Three River Falls Debate Teams Win 'Excellent' Ratings at St. Thomas

by Gladys Sigvaldson

Three "excellent" ratings and one "good" rating were earned by River Falls debaters at the tournament at St. Thomas College February 28 and 29. There were representing some 60 colleges and 60 men's and 30 women's teams universities, covering only debate.

Four local teams were entered: two men's and two women's. Heather Dopkins and Margaret Helmer won six and lost two debates with an "excellent" rating. Marian Aebly and Jean Allie won five and lost three for an "excellent" rating. Ambrose Murphy and Dick Aukema, also with an "excellent" rating, won four and lost four. Gene Isaacson and Herbert Tauchen won two, lost six, with a "good" rating.

"The debaters did beautifully. We certainly can't complain of our over-all record. In some cases there was only one point difference," said Miss Marion Hawkins, debate director. She and Dr. Walter Engler each judged eight rounds of debate on Thursday and Friday.

The local teams debated 32 times. Among others they met such schools as: St. Mary's, Winona; St. Olaf, Northfield; Hamline, St. Paul; University of Wisconsin, Madison; North Dakota, Valley City; Bradley University, Peoria, Illinois; Morningside, Iowa; University of Minnesota, Duluth; Northwestern Schools, Minneapolis; St. Catherine's, St. Paul; Kansas State, Pittsburg, Kansas; Eau Claire State College; Southern Illinois; University of Nebraska, Omaha; Luther College, Decorah, Iowa; University of Minnesota, Minneapolis; and Bethel College, St. Paul.

St. Olaf and St. Catherine were quarter finalists. The Eau Claire girls' team was undefeated through Friday.

Selective Service Test To Be Given April 24

All eligible students who intend to take the Selective Service College Qualification in 1952 should file applications at once for the April 24 administration, Selective Service National Headquarters announced last week.

An application and a bulletin of information may be obtained at any Selective Service local board. Following instructions in the bulletin, the student should fill out his application immediately and mail it in the special envelope provided. Applications must be postmarked no later than midnight, March 10, 1952. Early filing will be greatly to the student's advantage.

The Workshop Curriculum will consist of conservation education with special emphasis on either the sciences or social sciences. Six semester hours of credit may be earned in either field of study. A student should consult the registrar before enrolling to determine which field of study will best meet the requirements he must complete.

ACE Planning Children's Show For March 22

March 22 has been set as the date for the second children's production of the year at the college. "The Indian Captive" will be presented at that time by members of the ACEI. The play will be directed by Dr. Blanche Davis with Miss Carrie Dorsey acting as technical director. Advisor to the ACEI is Miss Ann Dubbe.

Jean Herald Mel Martinson

Leading roles are being played by Jean Herald and Mel Martinson.

The play is based on an authentic story of Eleanor Lytell among the Seneca Indians. The story is of an Indian queen who, mourning the loss of a son who has died recently, sends her other son, Cornplanter, to get a captive to take the place of the lost one. Cornplanter chooses Eleanor "because her spirit is strong and swift." Rechristened "Ship-Under-Full-Sail" the white girl experiences difficulties among the Indians. These form the plot of the drama.

Proceeds from the play will be used to send a delegate to the National ACEI Convention in Philadelphia. Helen Peterson last Tuesday was selected as the local delegate to the Philadelphia meeting.

FTA Chapter Receives Charter of Organization

The James W. Crabtree chapter, Future Teachers of America, was installed Wednesday evening, February 20, in the Social Room. H. C. Weirick, local consultant of the Wisconsin Education Association, was guest speaker. He presented the charter to the organization.

Engineers Discuss Opportunities

Local college students enrolled in pre-engineering courses were guests recently of Herman T. Hagestad, Carroll Grubb, George Tooby and Thorvald E. Thoreson, Registered Professional Engineers living in River Falls.

The general aspects of the work of the professional engineer together with the training and experience background provided the subject matter for the informal discussion.

A General Electric Film, "Pipeline to the Clouds," introduced the theme of the meeting, illustrating the important role the engineer plays in the daily life of the average citizen, providing the things he regards as commonplace.

The college faculty members responsible for advising engineering students, Theodore Setterquist, Earl Albert and B. J. Rozehnal, were included in the group.

Three major fields of engineering training were represented by the hosts. Mr. Hagestad and Mr. Grubb both are Civil Engineers. Mr. Tooby is a Chemical Engineer and Mr. Thoreson, of the college staff, is an Electrical Engineer.

