Hanson to Head Student Senate

Jack Hanson was elected president of the Student Senate last Wednesday evening at a joint meeting of the old and new members.

The Student Senate is made up of seven members elected at large in an all school election, which was conducted May 11, plus the four class presidents.

Roger Knief was elected vice-president, Jean Allie, secretary, and Ernie Mosbaek, treasurer.

The seven members elected at large are: Jean Allie, Elaine Fick, Ivan Kittel, Roger Knief, Jack Hanson, Harley Harkness, and John Meulemans.

The class presidents for next year are Ernie Mosbaek, senior, Duane Westerberg, junior, and Alan Espellen, sophomore.

Under an amendment to the constitution which was ratified by the student body early in the quarter, three members of the Senate must be re-elected.

Knief, Hanson and Harkness are the returning members. Knief and Harkness will be serving their third term in office, Hanson his second.

Foundation Up $2100 in Drive

Over $2,100 has been added to the Foundation Fund in the last six weeks. This was shown in a report released by Miss Marion Hawkins, chairman of the Faculty Foundation Committee, and Norman Noah, chairman of the Student Foundation Committee.

Of this amount, approximately $1,400 came as the result of a student drive made by more than 100 students visiting friends and alumni of the college during the Easter vacation. The remaining $700 was profit from the Faculty Frolics presented April 26 and 27. Members of the faculty and student committees emphasized that this figure is based solely on pledges and donations already received. Nearly one-half of the reports still have not been returned, they reported.

In addition to actual pledges received, members of the committee said the drive had been valuable in again establishing contact with a number of alumni who have moved since sending their last address to the college records office and thus bringing the address file up-to-date in some instances. They termed the campaign "extremely valuable" in increasing alumni, student, and faculty interest in the effort to obtain a modern recreation building at River Falls.

Collins Will Edit Next Year's 'Voice'

Bill Collins, junior, has been appointed as editor of next year's "Student Voice" by the Student Senate. He started his duties with this issue and will resume them next fall.

Mr. Collins is a native of Hastings, Minnesota and is majoring in English. While writing for the "Voice" this year, he covered many plays and displayed a talent for capturing the interest of his readers with his fine reviews. He also wrote for the 1950-'51 "Meletean" in the capacity of Junior Class reporter.

The Editor Speaks -

by Don Mattson

This is the last issue of the "Voice." As it leaves the press I think of the work the staff has put into the production of each issue. It is a difficult job to find enough students at a college where there is not a journalism major or minor offered to work on the paper. Not many students were willing to give their free time for a cause that appeared thankless, but to those who stuck with the staff throughout the year I wish to give my sincere compliments on a job well done.

Many students take this paper for granted. The compliments have been few and far between. Those that Mr. Wolfe, the "Voice's" advisor, or myself did receive came chiefly from the faculty. Perhaps they were the only ones on the campus who appreciated the paper. Nevertheless, I have felt that a word of "good job" from them was a compliment received from a noteworthy source.

I want to wish the "Voice's" new editor, Bill Collins, the best of luck in putting out next year's paper. He has undertaken a job that will pay off only in invaluable experience. I also want to thank Mr. Wolfe for his assistance and experience in journalism that aided the "Voice" in receiving a "First Class" rating with the Associated Collegiate Press.

A heartfelt "thanks" goes also to Mr. Clarence Chubb, editor of the River Falls Journal, and to the entire Journal staff for their wonderful cooperation in assisting us in any and every way possible to put out this year's paper.

In closing, I would like to give you this quotation: "To have been read, although misunderstood, is more encouraging than not to have been read at all."

Should Attendance Be Considered in Grading?

by Don Mattson

Mr. McCarthy's Public Opinion class has just completed a student poll on the question, "Should attendance be considered in grading?" This question was put to one hundred RF students or, in other words, one-sixth of the student body.

A careful attempt was made to receive a representative sample as is shown by the results of the poll given below.

Sex	Yes	No	Undecided
Male	14	55	2
Female	17	11	1
Classification	Yes	No	Undecided
Secondary	13	20	1
Elementary	10	10	1
Agriculture	3	22
Rural	2	3
Unclassified	3	10	1
Veterans	5	16
Class	Yes	No	Undecided
Freshman	9	12	1
Sophomore	7	21	2
Junior	7	16
Senior	8	17
Age	Yes	No	Undecided
18	3	7	1
19	9	15	1
20	4	8
21	7	8	1
22	3	10
23	1	9
24	2	4
25	0	1
26		1
28	1
30	1

The class was able to begin an analysis of the determinants of public opinion regarding the issue by breaking down the data into sub-groups which are given above. Any one or more of the attributes determining the sample can then be studied.

