Audio-Visual Workshop For Teacher Education Seniors Will Be Nov. 11

Plans for an Audio-Visual Workshop for all seniors in teacher education and all juniors who will begin their student teaching in the Spring Quarter were announced last week by Mr. Robert Krueger, audio-visual director, and Dr. L. G. Stone, dean of the school of education.

The workshop will be held in the Little Theatre from 1 to 5 p.m. on Friday, Nov. 11. Attendance will be required of all students who fall under the above category.

Nixon Holds Lead in Campus Poll; National Survey Favors Kennedy

Eligible Campus Vote Split Even

Vice President Richard Nixon would be the next occupant of the White House if the students of River Falls State College were electing the President.

Members of the Newspaper Production class reached that conclusion last week after conducting two separate public opinion polls on campus.

But the polls also revealed that the Nixon-Kennedy vote is split evenly among the students who are old enough to vote and actually will vote in tomorrow's election.

Ed Schlumpf graduate student from Durand, and Warren Rogers, senior from Barron, interviewed 144 students, a 10 per cent sample of the student body. Using quota sampling procedures, they questioned the same percentages of men and women and the same percentages of freshmen, sophomores, juniors, seniors and graduate and special students as are represented in the entire student body.

Mary Ziegewid, senior from Arcadia, and Pat O'Connell, junior from Baldwin, interviewed 10 per cent of the students living in dormitories by using an area sampling technique of questioning the occupants of every 10th room.

The sample shows 42 per cent favoring Nixon, 39 per cent favoring Sen. John Kennedy, 19 per cent undecided and 1 per cent refusing to comment.

Nixon drew 53 per cent of the area sample while Kennedy garnered 40 per cent. Only 5 per cent was undecided and 2 per cent would not comment.

Schlumpf and Rogers found, however, that Nixon and Kennedy each attracted 41 per cent of the students who actually will vote tomorrow. Another 17 per cent was undecided and 1 per cent would not comment.

PLACEMENT PICTURE DEADLINE NEARS FOR GRADUATING SENIORS

All seniors graduating by the end of fall term, '61 are required to have Meletean and placement bureau pictures turned in to those respective offices no later than Dec. 22, according to an announcement last week.

Pictures must be 3 x 5 glossy prints of 1 1/2 inches from the top of head to chin. This picture is required along with a senior information sheet by the day before Christmas vacation begins, it was said. No pictures will be accepted after, because pages for the yearbook will be made up during vacation.

Information sheets are available in the Meletean office starting today. The placement bureau also requests that eight billfold size pictures be turned in as soon as possible.

Political Editors Give Dems Edge

John F. Kennedy will be the next president of the United States, according to an intense study of the political situation and a nationwide poll of political editors conducted recently by a freshman communications class under the direction of Dr. Francis P. Chisholm.

Assuming the role of the experts, the students predict an electoral vote landslide for the Senator from Massachusetts, giving him 321 of the 537 electoral votes with the remaining 216 going to the vice president.

The class publicized the results of their study last week during a panel discussion on the election campaign. They analyzed the various religious, platform, and sectional aspects of the campaign and discussed what effect they might have on the outcome of the elections.

Information gained from the study of the political arena was combined with the results of a poll conducted with political editors of newspapers in the capital city of each state, and in that manner they came up with the final prediction of a Kennedy victory.

Though the group concluded the Democrats would carry the electoral college with ease, they expect Kennedy to win the popular vote in only 26 states, with Nixon taking the other 24. They expect Kennedy to win the popular vote in only 26 states, with Nixon taking the other 24. They expect Kennedy to pick up 122 of his 321 votes, or more than one third of them, by carrying only four states, Michigan (20), New York (45), Ohio (25), and California (32). Illinois (27), Texas (24) and Pennsylvania (32) are all expected to go to Nixon.

The group predicts that Wisconsin's 12 electoral votes will go with their predicted winner, but that Minnesota will place it 11 votes in the Republican camp.

Historian Will Speak At Education Week Convo

Dr. Robert Beck, professor of history and philosophy of education at the University of Minnesota, will address an all-school convocation at 10 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 10, in North Hall Auditorium as part of the American Education Week observance.

Dr. Beck will also speak before the River Falls businessmen, who have been invited to the campus of the College for a noon luncheon on Thursday.

