Former Student Depicts German University Life

In a speech before members of the River Falls student body and faculty last Monday, James L. De Marce, one of the two River Falls Fulbright scholars, described life in German universities and compared life to the River Falls "atmosphere".

Mr. DeMarce stated that many Americans have the wrong conceptions about the German university student. He classified these misconceptions into the "Student Prince," "19th Century," and "militarist" groups. Incredibly, German institutes of higher learning contain a "minimum of difference" in comparison with American schools. For example — German schools have student senates, long lines for registration, department heads on the faculty and commuters.

Before a student registers, he has a chance to sit in on any classes he wants to observe. Later on,

Sociologist From Warsaw Describes Communistic Government in Poland

The Polish people accepted Communist ideas in 1947 after seeing the failures of the Polish government in exile, Dr. Jerzy Wiatr, political sociologist from Warsaw, told an all-school convocation Friday morning.

Beginning with the history of Poland immediately after World War II, Dr. Wiatr, a faculty member at the universities of Warsaw and Krakow, said that the exile government failed to solve any of the controversial issues of land division, foreign alliance and economic problems facing Poland at that time.

Communist government has raised Poland's level of living considerably over the last 15 years, he said, but he believes that Poland could exist without Russian assistance.

On the subject of Polish government at present, the young professor stated that "Americans must keep in mind that the government of Poland is not rigidly set, but that it is in a constant and progressive change."

Dr. Wiatr commented that it could be said "in one sense" that Poland has a one-party system but, although the Communists are in complete control, they are influenced by two lesser parties, the Peasants and the Catholics. Citizens vote in "constant elections," he said, and are able to make their wishes known in this way.

A member of the Polish Communist party, Dr. Wiatr expressed the view that the Polish government is quite democratic and works well. He said that it is good for the existing situation and that the government eventually will move toward greater democracy. The people are willing to wait, he said.

Dr. Wiatr (pronounced Vet-otter) answered questions from the audience and spoke in afternoon social science classes after the lecture.

The speaker is in this country as a delegate from Poland to the 5th World Congress on Sociology, held recently in Washington.

Number 3

College Credit to Be Given For TV Government Class

River Falls State College will participate again this year in the NBC Continental Classroom course in American Government. The 30 minute color telecasts begin each weekday morning at 6:30 on KSTP Channel 5. The classes are conducted by Dr. Peter Odegard of the University of California. Dr. Odegard is the past president of the American Political Science Association, former assistant to the Secretary of the Treasury, a past consultant to the Atomic Energy Commission, and is presently a member of the National Commission for UNESCO.

Last year, over 200 colleges and universities all over America, offered the course for credit — usually three semester hours. This year, the course begins September 24 and continues through May 17, 1963.

Persons who wish to enroll in this class for credit, should attend an organization meeting to be held at 7 p.m., September 24, in South Hall. Further information about the course can be obtained by contacting Dr. Charles Graham.

Late Registrants Hike Enrollment Figure

Late registrants during the first week of classes at Wisconsin State College at River Falls brought the total enrollment figure to 1,834 — or 154 more than entered the college last fall. Last year's enrollment of 1,680 was the previous high at River Falls.

Students from nine foreign countries and 15 states are enrolled at River Falls. Foreign countries represented are: West Germany, Ghana, the British Crown Colony of Hong Kong, Iran, Japan, Korea, Malaya, Panama and Thailand.

Residents of Wisconsin and Minnesota form the bulk of the students, but others come from: Alabama, Florida, Hawaii, Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Missouri, New York, Ohio, Texas and Virginia.

Approximately 600 freshmen are enrolled this fall, including many scholarship winners. Regents' Scholarships have gone to 112 graduates of Wisconsin high schools. Of this number, 25 are Class A Scholarships, awarded to top-ranking students, and 87 are Class B Scholarships, granted to other high-ranking graduates.

A total of 27 Foundation Scholarships went to freshmen graduating in the upper 10 per cent of their high school classes. These scholarships are financed by gifts from alumni and friends of the college.

Another 10 freshmen received non-resident scholarships, for graduates of high schools outside Wisconsin.

Seven Foreign Students Scholarships and 33 scholarships awarded by campus and community organizations went to both freshmen and upper classmen. Six upper-classmen received non-resident scholarships.

A breakdown of the registration totals by classes will appear in next week's Student Voice.

New Members Needed For Brass Ensemble, Symphonic Band, Choir

The various musical organizations on campus are still in the market for new members and welcome all interested students to try out for the organization of their choice.

Try-outs for the various groups will continue this week. Mr. De-Jong will interview students interested in the brass ensemble at 7 p.m., Wednesday. Although try-outs for the concert choir were held last week and rehearsals started Monday, Mr. King will still interview candidates for the choir in Room 17, South Hall. There is a special need for more men in this organization.

According to Dr. William Abbott, chairman of the music department, there are still several positions open in the symphonic band. Clarinet, French horn and alto and tenor saxophone players are needed this year, and the school-owned bass clarinet and baritone saxophone are available to interested students. Try-outs for the band are not required, said Dr. Abbott.