Probably the greatest determinant in the final tabulation was the difference of opinion between the sexes. Almost four times as many men answered "no" to the question as did those answering "yes." About half again as many women answered "yes" as did "no."

These results have a marked degree of validity. Although the students polled were chosen as a representative sample of and in proportion to the student body, there was room for discrepancies.

I hope the faculty will take the results of this poll into consideration. As Lord Bryce said, "Democracy would function more effectively if people's opinions could be continually and systematically ascertained."

'Generation Of Jellyfish' Is Gone; Student Of Today Is More Serious

by Jack Hanson

A recent editorial in the University of Wisconsin's "Athenean" titled "Generation of Jellyfish," condemns today's student for being a spineless mollycoddled infant with no opinions, no interest in the world around him and no ambitions except for security.

It is undoubtedly true that many students come under the general heading and it is a foregone conclusion that such a lifeless makeup is hardly the sort of stuff from which great men are made.

On the other hand, the writer of the article seems to feel that he is bringing out a problem peculiar to our age.

If lazy minds and lethargic concepts are a new problem, our sense of time has changed considerably and the "first great teacher" did not live a long time ago as religious leaders would have us believe.

The prohibition generation with coonskin coat, hipflask and all for fun philosophy could hardly be accused of having been the greatest thinkers of all time.

College populations of 1900 had the intellectually uninformed conception that there was going to be peace throughout the world. Powder kegs and tippy lamp-lighters in many parts of the world were, if seen, ignored.

During the "Reconstruction," the educated minority could not even think seriously of the deplorable conditions throughout the emasculated South. Charles Beard calls that era "The Gilded Age." Even their minds were gilded. Is that called thinking?

No! We could go back by generations, by decades or even by years and find that a major criticism of society in general and the college population in particular has been a shortage of forethought, insight, or just plain ordinary thinking.

However, it is said that this is the time for both deep and serious thought. We face greater problems today than ever before. And this has been said in hundreds of languages and for several thousand years. Armagedden is not a new problem.

To deny the fact that we must think would be to deny life itself. But to deny that college people think is to deny the obvious.

In past generations newspapers chronicled such earth shaking events as the arrival of a dignitary from an outlying community. On the spot foreign correspondents were as unknown as the atom bomb.

The radio, the weekly newsmagazine; a college curriculum geared toward understanding the functions of government, the why and wherefore of human behavior and an understanding of the world they live in certainly provokes a great deal more thought than the disciplinary subjects which burdened our grandfathers.

Foreign affairs groups on any college campuses do not meet to discuss the price of knick-knacks from foreign lands. The college debating society no longer debates such enlightening questions as, "How Many Angels Can Sit On The Head of a Pin," but Cotton Mather did.

Socializing in the college cafeteria, in the lounge or anywhere that students gather is not carried on especially to discuss the state of the world. But the state of the world, at home and abroad, is discussed with a great deal of gusto and often with a logical argument on controversial issues.

There is room for improvement. Few people are as informed as they should be. But the college student today knows that the world is growing continually smaller and he knows that it will be up to the youth of today to try to straighten out the mess he is going to inherit, providing there will be anything left to inherit.

The Wizard Says --

by DDT

Well, here we go for the last time this year. Let's start with a Fashion Note: Flash—they will be wearing the same thing in bras this year.

Poem of the week:
A male worm met a lovely dame
Emerging from the ground.
He seized her with his heart aflame
And stroked her form so round.
He whispered, "Darling, may I hope
That life with me you'll spend?"
She answered, "Quit! You dizzy dope,
I am your other end."

I understand some of the faculty did some table moving at their picnic in Glen Park the other night. This is undoubtedly the first work they have done all year.

When he threatened to drive her over a cliff in a taxi she just laughed... She knew the cab was yellow.

There's only one way to surely prove
If you are a man or mouse,
Spend the winter on a farm
Where the plumbing is outside the house!

According to the latest dope, graduation will be held outside. In event of rain, seniors are requested to return next year to receive their degrees.

A good bank account helps a lot in hiding a bad reputation.

Have you seen the new black whiskey?
It's called pitch blend and one drink will give you enough courage to pinchblond.