In his remarks, Mr. Hagestad emphasized the importance of an engineer becoming registered both for his own sake and that of his client. From the experiences related in the discussion it was apparent that the demand for engineering services is increasing.

The week of February 17 to 24 was designated as National Engineers Week and this meeting was the part that local engineers contributed to its observance.

Much of the casting has been completed for "Winterset."

1915 Graduate Named St. Paul Bank President

H. M. Knipfel, who completed a two year agriculture course at River Falls in 1915, took over his duties last week as president of the St. Paul Bank for Cooperatives, which is associated with the Midland Cooperative Wholesale Association.

Mr. Knipfel is a native of Hammond. He studied at the University of Wisconsin after leaving River Falls, taught agriculture and served on the Wisconsin state agricultural commission. He joined the banking firm when it was first organized and served as a business analyst, secretary, and vice president until his election to serve as president in January.

Why Does RF Play 'Home' Games Away?

By Geo. Theis

Did you know that many college basketball teams refuse to play River Falls in the gym we now have...because of the meager facilities, and the sub-standard size floor.

As an antidote to this, River Falls State College has founded a nonprofit Foundation for the purpose of raising money for college building projects. The immediate objective is to raise $250,000 toward a recreation and health building.

To reach this goal, River Falls alumni have been approached. This makes a nation-wide coverage, for there are alumni in all of the 48 states plus Alaska, Canada, Hawaii, Nicaragua, China, Australia, Norway, and Mexico.

Now you ask, "Why doesn't the state do the job?" The building program of the state colleges is limited. At the present the recreation and health building is not on the priority list. Only this year did River Falls get its first dormitory in seventy-five years. Now that the library plans are on the way and construction is about to begin, it is really an opportune time to get the ball rolling for a field-house. Contributions from friends, students, and alumni will have a decisive influence in persuading the State Legislature to appropriate additional money needed to complete the project.

But you say, "We who are in school now will never see it completed before we graduate." True, but if the founders of this institution had thought the same way in 1875, what would we have now? An individual or an institution which does not plan for the future, has none!!! AT LEAST "WE" ARE PLANNING!!!

Newville Offers Four Points For Library Improvement

By Les Newville

Last week as I sat in a section of the River Falls College library with my hands over my ears attempting to educate myself, the idea suddenly struck me that the reason for my irrational behaviour was that the place was noisy.

Since it was almost exam week, and since I was reviewing some material pertinent to the anticipated, inevitable tests, it was essential that conditions be right so as to facilitate the fastest possible absorption of desirable facts, theories, hypotheses, and concepts, in the shortest length of time.

The whole thing really started earlier, however, in the evening as I sat two floors below in the serene solitude of the cafeteria eating, talking with some friends listening to the radio while watching the TV set. Being rather desperate, as sophomores and juniors get, I asked the fellow next to me what he would recommend. Pondering the situation, he solemnly advised that I go upstairs to a place called the library. After he had shown me where it was, I found a vacant place and settled down to what he promised me would be a profitable evening of study.

To my horror, it was not so. A multitude of disturbances bothered me to the point of distraction. Then it was that I put my hands over my ears, partly in disgust and partly of necessity.

Now a library is supposed to be a collection of books and periodicals for study housed in a place large enough to contain tables and chairs for students. But apparently what has happened is this: we kids have gotten mixed up and mistaken the place for a lounge. In fact, it's got to the point where a person can't even cram anymore.

Our behaviour in the library, contrary to all rules, ethics, traditions, and common sense, requires drastic and immediate action. My carefully worked out point-four (or four-point) program is thus submitted for your immediate consideration.

1. Don't talk loudly with anyone more than three tables away.
2. For rules of conduct, underclassmen should follow the example set by seniors.
3. Confine visiting to the last eight tables at the south end of the study room.
4. Entertain your girl friend in the cafeteria.

New Light Shed On Slaying Suspects In 300-Year-Old Murder Mystery

by Jack Hanson

The world has become so enthusiastic about deductive logic that we have finally seen through the subterfuge with which Will Shakespeare veiled the murders in Macbeth.

It took us three hundred years to discover that it was not Macbeth or Lady Macbeth who bumped off the old king. Obviously they couldn't have been guilty or they wouldn't have carried on so.

Macbeth's guilty actions during the banquet scene could hardly be considered anything more than evidence that he was shielding someone. It is certain that a big strong man like Macbeth wouldn't go around seeing ghosts, especially in a brightly lighted hall with dozens of people around.

As far as the sleepwalking scene goes, we can consider it the shielding job of a complete amateur. People who walk in their sleep never carry a light. They have second sight.