He received his B.A. degree from Harvard in 1939, and completed his Ph.D. at Yale in 1942. He has been with the U. of M. since 1947. He has traveled extensively in recent years, studying under scholarships in Russia, the Arab countries and Israel.

With the theme "Strengthen Schools for the 60's," American Education Week is being observed Nov. 6 - 12. Daily topics are as follows: Nov. 6, "Serious Students - Stronger Schools"; Nov. 7, "Interested Parents - Stronger School"; Nov. 8, "Able Board Members - Stronger Schools"; Nov. 9, "Quality Teachers - Stron-

The Editor Speaks . . .

The lead article in a recent Saturday Review set forth the argument that urging the habitual non-voter to the polls is a mistake. The article makes some good points about the detrimental effects of dragging people to the polls when they are not interested enough in politics or sufficiently informed to vote intelligently.

But we do not accept the general theme of the article, that the habitual non-voter should be let alone. We feel that the American public must take a greater interest in politics or we may lose our democracy.

The Saturday Review article goes along with the idea that if non-voters could be made more politically conscious, their qualifications to vote would naturally be enhanced.

Newspaper people get to know their fellow citizens well enough to recognize that they are not always as static as they sometimes appear. We have seen many persons become vitally interested and well informed on matters for which they formerly had no concern. Often this change is due to the interest and invitation of neighbors and other friends.

We're convinced that a great many non-voters don't vote simply because they don't take politics very seriously. They are not necessarily incompetent or ignorant. They simply are not motivated. If get-out-the-vote drives concentrated on this category and on the urgency of intelligent voting, they could very well accomplish much good.

Some of the fundamentals in this preservation of our democracy might be:

- Recognition of the contributions of professional politicians.
- Active participation in politics at the grass roots level.
- Citizen contribution to the financial operation of the party of one's choice.
- Discussion of issues among citizens and friends.

The important thing about getting-out-the-vote campaigns, it seems to us, is to combine them with an educational campaign. Organizations like the Young Dems and Y-GOP have done much good in this respect by stirring up interest and getting information on both sides of important issues into the hands of the people. There can be no doubt that such public information has influenced many a citizen not only to take interest in politics but also to vote, and vote intelligently.

Nor can there be any doubt that many persons who have been merely urged to vote have become conscious also of the responsibility to know what they are voting about.

People become interested in what they enjoy. Even the unqualified non-voter of today will tend to become the qualified voter of tomorrow, under the stimulation of interest.

We agreed with the Saturday Review article in that ignorance serves no good purpose at the polls. But we would not urge an end to get-out-the-vote drives. Rather, we would urge that such drives be augmented with educational and informational campaigns.

Do not forget to vote for the candidate of your choice tomorrow, November 8.

Selection By Cooklock Appears in October Wis. English Journal

Richard Cooklock, director of the Chalmer Davee Library at Wisconsin State College at River Falls, is author of an article entitled "Book Selection" recently published in the Wisconsin English Journal.

Mr. Cooklock states that he based the article upon ideas which he used in a book selections course he has taught here on campus. In the article he points out the difficulties of purchasing books for a school library, where the person must buy books not according to his interests but according to what he feels may be the interests of those who will be reading them. We must "choose the right book for the right child at the right time," the article reads.

It was pointed out that most titles are purchased because someone read a review of them and thought they might be what the library needed. The New York Times Book Review section and the Saturday Review were thought to be the best guides as to what books to purchase.

The Wisconsin English Journal is edited by Dr. Francis P. Chisholm, head of the English department at Wisconsin State College at River Falls.

Mankato Tops RF 27-21 in Finale

by Roger Pechacek

Mankato Northern States Conference title winners this year, clipped the River Falls football team Saturday afternoon 27-21.

The Falcons, hampered by unending penalties and outweighed in the line by 22 pounds per man, nevertheless played hard and determined football.

After the kickoff, Mankato with the ball on RF's 41 yard line got a lucky break when two 15 yard penalties against the Falcons put the Indians on the opposition's 16 yard line.

The second half started with Mankato making a sustained drive into Falcon territory with breaks of penalties continuing against RF.

Mankato then kicked off to the Falcons, but the Big Red failed to promote the ball and were forced to punt. Another 15 yard penalty on River Falls put the ball on the Falcons' 21 yard line.

The next play found Mankato's Biersma going around end for 21 yards to dent the end zone for their third TD.

Mankato then kicked off to the Red and White, who suffered another 15 yard penalty. They were forced to punt and two plays later Mankato broke away for their last tally.

