) "Commuters move unescorted from class to class." Not only commuters walk unescorted, and not all commuters do. Perhaps the "pretty girl walking alone" has halitosis.

3) "It's so sad to watch good love go bad." If "this relationship will last until the young man offers to walk the girl to her room," I seriously doubt the validity of this "good love." However, let us answer that this "good love" exists. Few men would walk twenty-four miles for anything, but most who have cars would drive a date twenty-four miles. Many male students own cars, and most of those who do not can borrow cars so they do not have to "watch good love go bad." If there is no opportunity to borrow a car, the girl is welcome to stay overnight at Hathorn Hall.

4) Another type of commuter listed is "the tired kind who are trying to keep a job at home and go to school at the same time." Commuters are not the only workers. If all the people with dark circles under their eyes are commuters there are approximately 1,400 commuters at River Falls.

When one examines the characteristics of commuters which has been listed, he finds no (Continued on Page Four)

HAPPY NEW YEAR
A. W. LUND CO.

Sportniks

by Swami Schlumpf

As everyone packs their bags for the Christmas holidays, plans will be made for vacation time activity of all sorts. One pastime that is overlooked every winter and really shouldn't be is hunting — squirrel hunting in particular.

When winter's first velvety blanket coats the woodlands, you undoubtedly are one of many that pack their trusty .22 in mothballs for another season. Not us. We've found that some of the best hunting ever can be had once the snow begins to fly.

For one thing, it's fairly easy to see where the furry busybodies have been working if there is a fresh covering of snow on the ground. You'll waste less time hunting in areas where there are not any squirrels.

Secondly, the soft underfooting of new fallen snow provides a good coverup for your footsteps if you are the stalking type of hunter.

If you hunted deer last month, you probably took advantage of the nice weather to sit still for longer periods of time than you might have if it had been colder. And if you were hunting anywhere in this area, we'll bet you saw more squirrels than you imagined existed in a given plot of land.

rels than you imagined existed in a given plot of land.

Hunting experts write stories in national magazines every year about the value of sitting still when hunting squirrels. Yet when we get out in the woods, what happens? Tramp, tramp, tramp—hour after exhausting hour. And when its over with you probably didn't see many squirrels.

While hunting deer last November we decided to see just how long one had to sit in a given spot until the busytails started activity. We timed it to about 23 minutes when the first one came hopping into view. Within 10 minutes three others had scampered into sight as we squirmed restlessly with our slug-loaded shotgun across our lap.

So here's a suggestion for that day next week when you're sitting around with nothing to do. Grab that gun, get out in the woods and see how profitable winter-time squirrel hunting can be.

And as a parting shot. Keep your eyes open on the way in to your favorite busytail spot. You're liable to jump a rabbit or two. And the season's still open on them too.

Grapplers Lose to Bloomsburg 20-5

by Ed Schlumpf

A gallant band of Falcon wrestlers put up an unexpectedly strong fight before bowing to Bloomsburg (Pa.)'s national NAIA champions 20-5 Saturday night before a large turnout at Karges Center.

The powerful visiting Huskies, competing in their third match in four days (they lost to Mankato and beat Winona) could not come up with a single pin against coach Byron James' rugged crew.

Arvin Jacobson, the Falcons' fast-coming freshman 147-pounder picked up the lone River Falls victory manhandling Bloomsburg's Dominick Sarinelli 14-6. Larry Julien got the other two team points wrestling to a 0-0 draw with the Huskies' huge Bill Garson. The latter dwarfed the beefy WSCC titleholder and once lifted him completely off the floor.

Bill Hughes, who was fourth in the NAIA national tourney last year, had his hands full before downing Jerry Fehlen 5-0 in the night's first event. Tom Gorant, a second-place finisher in the NAIA, followed suit with a 10-2 decision over RF's Mickey Hall.

The Falcon's fast-growing Jim Kanable looked very impressive before bowing 9-1 to the Huskies' Dick Scorese in the 137 lb. class.

Dave Garlie and brother Wayne both showed signs of really producing this year, losing close decisions in the 157 and 167 divisions. Dave fell to Don Poust who finished second in the 191 lb. finals of the NAIA and Wayne came out on the short end of a 8-1 decision with Gene Dixon.

The always durable Jerry Halverson had to fill in at the 177 lb. division (he weighs a scant 160) and held his own against Dave Stumple. Final score was only 5-1 and Halverson will undoubtedly be an important cog in Falcon mat plans after the holidays.

Amery Wins Tourney

Amery, one of Wisconsin's finest high school wrestling teams, captured the Second Annual River Falls Invitational High School Tournament Saturday. Gaining runnerup honors in the 26 team tourney were the Ashland Oredoclers. The Red Warriors finished second in last year's bi-state tourney won by Hastings.

DROPPING A DECISION to one of the champs from Bloomsburg, Penn., is Falcon wrestler James Knable, sophomore from Tomah. Jim was wrestling his second varsity bout, and dropped his weight to meet requirements on only a two-day notice. (Photo by Harmann)

Falcons Win First In New Gym

by Phil Thurston

A highly spirited River Falls basketball team outlasted a visiting Winona five last Wednesday night in Karges Center to post a 79-75 win. The victory gave the Falcons their first win in the new gym and snapped a 13-game losing string at home.