Several other musical groups will be organized this year, the try-out times for which will be posted on the bulletin board soon. These organizations will include a men's chorus and a regularly scheduled dance band lab. Several woodwind ensembles — a quintet, a clarinet trio or whatever those interested prefer — will also be organized.

Art Dept. Head Returns, Brings New Techniques

Returning to the College following a year's leave of absence, James Crane, head of the art department, has brought with him many new techniques and methods in the field of art.

Attending Michigan State University under a Danforth Foundation Grant, Mr. Crane earned his MFA degree for practicing artists.

To achieve such a degree the artist must present a one-man show of his works rather than prepare a thesis. Mr. Crane's show consisted mainly of painting and print making with emphasis of the collage technique in which the painting is built up by the use of glue, paper and fragments of articles.

In conclusion of his year at Michigan State, Mr. Crane expressed the necessity for art teachers to devote time to the work itself by such further education and training as he received.

Students found plenty of rhythm for dancing at the jam session Thursday night. The jam session, held in the Student Center, was sponsored by the Social Committee. Rich Clauson provided this music.

Keep It Clean

The ink is hardly dry on the registration cards, and already the sound of the card players permeates the basement of the Student Center. The card games are incessant, and when one player has to leave to go to class, (if he decides to go) a spectator is right there to take his place, with barely a pause between deals.

This is not to say that we are against card playing. We have been known to indulge in a few games ourselves. We are also glad to see that no move has been attempted to abolish card playing in the Student Center. These players are college students, and presumably they are able to tell when they must study.

However, we would like to comment on the slovenly habits of these card players. At the day's end when everybody leaves, the debris is left behind, a veritable pile of trash. This trash includes lunch bags, wax paper, glasses, dishes, used sheets of paper, with scores on both sides, empty candy wrappers and cigarette butts. The scene is one of a dump rather than a place where college students congregate.

This is one of the better student unions around the state, and will be even more so when the planned addition is finished. Nevertheless, all the architectural design and beauty will be of no avail if students will not co-operate in keeping the building clean and attractive.

DeMarce Talks At Convocation

he chooses his subjects—this system resulting in a "popularity poll of professors." Attendance at lectures is not compulsory. After successfully completing three stages of seminars, the German student takes state exams to qualify him for a period of internship in his chosen profession. With two years of "apprenticeship" behind him, the student takes final state exams which qualify him to begin his profession "on his own."

The average German college student has a better background in foreign languages and the sciences than comparable students in the United States. According to Mr. DeMarce, there is a very real split between young people in Germany and the Germans who grew up during the Nazi control of Germany. He concluded that he had seen many hopeful signs about the future of German democracy.

Mr. DeMarce and his wife will study this year at Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif.

Social Committee

A position for an upperclass male student on the Social Committee is still open. All interested men are urged to contact the Student Senate on Monday at 6:30 p.m. in Rooms 201-2 of the Student Center.

Falcons Win Conference Opener; Dump Oshkosh in Squeaker 7-6

Conversion by Burich Is Winning Margin

River Falls got off to a good start in 1962 conference football action at Ramer Field Saturday night as they won this year's opener by the same score that they dropped the season's opener to Augsburg, 7-6.

Oshkosh's right halfback, Dick Emerich, brought the crowd to their feet on the first play from scrimmage as he skirted his own left end for a 69-yard touchdown run. The Titans missed the attempt for an extra point, so with less than a minute gone in the first quarter River Falls found themselves on the short end of a 6-0 score.

The remainder of the first period was fought on even terms as neither team could get any sustained drive underway. Midway through the second quarter River Falls took over the ball on their own 46 yard line. From that point, quarterback Tom Everson engineered a 54 yard drive that led to the lone Falcon touchdown. Two short passes, one to junior end Dick Pariseau from Plum City, and the other to senior halfback Larry ("Porky") Lloyd from Barron, moved the ball into Titan territory. Everson, senior from Hudson, then made the key run in the game as far as River Falls was concerned, as he circled his own right end on an option for 22 yards and a first down deep in Oshkosh territory. Two plays later with a second and nine on the Oshkosh 11 yard line Everson passed to Tom Sempf, junior from Glenwood city, and Sempf ran it into paydirt. Wayne Burich then kicked what proved to be the winning point.

The Falcons held on to their lead and left the field at intermission.

The Falcons took command in the second half, at least statistically, as they more than doubled the yardage of the Titans in the third and fourth periods, but could not push across an insurance marker as fumbles and intercepted passes kept the Falcons at bay for the remainder of the game.

For the second straight game the tough forward wall of the Falcons stood out. With the exception of the game's first play the Titans were unable to get any sustained drive underway and never posed a serious threat in the second half.

Larry Lloyd played an outstanding game on offense for River Falls as he got away for several sizeable gains, one for fifty-two yards, only to lose the ball on the Oshkosh two yard line. Quarterbacks Tom Everson and Bob Pritchard both put in fine performances in leading the opening win.

Cross Country Outlook Hopeful

"Young, lean and hungry" is the way cross-country coach Byron James describes this year's distance team.

