College Graduates 324

Education Goes Beyond Individual, Dr. Harrington Tells Class of '64

THE FACULTY ASSEMBLIES in front of the student center before the Honors Day program. Honors Day served as a practice run for the graduating seniors and faculty.

"We think of education as a help not only to the individual, but also to the area from which you come and the republic of which you are citizens," Dr. Fred H. Harrington told the 324 graduates in his commencement speech this afternoon.

Dr. Harrington, president of the University of Wisconsin for two years, spoke on "The Future of Higher Education in Wisconsin."

The College at River Falls, Dr. Harrington said, "has a long and impressive history; but this history does not begin to compare with the future of this institution. The successes of the past serve as the preparation for the enormous job we have before us."

The Wisconsin president pointed out that higher education is no longer a luxury; it is a necessity. "It is indispensable because our new scientific and technological age calls for knowledge and judgment, imagination and the broad viewpoint which we associate with the liberal and professional higher education of today. It is essential because the political and social problems of our complicated generation require the most careful consideration."

The men and women graduated today have been educated for their own benefit, Dr. Harrington said, but society also has a great interest in the college graduate. "Higher education, therefore, must be viewed as the great public service of our time."

Dr. Harrington was a member of the University of Wisconsin faculty for more than 25 years at the time of his appointment as president to succeed the late Dr. Conrad A. Elvehjem. Before being named president, Dr. Harrington taught, served as chairman of the history department and an assistant to the president, vice president of academic affairs and vice president of the University.

He holds an A. B. degree in history from Cornell University and A. M. and Ph. D. degrees from New York University. The latter school awarded him an honorary doctorate in 1963.

Dr. Harrington, a specialist in American diplomatic history and Lincoln and the Civil War, has published a number of books and served in academic and governmental positions.

The class of 324 graduates that participated in this afternoon's commencement is the largest in the College's history--30 per cent larger than the 1963 class of 252 members.

Commencement and the reception following the ceremony in the Student Center climax a week of graduation activities. The week began with an Honors Day program for scholarship and academic award winners Monday afternoon in Karges Center.

Yesterday's alumni day activities included luncheons and campus tours for the Classes of 1914, 1924 and 1939 and the annual Senior-Alumni-Faculty Banquet last night at May Hall.

Allan A. Anderson, president of the Wisconsin Education Assn. and a 1950 graduate of the College, was the principal speaker at last night's banquet. Anderson, elementary school principal at Spring Valley, holds a master's degree from the University of Minnesota.

William Ammerman, chairman of the art department, was toastmaster for the banquet.

Distinguished Alum Award Given To Retired Executive

The College's sixth annual Distinguished Alumnus Award was presented this afternoon to Roy H. Sakrison, a retired executive of the Andersen Corp., during this afternoon's commencement ceremonies.

Sakrison, a 1912 graduate of the College, retired Aug. 31, 1961, as finance vice-president and secretary after serving 36 years with the Bayport, Minn., firm.

Born in Deer Park, Wis., Sakrison taught school for several years after his graduation from what was then the normal school. He also was cashier of the State Bank of Deer Park before entering the Army in World War I. Lt. Sakrison was wounded in the Meuse-Argonne offensive and was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross and the Purple Heart.

After the war, Sakrison was managing officer of the First State Bank in Bayport for three years before joining the accounting department of the Andersen Corp.

He is a member of the board of directors of the River Falls State College Foundation and continues as director of the Andersen Corp. He also is vice-president and director of the First State Bank of Bayport and recently completed 25 years as a member of the board of managers of Lakeview Memorial Hospital.

Two years ago, Sakrison and his wife, Esther, established an annual $250 scholarship to River Falls for graduates of New Richmond High School, from which Mr. and Mrs. Sakrison both graduated. The scholarship is financed through the income from $5,000 worth of preferred stock in the Andersen Corp. which Mr. Sakrison has given the Foundation.

Past recipients of the Distinguished Alumnus Award have been: the late Dr. Dean Smith of LaCrosse, 1959; Miss Helen Parkhurst of New York, 1960; Raymond Powell Ensign of Monterey, Mass., 1961; E. P. Rock of Hudson, 1962; and Dr. Reynold Jensen of Minneapolis, 1963.