From these facts it is perfectly logical to draw the inference that Macbeth thought his wife had "done in" the king and Lady Macbeth had the same suspicions concerning her spouse.

Discounting the obvious suspects we must look for someone else to pin the murder on. Banquo is a prime suspect for the first murder, but as all good first suspects in a multiple murder case, he obligingly gets himself rubbed out, which eliminates him.

Malcolm and Donaldbain, the king's sons, stand to benefit from their father's death, but they flee and that looks suspicious. Too suspicious. A fleeing suspect is seldom guilty.

Then there is the third murder and it's a sticker. It has puzzled Macbeth scholars for three hundred years, but that's because they have assumed the Macbeths

The Critic's Corner

Carey McWilliams' Lecture

By Jim Cerello

Carey McWilliams, author and sociologist, discussed minority groups in a lecture entitled "America's Problem" in the North Hall auditorium on February 27.

Mr. McWilliams stressed the serious nature of the race relations problem not only in the United States but throughout the world, particularly in Asia. In this time when nations are competing for favorable world opinion, our treatment of minority groups in the United States makes excellent propaganda for Communist publications. Mr. McWilliams illustrated how foreign newspapers play up incidents that happen to minority groups, which to us seem to be trivial. To people in countries who would be in minority groups if they lived in the United States, our discrimination of these groups is an important factor in their making a choice between Communism or freedom.

Mr. McWilliams cited some personal examples of racial discrimination that he had encountered in his travels throughout the United States. He felt that racial prejudices are not based upon personal contacts, skin coloring, or nationality characteristics, but that many prejudices are formed because of economic factors. He said many businessmen find that by excluding certain racial groups in their business transactions they can put their business on a more exclusive level and therefore command greater profits. Many prejudices are also developed from inherited superstitions and false assumptions of various social groups. Parents and teachers often pass on prejudices to young children, and within a short time they are deeply embedded.

Mr. McWilliams felt that by bringing prejudices out in the open in the United States, we are on the way to solving the problem of racial discrimination. In Africa, for instance, equality is not permitted and Mr. McWilliams believes that in time these suppressed minorities will cause a gigantic explosion that will rock the entire world.

Even though the topic of racial discrimination is becoming somewhat over-worked, Mr. McWilliams made his subject seem vital and interesting to his audience by relating his many personal experiences.

Winter Band Concert

By Wayne Otto

The college band presented its Winter concert Thursday night. Proceeds from the free-will offering went to the Field-house Fund.

Led by Nicholas Jadinak, the band played a variety of numbers ranging from Tchaikowski to a modern swing arrangement. B. J. Rozehnal, dean of men, directed one of his own arrangements. As a finale the band presented Uncle Sam in Review, a musical pageant depicting some of the well-known phases of our American heritage.

Featured on the program were the Folk Singers who, as usual, turned in a fine performance. The entire performance was apparently enjoyed by the audience.

Official Notices

Kuss Hits 40; Second in National Scoring

Falls Loses Final 72-76

Superior State College dumped River Falls 76 to 72 Friday but couldn't manacle center Rog Kuss who contributed one of his better nights this season, 40 points.

For River Falls it was the 8th conference loss against 4 wins.

For Kuss it meant repeating as conference scoring champion and runner-up in national small college scoring honors.

River Falls pulled out to an early first quarter advantage but the Yellowjackets kept piling up points in the second period to hold a comfortable lead going into the last minute of play.

Whittier led the Superior scoring attack as in the first meeting, collecting 23 points on five baskets and 13 free throws.

Falls Beats La Crosse, Eau Claire

River Falls loosened their grip on the cellar spot in the Wisconsin Basketball Conference with victories over Eau Claire and La Crosse over the week-end.

Saturday they defeated Eau Claire 93 to 81 in a scoring slugfest that produced 45 points for center Rog Kuss, his best evening this season. Monday La Crosse was the victim by a 71 to 63 count.

Coach Joe Hoy's cagers have now won six games against 11 losses with a four and seven conference record placing them within reaching distance of a first division finish. Saturday they wind up the 1951-52 court schedule at Superior State College.

Kuss fired away at baskets with a near-par average in the opening tilt against Eau Claire's Bugolds Saturday at River Falls. Finishing the evening with 45 points, Kuss hit 20 longs in 29 attempts from the field to lead his mates into winner's row after a two-game losing streak on the road at the hands of Platteville and Stevens Point.