Little boy, to his mother, while on family picnic: "Mother, Daddy says for you not to stand so close to the edge of that cliff, or else to give me the lunch box."

When asked the difference between a policeman and a cracked chair, an intelligent frosh answered, "No difference. They'll both pinch you if you don't park right."

RF student in library: "I want a book about 'The Red Ship,' or 'The Scarlet Cruiser,' or something like that."
Amy: "Here you are, 'The Rubaiyat!'"

She was peeved and called him Mr.
Not because he went and Kr.
But just before
She opened the door
This same Mr. Kr. Sr.

"What is the matter with your watch?"
"Stopped when I dropped it in the sheep dip the other day."
"Killed the ticks, eh!"

Gather your kisses while you may,
For time brings naught but sorrow.
The girls that are so cold today,
Are chaperones tomorrow.

Father as his daughter showed him her new engagement ring: "Well, guess I can go out and hock my shotgun."

Despite all the rules
Of a body's creation,
A tight sweater won't
Hurt a girl's circulation.

"Are you troubled with improper thoughts?"
"No, I rather enjoy them."

"Do you dance?"
"I love to."
"Well, let's love then."

First Gold-Digger: "Was your time very profitably spent abroad?"
Second RF co-ed: "I'll say, I made every second count."

THAT SIT.

The Critic's Corner

by Bill Collins

Dick Armstrong stepped out of the ranks of a student to that of a play director May 17 and did an excellent job. His casting of characters, directing, and acting made the play, "Goodbye Again," another outstanding performance by college students.

Veteran actors, Helen Ingels and Dick Armstrong turned in their usual top dramatic ability; Helen's portrayal of a secretary with a personality unlike her own and Dick as a traveling author and lecturer who is the idol of women's clubs throughout the country.

The production also found a display of new talent. Howard Cox, the poor, neglected husband, took the spotlight as the outstanding new performer, along with Janice Solum, who, in portraying his wife, turned in the best individual dramatic role.

The supporting cast of Tll Wilcox, Elayne Meyers, James Blum, Don Mattson, Arnie Schultz, and John Meulemans rounded out the personnel in the play.

It took the appearance of Freddie Jadinak, campus school dramatic star, to straighten out the trouble and make the play end on a happy note.

Scenery and lighting were effective, as usual, in carrying out the ideas of the play.

Bill Ramey played selections on the piano during intermissions.

Salmon Stars in 11-2 Victory Over Bugolds

Six-hit pitching by Bob Salmon paved the way for an easy 11-2 win over Eau Claire on Ramer Field, May 15. This was the Falcons first win after five consecutive losses and gave them an even split with Eau Claire for the season.

The Falcons registered 14 hits in their win and committed two miscues, while Eau Claire collected only six hits and made three errors.

Salmon set the Bugolds down in order in the opening frame on three infield outs. The Falcons went right to work in their half of the first, scoring three runs on three hits and an Eau Claire error. Eau Claire retaliated in the second inning with one run on two hits and an error on Bob Salmon when he missed first base on a play from the first baseman to the pitcher.

River Falls scored one more run in the second inning on hits by Harlan Nelson and Vernon Steinmetz. Salmon held Eau Claire in check in the third, fourth, and fifth innings, as they went down in order in each frame. Meanwhile the Falcons went hitless in the third inning but bounced back for four runs on four hits, a walk, and an error in the fourth inning to give the Falcons a commanding 9 to 1 lead after five innings of play.

Eau Claire put together two hits, plus a Falcon miscue for a single run in the sixth frame. Two more hits, one in the seventh and one in the eighth was all the Bugolds could get off the slants of Bob Salmon.

River Falls had another big inning in the eighth frame as they scored two runs on three hits and an error. Steinmetz ended the inning as he grounded out short to first to leave the bases loaded.

Wilde Comedy Here Thursday

Dr. Marguerite Little of the English department will play Miss Prism in Oscar Wilde's farce comedy, "The Importance of Being Earnest" Thursday at 8:00 in the auditorium.

Still a perennial favorite after more than four decades of popularity, the play is brought to the campus under the auspices of Dr. Blanche Davis' Acting and Directing class.

The scene opens in a bachelor's establishment in London. Algy is, as usual, doing a great deal of nothing. Throughout the play the characters manage to get themselves into serious trouble of a humorous variety by doing nothing.