Students Get Two Internships

Two students of Wisconsin State College at River Falls have received summer internship for practical experience in their vocational fields.

Paul Arneson, political science major from Spring Valley, has been selected as a political intern to serve this summer in the office of Senator Gaylord Nelson in Washington, D.C. The internship is designed to supplement the academic work of the student and was awarded by the Wisconsin Center for Education in Politics.

John C. Bergene, a junior majoring in journalism at River Falls was selected for a summer journalism internship at Prairie du Chien, Wisconsin.

Bergene will be working for the Prairie du Chien COURIER-PRESS, a weekly publication.

The internship is for 10 weeks.

Good-by Grads

As each school year draws to a close, it is customary to commence and commend the seniors. This process has become, in fact, a tradition across the country in all schools of secondary and collegiate status.

Every late spring the seniors are told, "You will be greatly missed. As a class and as individuals you have provided leadership above and beyond the call of duty. Some of you have done more than others, but you will all be remembered. You have been worthy examples for the students following in your footsteps.

Now you will proceed from this milestone in your life to become followers once again-- followers in an increasingly complex world, where competition is the keynote, and survival and success the hard-won goals. May you fight your battles well and may you fully appreciate the scope of your achievement. Best of luck, seniors, you have made significant contributions to this institution. God bless you."

In keeping with the spirit of its "New Frontier", The VOICE refrains from eulogizing our so recently departed college friends, but simply agrees with all senior-centered speeches everywhere. In short, The VOICE "seconds the notion."

Senate Raises Many Controversial Questions

"We have raised many varying and controversial issues on campus, such as big-name activities, campus apathy, insurance, housing, the food service dilemma, and registration," said Senate Pres. Larry Feltes when asked to evaluate the Senate's work over the past year.

Feltes cited improved use of parliamentary procedures as one of the big reasons more business was placed on the floor and handled in a shorter period of time than by past Senates.

Feltes also pointed out that although the Senate had worked with the administration, it had made the administration aware and concerned with some of the problems on campus, especially in the areas of housing, registration and the food service.

"Vince DiSalvo," said Feltes, "deserves special recognition for his enthusiasm and zeal in the areas of public relations and big-name activities.

The president also commended his fellow officers on a fine job. Fran O'Connell, vice-president; Morgan Graham, secretary; Gene Smith, treasurer and John Hanson, parliamentarian were singled out as being especially effective.

"I would commend the entire Senate on a job well done," said Feltes who concluded three years of activity in student government with his graduation today.

"The experience and enthusiasm of the returning senators should provide the incoming Senate with a firm basis to serve the student body," said the president elect, Gene Smith. Smith stated that he felt this enthusiasm would not lead to blind unity, but rather to "an informative exchange of ideas."

"We are deeply indebted to this year's Seniors," Smith said in reference to his graduating colleagues.

Prof Sibley Unavailable; May Come Next Fall

Some time ago, students presented the Concerts and Lectures Committee with a petition requesting that Prof. Mulford Q. Sibley be invited to campus to speak to the students.

Dr. Richard Darr, chairman of the concerts and lectures committee, announced that Sibley was invited this spring, but was unable to come because his schedule was filled.

Darr said, however, that Sibley indicated a willingness to come at a later date and will be invited to appear on campus next fall.

R.F.S.C. To Be University

College is Remaker Of Society, Pres. Says

Education is not only an investment in man but in our society, Dr. E. H. Kleinpell, president of River Falls State College, told students and faculty at the Honors Day assembly last Monday afternoon in the Student Center.

Dr. Kleinpell posed many questions as to what life would be like in the year 2000 and said that "the colleges and universities will play a decisive role in providing answers to the questions raised."

The President stated that "Knowledge has assumed such a prominent place in our civilization that it is sometimes referred to as 'the knowledge industry'".

If this be the case Dr. Kleinpell said that the colleges and universities will continue in their role of remaking our society and our environment.

Dr. Kleinpell cautioned, however, that the accumulation of Knowledge is not all that is necessary. What many students "ignore is the meaning of self" he stated.

