What will visitors to the College campus see in the year 1970? If president E. H. Kleinpell has his way, they will see a campus of some ten major buildings, a student body of 1,500 (this whether he has his way or not!), and a faculty of more than one hundred. YM-YWCA-Newmans

The statements came out of a recent interview with the president at which he speculated on the course of the college during the next 16 years.

Five Needs Listed

The president listed five major needs of the college today, in this order:

a) A new health and physical education building. Move, improve and enlarge the campus farm.

c) Additional housing.

Army Accident Fatal To John Oedsma

The student body here was shocked and deeply grieved to hear that "Big John" Oedsma, star tackle for the Falcons in '52 and '53, had been fatally injured in army maneuvers at Fort Hood, Texas, on Tuesday, November 23, 1954. The fatal accident involving an army tank happened during night maneuvers.

The Editor Speaks . . .

We are wondering why the sidewalks were icy so long. Could it be that we're feeling too secure because we're insured? Someone will be getting hurt if something isn't done.

It looks good to see the whole basketball team get a chance to play. It develops more interest among both players and spectators.

We are pleased to see that use is being made of the display windows in the library. The art exhibits are interesting. We have heard many adverse statements, however on the "monster" in front of the facade which is supposed to be a book collector. Many think the monster should be "killed" or hidden.

IS COLLEGE WORTH IT?

We have heard much discussion on such questions as ". . . what am I doing in college . .. what good is a college education . . . how much better are my job chances when I graduate . . .? and

When we look at the number of people attending college we see that in 1920 there were 598,000 students. In 1950 there were 2,659,000. The increase is still on the way up.

In a recent survey of college education and its relationship to individual incomes, it was learned that the median annual earnings of college graduates is twice the median income of all men in the United States.

It was also learned that there is a relationship between the size and quality of one's vocabulary and one's position on the ladder of success. This, according to the study made by the Mankato State Teachers College, is because words are tools of communication and thought.

COLLEGE BEFORE SERVICE?

Some college students wonder whether to enter the armed services before or after going to college. The director of Selective Service, General Hershey said: "... if a boy wants to go to college and if he has an apptitude to go to college, he ought to go to college."

Alice Duer Miller, the author of the famous World War II poem, THE WHITE CLIFFS, sent this telegram to a Barnard College Celebration, "Don't ever dare to take your college as a matter of dourse—because, like Democracy and Freedom, many people you'll never know anything about have broken their hearts to get it for you."

Don't Wait Till Tragedy Strikes

So reads a portion of a circular, written and printed anonomously for distribuprinted anonomously for distribu-tion throughout the city, on De-cember 5, 1954. The day before, Henry McKahan, of the main-tenance staff, had lost his wife and home in a fire. Two of his three children are hospitalized. Tragedy strikes uncessingly throughout the earth, but always suddenly and without warning. When it strikes near us, it shatters the thin veneer of our dream worlds, and leaves us stunned in the face of eternal reality.

Then, prejudice is seen in its true fight. Arguments are quick-ly resolved. Friendships are made and renewed as we work to comfort and care for the suffering.

Our hearts cry out in sympa-ny. We want to help—to do something, but we find our efforts clumsy and frustrating. We see a brother in great sorrow, but we cannot know or share his sorrow. It is his alone. We can only be prayerful and kind and undisturbing until Time has wrought its change and brought him new hope and a new day.

Yet, we have learned something. Our city and school have gained a new sense of humility and true charity. But at such a price! May it not have been in vain. Decisions, made in hours like this have altered the destinger of nations.

Letters to the Editor...

Dear editor:

I should like to quote here an editorial that appeared in the St. Paul Pioneer Press during the first part of December, an editorial of interest to every student and alumnus of our college, for it presents an entirely new approach in encouraging college a-lumni to contribute to the support of their alma mater.

"General Electric's educational and charitable fund is experi-menting with a new plan for increasing contributions to the nation's colleges. It will match dol-lar for dollar, every gift made by its employes to the schools from which they were graduated. A limit of $1,000 is placed on matching contributions for each

"There are about 23,000 college graduates from 540 different schools in the employ of General Electric. Phillip D. Reed, chairman of the board of the company, said the new plan will be kept in effect through 1955. The company's policy after that will de-pend on the experience of the year.

"Mr. Reed said that the one who profits most from college education is the individual grad-uate. However, he adds that "un-deniably the benefits are shared by the organizations with which he is associated." He emphasized the Senate treasurer keep them posted regularly as to their financial state. The motion carried.

Kathie Miller volunteered to see the Student Voice editor about re-publishing the annual the individual and the organization. The emphasized that college students pay only a part of the cost of their education by tuition, often only half or less.

"It seems appropriate and fair," he continued, "that both the individual and the organization. tion with which he has allied himself should undertake some measure of support for the colleges and universities . . . so that others can participate in those benefits."

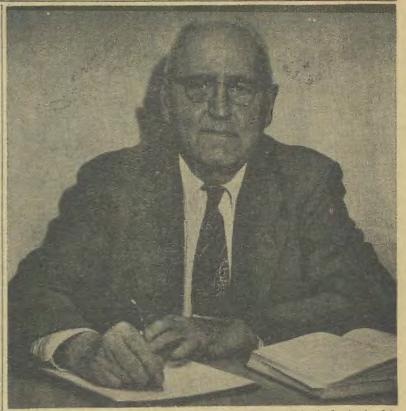

"This is an appealing argument for increased financial support of educational institutions by the alumni. It also recognizes the principle that business concerns which employ college graduates are indebted to the institutions which train them. In the past few years this belief has been accepted by an increasing number of corporations in Minnesota and throughout the country. The result has been a growing list of annual contributions from business to private liberal arts colleges as well as to institutions of technical learning.