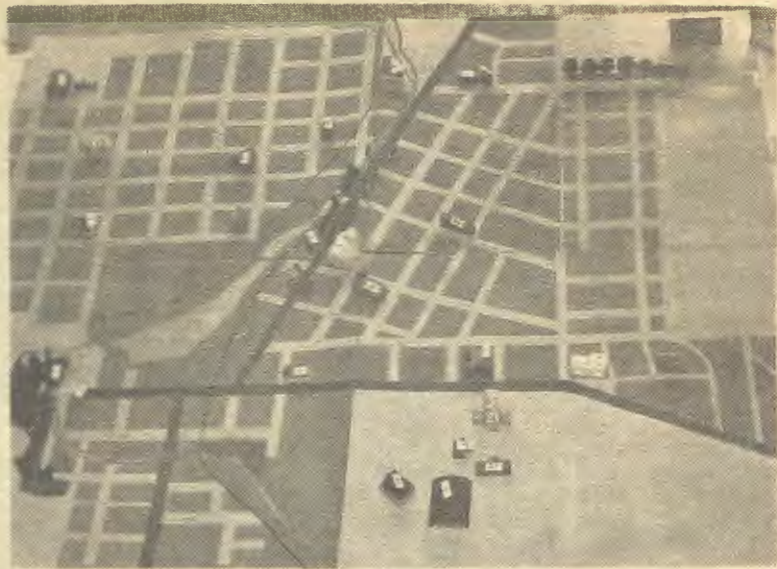

Romances flourish and wane only to rise again. Jack's parentage presents quite a problem but fortunately it is proven that he really was born.

In order of their appearance the cast will consist of: Thomas Ingham, as Lane, a butler; Alan Peabody, as Algernon Moncrief, a playboy; Jack Hanson, as Jack Worthing, a country playboy; Aralda Thayer, as Lady Brackness, a sharp tongued professional society woman; Jean McLaughlin, as Gwendolyn Fairfax, Bracknell's daughter and a perfect snob.

Miss Little as Miss Prism, a pernickety forgetful governess; June Clark, as Cecelie Cardew, a sheltered child; Eddie Miller, as the Reverend Dr. Frederick Chasuble, and Paul Radtke, as the country butler, make up the cast of the play.

The play is under the direction of Jack Hanson.

There will be no admission charge.

Design Class Displaying Exhibit On Community Life in River Falls

"River Falls in Miniature" is being shown in Room 115, North Hall, this week. The community study project has been carried out by members of the Lower Elementary Design class under the direction of Miss Ruth Finch.

During the past four weeks, members of the class have been working on different phases of the unit, making dolls, maps, posters, and other exhibits.

Many aspects of community life have been investigated by class members in working out their unit. These have included occupations, products, industries, community geography and natural resources.

One of the exhibits includes dolls made of various materials and representing various occupations such as fireman, teacher, lumberman, mailman, factory worker, librarian, policeman, grocer, minister, photographer, depot agent, farmer, feedman, milkman, lawyer, creamery worker, florist, baker, mechanic, doctor and nurse. Materials used in the construction of the dolls ranged from corks and straw to spools and ears of corn.

Another exhibit displays farm products from the River Falls vicinity. Another shows River Falls dairy products. Center of the display is a model of River Falls showing streets and roads of the community, streams and lakes, and principal buildings.

Showing the possibilities of this type of work was the intention of the unit, Miss Finch explained. The project offers a great deal of opportunity for imaginative writing as well as for fact-gathering. Students would be encouraged to make up stories concerning people in the different occupations, or to write poems or songs dealing with different aspects of the community, she said. One of the best features is its adaptability to different age levels. It can be designed for first or second grade or for high school students, Miss Finch said.

Students of the design class were aided by a number of college faculty members including Louis Kollmeyer, art teacher; Dr. Walker Wyman of the history department, and Miss Catherine Lieneman, who assisted with specialized problems in carrying out the unit.

Miss Opal Knox, teacher in the campus school, was elected treasurer of the Wisconsin American Association of University Women, at the state convention May 11-12. The convention was held at Wausau. Miss Knox will assume her duties as treasurer July 1.

Attending the convention from River Falls were Miss Adele Bloom, economics teacher; Miss Irma Hathorn, former Dean of Women at RFSC; Miss Loretta Therien, president of the River Falls A.A.U.W.; Mrs. C. A. Pembble and Miss Knox.