In closing Pres. Kleinpell reminded his audience that what is important to us now is not who leads us, but what leads us and what convictions we follow.

$2200 Stipend

Joan Lenselink, senior from Clear Lake, has received a graduate assistant in mathematics at the State University of New York at Buffalo. The stipend is for $2,200.

Change In Name Only, Pres. Kleinpell Says

by JOHN CEGIELSKI

The action by the Board of Regents changing the State College system into a State University system is more of a name change than anything else and should bring no administration changes, according to E. H. Kleinpell, President of the College.

"What this (the Regents' action) does is change the word college to university," he said. "We'll be known as Wisconsin State University--River Falls."

The change goes into effect on July 1.

The President said he hopes the name change will bring added support to the College.

Dr. Kleinpell said the College will have to go through a slight re-tooling to adjust to the change, but this consists mainly of changing stationary, cards and signs.

The university status will not affect the academic program, according to Dr. Kleinpell.

There has been some speculation that the College would now plunge headlong into an accelerated graduate program, but Dr. Kleinpell said the College already has a summer graduate program which has been expanded and will be offered on a year-round basis starting this fall.

"We won't accelerate the graduate program just for the sake of the program," he said.

The President said the graduate program will grow according to the needs of the area it serves. He said there are no plans to establish another school--a graduate school--at present. "But I wouldn't say there isn't a possibility it won't happen in the future," he added.

Dr. Kleinpell said the College will still continue to stress a high quality undergraduate program. "I'm of the opinion that somewhere in this country we must have some good undergraduate colleges, and this has been and will continue to be my major effort as long as I am here," he said.

He admitted that at one time he was opposed to the change to a State University because he felt it would detract from the quality of the undergraduate program. "I've changed my thinking, though," he said. "I now think it will help our undergraduate program and I'm all for it."

He said the help would probably come in the form of more help from alumni and federal grants and aids.

Dr. Kleinpell said the change to a university was not something the Regents pulled out of a bag. "It has been under discussion since 1961," he said.

"The council of State College presidents met here on May 11 and formally recommended for the first time to the Board of Regents that a change be made," he said.

The President said that as far as changes go, River Falls was the first State College to reorganize its administrative system into schools within the college. "The other colleges went to it about four years later," he added.

In looking back over the last five years, the President said the College has made the most progress in any one area in the fine arts field.

"A few years ago we had only two persons on the music staff. No look, we have eight today," he said, by way of example. "No one knows where they will go in the next five years," he said.

Stone Announces Language Workshop

Three nationally prominent educators will be consultants at the Annual Language Arts Workshop at Wisconsin State College, River Falls on June 15-29, it was announced today by Dr. L. G. Stone, Director of the Summer Session.

The Workshop will be under the direction of Francis P. Chisholm, Chairman of the Humanities Division of the college.

The three consultants are: Dr. Robert C. Pooley of the University of Wisconsin, Director of the Wisconsin State Language Arts Curriculum Project; Dr. William Jenkins, editor of the national magazine Elementary English; and Dr. James Mason, Professor of English at Indiana State Teachers College, Terre Haute.

The Workshop will deal with the background of knowledge about English necessary for the revised curriculum now being constructed by the teachers of Wisconsin.

A CHECK FOR $125 is presented to Pres. E. H. Kleinpell by Iraj Amirjomid, Fred Mac Kenzie and John Bruce of the Foreign Students Association. The money will be placed in a fund for short term loans for foreign students.

New Course Offered In Social Field Work

The sociology department at River Falls has broadened its curriculum by offering a new course this spring in the practical aspects of social work. According to Dr. Robert Bailey of the sociology department, the new course follows the introductory course given in Winter quarter and is designed to help the student get to know the practical field of social work from the start.

Because of the increasing number of students at River Falls planning on a career in social work, the curriculum had to take in some practical study. More so than in some other disciplines it is difficult for a student to understand the field of social work from classroom lectures and reading alone explained Dr. Bailey.

He said "It is in observing the field work procedure in an actual setting that the feel for social work is acquired."

This Spring seven students participated in the field work at four different agencies.