The Falcons were led by guard Don Koepnick with 23 points, while teammates George Wolf and Toby Garey hit 14 and 13 points respectively. Ken Stellpflug had 17 points for the losers.

The game saw a total of 47 fouls called. Winona received 29 of the 47 and lost four men via the foul route during the game.

The Red and White spotted the Warriors an early 6-1 lead in the first two minutes of play. The Falcons tied the score at 21-21 midway through the first half and moments later to a 23-22 lead on a Koepnick jump shot. Winona regained a one point lead at 29-28, but Jake Lauber's shot from the free-throw circle gave the Falcons the lead again. Vern Wanish swished the nets with a 35 footer as the buzzer sounded ending the half.

ACTION TYPICAL of the early-season play of the Falcons was seen in last Wednesday night's game with Winona in Karges Physical Education and Recreation Center. River Falls won 79-75.

Yellowjackets Clip Cagers 66-55

by Phil Thurston

The River Falls basketball team playing at Superior Saturday night dropped their second conference game of the season 66-55. The loss to the Yellowjackets left the Falcon quintet with a record of two wins and five losses for the season.

The Red and White took the lead at halftime by a 33-23 score. But, Superior came back to outscore the Falcons 16 to eight in the third period.

And in the fourth period the Yellowjackets went on a 27-point scoring binge to win the game going away.

Art Nelson, a 6' 1" guard, for Superior, took the game's scoring honors with 17 points. Mick Collins had 15 points for River Falls. Don Koepnick, the Falcons scoring leader so far this season, was held to three points.

Statistically the Yellowjackets won the game from the free-throw line. The Falcons hit for 62 per cent by making 13 of 21 free shots. Superior controlled the backboards out rebounding the Falcons 43 to 30.

Next Tuesday night the cagers close out their pre-holiday schedule against Bethel in the Karges Center. Earlier this year the Falcons downed the Royals at Bethel 87-66. In that game Charlie Johnson led the scoring with 28 markers, followed closely by Don Koepnick who had 24.

Sculpture

clouds, flamelike, suggest a soaring from the flames and a phoenix quality which means much to those of us who know the history of the College. What better symbol could we have than this?

The price of an original work of art always seems high to those more used to the mass produced utilitarian objects of a machine society. This is a hand fabricated object, individually designed and literally beaten out and welded by hand. If we figure the work on a time and material basis plus a small profit to the artist as a businessman, the price is most reasonable. By way of comparison we can rate the cost of the work is equal to the cost of a moderately expensive automobile (whose price I doubt we would question). We can expect that in ten years the automobile will not be worth one tenth of its original cost. If we could duplicate the sculpture in ten years for less than ten thousand dollars I will be greatly surprised.

Whether having a fine and serious work of original art as a part of our campus is worth our while or not depends upon what we value.

I could justify the work as good public relations, as improving the image of the College, etc., but I'm not going to. A work of art speaks of and to the human spirit. If we have no time to listen and no money to pay, then so much the worse for us. If a vital contemporary work of sculpture doesn't excite, challenge, and inspire us then we might just as well ask the Philistines, Carthagians, and Spartans to move over and make room for us. If we can't take art for its own sake and ours then I have a counter proposal: Let us collect our old beer cans, junk auto parts, catsup bottles, rock and roll records, cold cream jars and TV tubes and build us a tower with a statue of Mammon on top. We would do it ourselves, cheap.

up his fifth personal foul in less than a minute after the start of the second half. Four minutes later Winona's Lyle Papenfuss received his fifth foul of the evening.

During the opening minutes of the second half the Red and White were able to maintain a five to six point lead. Then with 11:37 remaining in the game Winona rallied behind Stelpflug's six field goals in three minutes to forge ahead 65-63.

A lay-up by Garey and Koepnick's jumper from the side gave the Falcons a 67-65 lead with 5:39 in the game. Winona was unable to catch the Falcons in the closing minutes of the game as Bob James and Stelpflug fouled out. The final score was 79-75.

Commuter Critique

unique trait. Let us examine another list of traits which I think characterize the type of commuter described.

The first is a common human need, to identify with a group. But this develops into a tendency to generalize personal anxieties and to apply these to the group with which the anxiety-ridden commuter identifies.

This person finds other commuters with similar neurotic tendencies, and together, they form a clique, a cozy little in-group. This clique, (often unconsciously) secludes itself from other students, and this selection alienates the clique from others. Soon members of the clique convince each other that other students, even the faculty, discriminates against them, that they are under privileged. They cry out for favors, "lockers for piles of books . . . encouragement." Obviously commuters are not the only people who carry "piles of books." Who should encourage commuters, and why do commuters need encouragement? What form is this "encouragement" to take? Should commuters receive special invitations to campus activities, or is more "encouragement" needed? Everyone likes to be accepted by his peers and to receive special recognition and attention occasionally, but until certain commuters stop demanding this attention continually and no longer mentally isolate themselves from other students, they will not find this 'encouragement.'

Admittedly, commuting is not the ideal way to husband-hunt while in college, but the commuter can (and MANY do) participate in extracurricular and social activities. As long as a commuter regards himself as a "member of the third sex," (which is a poor analogy) it is no wonder that he and other members of his clique are "regarded as foreign objects."