"Mr. Reed expresses hope that other companies may find in the General Electric plan "an appropriate pattern for incorporation in the educational programs in which they are interested."

Like Mr. Reed of General Electric, I also hope that other companies and individuals may find in the GE plan "an appropriate pattern for incorporation in the educational programs in which they are interested."

FALCONS-110 LA CROSSE-94

Again it was just too much Wells and Williams as the Falcons romped to a 110-94 victory over La Crosse. The senior forwards combined for 60 points as Wells netted 38 and Williams 22.

Wells in playing the finest game of his career did a terrific job of rebounding besides scor-ing. In the first half "Big Zeke" picked up 20 of his 38 points and almost single handedly kept the Falls in the game as he con-trolled both boards. At that Wells sat out about half the third part of the fourth period.

River Falls took the opening tip and quickly jumped into a 2-0 lead. Only when the score was tied at 2-2 and 4-4 were the Indians from La Crosse close to leading. Gradually the Falcons pulled ahead until they led 52-41 of halftime at halftime.

During this first half the Indians tried a man-to-man pres-sing defense. However, with Cabby Wild leading the way the Fal-cons quickly broke this defense wide open. Finally the home-towners made a press look very

A former professor at Harvard University summed it up when he explained why there is so much knowledge in our colleges. He said the reason was . . . so many freshmen bring so much into college with them and the seniors take so little out.

Dance Group Active Here

Dance theater, this year, is composed of a small, but enthusiastic group of students that meet twice a week in their 3rd floor campus school "studio". In spite of its limited facilities, the group is eager to keep modern dance an active and creative part of campus activity. All compositions are entirely student-choreographed. New forms of accompaniment such as choral reading, drums, and drama are experiments in movement that are planned for the coming year.

the coming year.

This fall, for the annual F.F.A.
Rural Day, the group danced
"Goin' Courtin'" from MGM's
"Seven Brides for Seven Brothers." The group has also made trips to Northrup Auditorium to see the London Festival Ballet for the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo

Technique sessions and rehearsals will be resumed after Christmas vacation. Beginners are always welcome, says the group, and those interested watch for rehearsals posted.

Sublett, Delegate to Fla.

Miss Loneta Sublett, Campus school supervising teacher was a delegate from the College as well as the northwestern area of Wisconsin to the Ninth Annual meeting of the Soil Conservation Society of America which was held in Jacksonville, Florida, November 15-17.

DR. CHARLOTTE LEE, center, of Northwestern University, talks over the day's activities with Dr. Chisholm of the R. F. English Department and Dr. B. Dayis of the the RF Speech Department, during the recent Language Arts Conference on Oral Interpretation.

Dr. Lee Keynotes Oral Reading Musts

by Shirley Engleman

A plea for sincerity and simplicity in oral reading was the keynote of Dr. Charlotte Lee's "down-to-earth" discussion at the Language Arts Conference on Oral Interpretation Saturday, December 4, 1954. Dr. Lee, one of the most compelling speakers heard on this campus in some time, presented the audience of high school and college students and teachers with a positive approach to the problem of oral reading for pleasure and competition.

After closing remarks by Dr. Chisholm, chairman of the English Department, on the importance of the Conference and the future plans including an April conference on the Language Arts curriculum, the discussion to be based on the new curriculum volumes from the National Council of Teachers of English, Dr. Blanche Davis called on the guest speaker once again.

Dr. Lee made a few comments on the conference and on the performance of the students. The meeting was then opened to discussion with most of the questions directed at Dr. Lee. The point of concern in the questioning period seemed to be "how can speech be given the time in the school schedule it rightly deserves?"

CAMPUS OF 1970-

(Continued from page one) percent of the agricultural teachers of Wisconsin, we should be able to adequately practice what we preach."

The movement of the farm will provide for additional expansion on the campus proper. Additional Housing

The third project of more housing is necessary when it is realized that private housing for students is rapidly reaching a saturation point, according to the president. He stressed that while facilities may be adequate at the present, they certainly will not even five years from now.

It is planned to add a third story on Hathorn Hall, girls dormitory, and to construct a new men's dormitory along Sycamore avenue at the west entrance to the campus. The men's dorm would house up to 200 students while the third floor on Hathorn would accomodate another 50 or so girls.

New Campus School

A new Campus school, to be located just south of the Chalmer Davee library, will provide for additional classrooms in this specialty, thus permitting more students to take practice teaching at any one time. The present space occupied by the school in North Hall would be used to meet the demands for classroom space of a scientific nature.

Student Union

The last building envisioned by Dr. Kleinpell is a student union, designed to provide students both on and off campus with a meeting place, a place to spend recreational time, and a place in which to center all student activities

According to President Kleinpell, "the speed with which these 'dreams' become realities will basically depend upon the legislature's actions in making funds available to the state college system. Thus one of the greatest services a former student of River Falls can perform for the college is to urge his or her friends in the Wisconsin legislature to support the pleas of the Board of Regents for additional building funds."

"Such a campus as envisioned here will meet the demands of the growing population, enabling these people to make greater contributions to society and to provide for themselves a better life. The 'dream campus of 1970' is thus really not just a dream, but if we are to do our job at River Falls it is practically a must."