After RF received the kickoff, the Falcons began to click, driving hard to the Mankato 14 yard line. Dawson threw his second touchdown pass to freshman end Dennis Louks in the end zone.

The Big Red kicked off again to Mankato and forced them to punt. With minutes clicking by, Dawson's wonder arm started moving the Falcons again.

men prefer Kennedy while men favor Nixon. Women included in the quota sample voted 42 per cent for Kennedy and 37 per cent for Nixon with 21 per cent undecided. Women questioned in the area sample favored Kennedy over Nixon by a margin of 55 per cent to 40 per cent, with 5 per cent undecided.

The men, however, went for Nixon. Results of the quota sample were: Nixon 44 per cent, Kennedy 37 per cent undecided 19 per cent and no comment 1 per cent. The area sample showed 54 per cent for Nixon, 38 per cent for Kennedy and 8 per cent undecided.

Another conclusion reached by the pollsters is that the undecided vote varies inversely with the level of education. The class found 27 per cent of the freshmen undecided, 15 per cent of the sophomores, 13.3 per cent of the juniors and 9 per cent of the seniors.

The freshmen class favored Kennedy, 40 per cent to 33 per cent, and the sophomores were split with 42.5 per cent voting for each candidate. The juniors gave Nixon a big edge, 53.3 per cent to 33.3 per cent, and the seniors preferred Nixon by a margin of 48 per cent to 43 per cent.

"Angel" Holds Audience in Silence

by Doug Johnson

Thursday night I watched fourteen college freshman and a couple of juniors and seniors, on limited stage space and with sophisticated Broadway material "hold" an audience of high school, college, and townsfolk in silence and attention.

In its first year 'off Broadway', Ketti Frings' adaptation of Thomas Wolfe's "autobiographical" novel is also being shown at Superior State College and the University of Minnesota. The River Falls production I saw need not be "upstaged" by the efforts of either of the other upper Midwest drama departments.

In his first appearance in the RF Little Theatre, freshman Robin Hoover gave a most enjoyable, lovable Eugene Gant. Whether poignant or happy of mood, we the audience held great empathy for him. We shall look forward to seeing more of Robin in forthcoming productions.

Paul Kelly was a hypertense, hyperintense yet philosophical Ben Gant; he created a fine, sharp contrast to younger brother Gene. Always a good cough-er, Kelly was both well poised and well posed in his role.

Tower of strength Will Gant may have staggered but he still towered. Slovenly enunciation

'Lenin in October' To Show Nov. 9

"Lenin in October," the first of two Russian films to be shown on campus during November, will play in the Little Theatre at 4 p. m. Thursday, Nov. 9.

Showing the role of Lenin in the great revolution of 1917, the film is considered a true classic in Russian Communist historiography.

The second film, "Battle of Russia," will be shown on Wednesday, Nov. 16 in the Little Theatre.

probably aided more than hindered Dave Madis in maintaining the illusion of walloping, W. O. He was raucous, raving, rollicking, rotund, rasping and rare.

Nanci Brod was a convincing, bitchy, dictatorial, opportunistic Liza Gant. However her rather monotone ranting and raving, combined with an overuse of the right hand index finger caused us to feel more labored instead of actually irritated as we should have been.

Jim Rankin, often seen on the RF stage, gave one of his best performances to date; he was most believable as old Dr. Maguire.

A perfect combination of sex and naivete made Barb Webb's portrayal of Laura James, the female half of the play's clandestine love affair, 'right'. In a role that could easily have been played too far one way or the other, Barb—who has had previous experience in roles of this sort—walked the thin line.

Jim Schwenk spoke truth when gruff Hugh said "By God that's the truth". We'll look for more Schwenk truth in subsequent productions.

What more need be said of Darlene Erickson's Madame Elizabeth than "excellent"?

Though little was heard from him, Tarkington's (Steve Hay) face was a study in inebriated action and reaction.

Joyce McKinley (in her most important role on this side of the lighting board to date), Jerilyn Arts, Bev Monette and Beverly Voigte all furthered the success of the production as a whole by accomplishing their roles with facility.

Without going into fussy detail, being excessively burdensome to the stage-crew, or (most important) fighting with the actors and the play for attention, Dr. Donald Borchardt, newest member of the speech department, created a highly credible and professional "set". He and his assistants should be commended for their many hours of labor contributed.