Both teams gave evidence of plenty of offense and only cautious defense in the opening quarter as they battled to a 23-all tie, Kuss counting 14 points. The pace slackened off in the second period as Eau Claire failed to cool off and left at intermission with a 37 to 41 advantage.

But Kuss went back to work again at the same old stand and River Falls pushed ahead with 34 points in the third stanza, 14 points again by Kuss.

During the second half River Falls shot an eye-raising 52 per cent from the field (42 per cent the first half) and walked off with the ball game on an additional 20-point spurge in the final period. Zeke Wells and Jimmy Belisle hit double bracket figures for the winners, Wells with 13 points and Belisle counting for 10.

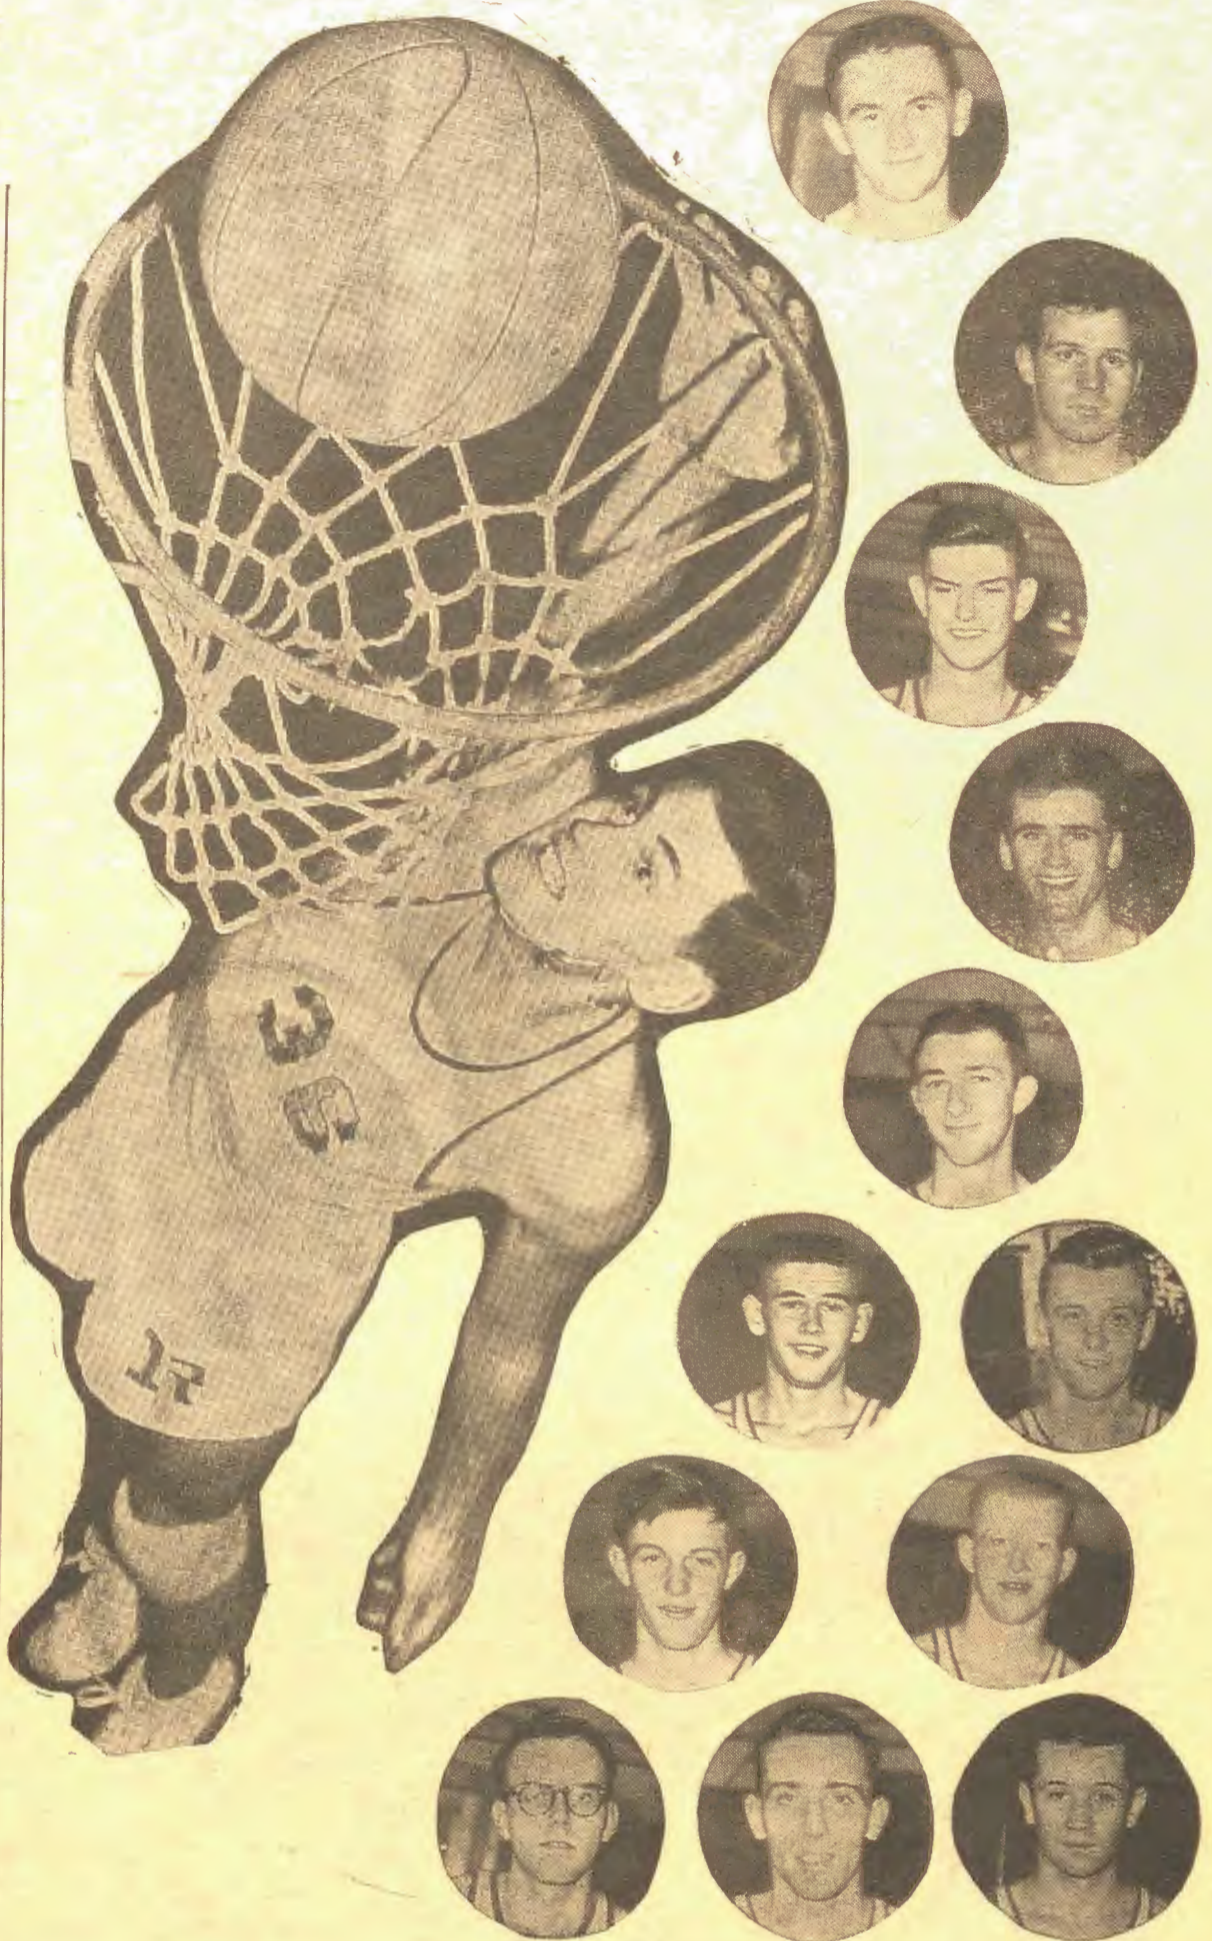

Jim Bos scored 30 points for Eau Claire, converting at pivot for the losers.

Monday the Falcons met highly rated La Crosse State College in their final home appearance that resulted in a Falls victory, 71 to 63.

Zeke Wells started the fireworks this time with two longs from the corner to send River Falls ahead in the opening minutes, a lead they gave up only twice throughout the ball game.

But La Crosse matched basket for basket and pulled to within one point at halftime, 33 to 34, on Art Richter's two-handed set shot with three seconds remaining.

Coasting on a six-point lead with seven minutes playing time remaining River Falls went into a hit-or-miss sort of stall that brought La Crosse out into a full court press in an effort to gain control of the ball.