Mr. James has 16 men to work with this year and predicts an improvement on last year's 1-4 record.

Being counted on heavily are Jerry Strum, a returnee from last year's team, and Oscar Skog, a letter-winning miler last year.

RIVER FALLS

Tapping The Sports Line

by Curt Thurston

For weeks now, sportscasters, sports columnists, oddsmakers, and football soothsayers the world over have been making their predictions as to the outcome of the 1962 edition of the football season.

The art of football soothsaying is not new and although I do not have the historical records of this popular pastime it presumably dates back to the first football game ever played.

In the past few years I have become interested in football swamism and this week I am going to stick my neck out on the limb and make a few predictions of my own. (For those sports fans who enjoy a bit of humor clip this article out and look at it again around Thanksgiving time.)

First off in the National Football League I see the Green Bay Packers victorious in the Western Division and the Cleveland Browns taking the honors in the Eastern Division.

In Green Bay, Coach Vince Lombardi has conceded that his '62 team will be better than the 1961 Packers that devoured the New York Giants 37-0 in last year's championship game. Lombardi has been quietly building a football dynasty which should become unprecedented in league history. Already some are acclaim-ing them the greatest team ever assembled.

Things in Cleveland may not be as bright this season as earlier expected. Their super-star rookie may have to sit out the 1962 season due to a "blood disorder".

The American Football League, in their third season of existence, have known only one set of champions, these being Houston in the Eastern Division and San Diego in the Western Division. Although they will be harder pressed this year they appear sure bets to repeat again this season.

In the realm of collegiate football there is each year a mythical champion that reigns above all others. My top ten picks for this year include, Ohio State, Duke, Alabama, Texas, Michigan State, LSU, Penn State, Purdue, Southern California and Washington.

Mr. TeWinkel

Back From the Philippines, RF Native Registers Here

by Warren Wolfe

Of the many students who enter River Falls State College every year, there is usually a certain number of men and women who come from far away parts of the world. Usually these are foreign students. However, the man that this year probably came the farthest of any American student, and perhaps of all students to River Falls is Duane TeWinkel, from the Philippine Islands.

Born in River Falls, Mr. TeWinkel, an economics major, entered the college this fall as a freshman after an 8,000 mile trip from the Philippines, where his father is the manager of the Ross Glove Company factory.

Duane TeWinkel spent only the first year and one half of his life in River Falls before his family moved to Sheboygan, Wis., where his father, Vernon TeWinkel, became associated with the Ross Glove Company. In December, 1959, the TeWinkel family moved to Manila, where Duane's father became manager of the Ross Glove Company factory which manufactures women's and children's dress gloves. The TeWinkel family is scheduled to return to the United States in April, 1963.

Before leaving for the Philippines, the TeWinkel's visited River Falls every summer. Because of these pleasant visits and the impression they left on him, Duane TeWinkel returned to River Falls this year to attend college.

Compared to his high school in the Philippines and the other schools he has seen, Mr. TeWinkel said the campus at River Falls is certainly not dead. There always seem to be numerous social activities taking place during the week. In contrast to most high schools here and in the Philippines, he finds the individual freedom of the students very refreshing. Mr. TeWinkel expressed the view that most students, if given the freedom the students at RFSC possess, will be responsible students.

The one phase of college life that is somewhat confusing to Mr. TeWinkel now is his schedule of classes. However, he feels that this is probably an initial problem of entering freshmen which will erase itself when the confusion of adjusting to college life is over.

Mr. TeWinkel believes that it is more advantageous for the student to live in a dorm rather than off campus. Staying in a dorm, he feels that he will be less likely to be distracted from his studies and less likely to forget them.

Mr. TeWinkel said that River Falls is as friendly as he remembered it and he believes that he will find his four years here very enjoyable.

Foreign Student Program In 9th Year at College

Editor's Note: This is the first of a series of feature articles on faculty members, students and personnel at River Falls.

By Pat Henneman

Foreign students have been admitted to WSCRF since its acknowledgement as a four-year state college but it was not until eight years ago that the foreign student population notably increased. At that time a special English course was instituted by Marion Hawkins to enable the foreign student to become acquainted with the English language.

We now have 19 foreign students and have welcomed three students from our new state, Hawaii.

The Foreign Students Association, a club for foreign students and others who are interested, was organized four years ago. The first meeting this year will be held Monday, Sept. 17, at Dr. William Abbot's home on Fourth Street.

Foreign students, both singly and as a unit, are often called upon to present programs at various functions. They have participated in approximately 75 programs and on Sept. 27-30, along with Macalester College, will be guests of New Richmond at their second International Weekend. Eighty foreign representatives will attend high school classes, enter discussion groups, be entertained by professionals from Minneapolis and converse with editors of various papers.

October 11, the students of foreign nations and our students from Hawaii, will present a talent show at Eau Claire at the Northwest Division of the Wisconsin Educational Association.

The following is a list of the current foreign students and their particular fields of interest. Also included are the students from Hawaii, of special interest because of our recent acquisition of the state.
